BOATING PARTY MISSING IN COAST STORM

Will Is Given Big Surprise As Hoover Accepts

(Special To The News)

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Aug. 13.—Well, the whole thing Saturday over the radio certainly was a surprise to me. I didn't think Hoover would accept. But he did.

He says every man has the right to ask the following questions: "Is the United States a better place for the average man to live in because the Republican party has conducted the government eight years?

If we are privileged to ask the question, I will be the first to bite. Is it?

In the first place, Herbert don't know all about human nature, or he wouldn't try to appeal to the average man. No man wants to admit that he is average.

Did you see the picture and specifications of that average man they located last year? That took all the joy out of wanting to be average.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

PA NEWC OBSERVES

Coupled with the unusual weather conditions of yesterday, when a cool wave struck the city, by way of a change, was the spectacular sunset of the evening. It has been a long time since the western sky was tinted with such hues as were noted as the sun went down, Sunday evening.

This is the week when the old timers get together again. On Tuesday the Reynoldstown reunion will be held, while on Wednesday, the annual Old Timers' Day will be observed at Cascade Park. Indications are for a big turnout on Wednesday.

Have you ever sat on the porch of the Almira home. If you haven't, you've missed something. The huge pillars on the porch make one believe he is on the veranda of a colonial mansion and the huge lawn stretching out to the street give it the air and seclusion of a country home.

Pa Newc strolled into the park floor again Saturday evening and watched varnish haired caricatures of flaming youth fandangoeing and double shuffling. No wonder the oldtimers just lean back and spread sagely grins across their countenances when the younger set say that the old time dances were funny. Pa Newc saw one couple dancing that were giving a prize exhibition of rickets in the advanced stages and a shuffle that would make the saint vitus dance drop into a hovel ashamed.

Pa Newc dropped in unceremoniously on the Greek American Progressive Association picnic yesterday out some way from the Seventh ward at Shadyside park. They had a large delegation from all over the western section of the state. The music by a 36 piece band was fine and they treated Pa Newc royally even though he didn't give them the key to Niagara.

Have you noticed the flowers at the west end of the West Washington street bridge as you go down to the station? They are the coveted property of the railroad and are certainly beautiful to the observers eye as he passes for awhile through all sorts of scenery that include anything but flowers.

Out in the Mt. Jackson district they have gone two days without a robbery! Residents have been oiling up weapons of every sort since the recent deluge of thievery and house breaking.

Perspiration rolled down the faces of the "shock troops" at the police department Saturday evening. It was not a hot night. Telephones jangled, reporting this and that. And when the books were opened at police court Sunday morning, it was found that 49 cases had been docketed between the hours of four Saturday afternoon and four Sunday morning. There were charges of drunkeness, disorderly house proprietors and visitors, and some arrests for plain and fancy gambling. Two were for drunken driving and driving without a license.

Of all things, the talk turned to poetry in the lobby of The Castleton Sunday evening. In discussing this

Five Missing In Small Boat; Gale Strikes Seaboard

Atlantic Coast Whipped By Mid-Summer Gale; Shipping Is Imperilled

SEVERAL RESCUED FROM DROWNING

Heavy Damage Done To Summer Resorts And Homes Along Coast Line

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—A small motorboat containing three men and two women today was reported missing off the Jersey Coast after the roaring mid-summer gale which lashed the seaboard from Chesapeake Bay to Sandy Hook.

The party left Island Beach, near Toms River, shortly before the storm broke, about midnight Saturday. Nothing has been heard of the craft, though marine men at Island Beach expressed confidence that the party found shelter somewhere along shore.

The storm, striking inland in places but skirting New York, left one dead, and coast guardsmen reported approximately one hundred rescues.

George Hopman, Jersey City fireman, was killed by a blown-down electric wire as he was stepping into a cab in front of his home.

The gale was the tail end of the tropical hurricane which swept Florida earlier in the week. Along the Maryland coast the wind attained a velocity of 70 miles an hour.

The mid-Atlantic coast is threatened with a new-born hurricane today. It was reported from Little Cayman Island in the West Indies, gath-

Foil Attempt To Kidnap Blackmer

BODYGUARDS WARN BLACKMER OF PLOT

(International News Service)

PARIS, Aug. 13.—A sensational report that an attempt was made to "kidnap" Henry M. Blackmer, rich American oil magnate and missing Teapot Dome witness, was circulated here today.

The foreign office at the present time has under consideration a request from Washington for the extradition of Blackmer, who is wanted to answer a charge of perjury in connection with his income tax statements in Colorado.

According to the report Blackmer was invited to dine on a yacht flying the United States flag. At the last moment while he was stepping into a launch to go to the yacht, one of his two bodyguards warned him that there might be a plot and prevented him from boarding the boat.

According to the newspaper Presse, the yacht was owned by enemies of Blackmer who intended to carry him to the United States once he was on board.

To Name Counsel For Accused Man

Eugene Anderson, alias "Don't You Know," charged with the murder of Dile Allen at New Castle Junction in 1925 was brought into court this morning and asked by Judge R. Lawrence Hildebrand if he had counsel. Upon his admission that he did not have and that he had no funds to retain any Judge Hildebrand said that he would appoint counsel within a short time. Anderson goes to trial in the September term of court.

MANY SEE CORN BORER EXHIBIT AT THE NEWS

Marking an innovation in the State of Pennsylvania, in the work of fighting the European Corn Borer, a demonstration was held in the office of The New Castle News on Saturday afternoon and evening in which hundreds of interested citizens saw for themselves what havoc the borer can do, and the manner in which it works.

The demonstration was the result of co-operation between Dr. Charles G. Jordon, Secretary of Agriculture, and Fred L. Rentz. Vice President and head of the Agricultural department of the New Castle Chamber of Commerce.

That the idea was a popular one was proved by the fact that all afternoon and evening both city and country residents filled the lobby of The News, seeing for themselves the work of the corn borer.

Plan Conference With State Board On Bridge Project

City, County, Chamber Of Commerce And Citizens Will Be Represented

HOPE TO HASTEN WORK ON BRIDGE

Matter Of Type Of Bridge Is Not Settled; Controversy Over Plan For Pier

Clyde Smith, Quincy McBride and Ira Ramsey chamber of commerce representatives today appeared before council in formal meeting and speaking in behalf of the chamber Smith requested that council send a representative to meet with the water resource power board at Harrisburg August 29 in an effort to hurry construction of the bridge across Neshannock river at North street and Neshannock avenue.

Council delegated Mayor Gillespie to attend the meeting.

Pier is Questioned.

According to Smith the engineer from the state expressed the personal opinion that the state would not approve plans of the bridge if the plans call for a pier. Smith said that he does not believe a pier which is called for in the plans would result in any damage. He said a bridge with an arch would not conform to the appearance or enhance the appearance of the residential section where the structure is to be located.

Smith said that the chamber of commerce and county commissioners had agreed to send representatives to meet with the board and the chamber of commerce would select a property owner residing along the river front or one interested in property Therefore Smith said it would be the correct move by council for a member to be delegated to represent the city.

Councilman Reeves presented a resolution which resolved that "whatever plans the county shall adopt and the state approve will be satisfactory to the city of New Castle." The resolution was amended to read that Mayor Gillespie represent council at the meeting. The resolution was adopted.

Will Not Debate In Calvary Church

Dr. John R. Straton Bars Church As Place For Debate With Gov. Smith

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Dr. John Roach Straton in a statement on his proposed debate with Governor Al Smith over the statement by the pastor that Governor Smith was "the deadliest foe of moral progress and political wisdom in America today," bars the use of Calvary Baptist church, of which Dr. Straton is the pastor, as the place of meeting.

Previously Dr. Straton had accepted the challenge of the governor and said he would repeat the charge and allow the governor to answer him in the pulpit of Calvary church provided the debate could be repeated in St. Patrick's cathedral, at the same time he suggested that a larger auditorium, such as Madison Square Garden, be obtained for the discussion in order to accommodate the large crowd that would be attracted.

In Dr. Straton's latest statement he says that his former acceptance naming his own church and St. Patrick's cathedral, was made in a "jocular vein" and that under no circumstances could he permit his own church to be used for a purely political discussion.

Dr. Straton says he stands ready to meet Governor Smith at any other place and at any time except on the "Lord's day". It also is understood that the trustees of Calvary church have refused to permit the debate in the church.

Hoover Receives Many Messages Of Commendation

Stand On Prohibition Especially Brings Many Messages Of Approval

WET-DRY ISSUE CAMPAIGN FACTOR

Despite Hoover's Personal Desires, Issue Takes Place In Campaign

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON

(Copyright, 1928, by International News Service)

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., Aug. 13.—Herbert Hoover ,dry; Alfred E. Smith, wet!

For the first time since its adoption eight years ago, prohibition today became a major issue in a Presidential election with Herbert Hoover, the Republican nominee, definitely committed to the outlawry of intoxicating liquors. The issue will be joined 10 days hence when Governor Alfred E. Smith, the Democratic nominee, declares himself for liberalization of the Volstead act.

Opposes Repeal

Hoover today stood on record as opposed to repeal of the 18th amendment, as pledged to efficient enforcement of the Volstead act, as opposed to nullification of the 18th amendment through liberalization of the Volstead act, and as pledged to the correction of all abuses of the prohibition statutes.

In drafting this stand on prohibition for his acceptance speech, International News Service learned on the highest authority Hoover believed he was "burning all his bridges behind him" so far as prohibition is concerned. The Republican nominee believed he had definitely committed himself to the dry side of the prohibition question. This, at least, was his purpose, according to unimpeachable authority.

The nominee, however, did not and does not desire to battle out the campaign on the prohibition issue. He looks upon prohibition as a "great moral experiment", as he publicly stated, and feels it should be decided on a non-partisan basis and not as a part of any political campaign. The

Believe Note From Amundsen Is "Hoax"

Note Washed Ashore In Bottle At Rottum Island Is Taken For "Hoax"

(International News Service)

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 13.—A bottle was washed ashore today at Rottumeroog, Rottum Island, containing a message signed "Roald Amundsen," but it is believed to be a hoax.

The message in the bottle follows: "Latham one point seven point 28 degrees 23 minutes east, Roald Amundsen."

Belief that the message is false was based upon the fact that the writer failed to give both latitude and longitude. It is thought that Amundsen would have specified his position exactly if he had actually written the note.

The explorer was in a French Latham seaplane when he disappeared with five companions in June.

Returns To New Castle After 52 Years' Absence; Is Amazed At Large City

Returning to New Castle after having been away for over 52 years is the experience of Mrs. James Boyd, who lived here when the city was a village with no street cars, and who has resided in Chicago, Ill., since 1876 where she moved when a little girl.

When the reporter asked Mrs. Boyd if New Castle had changed, she replied, "Oh my yes, it certainly has." Although Mrs. Boyd was but a small girl when her family moved from here to Chicago, she remembers vividly many things about the little old village of New Castle.

Mrs. Boyd's home was out along the old car tracks that went to Cascade Park by way of Hamilton street on the South Side. Since her visit here she has taken a ride out in an automobile, which by the way, was the first time she ever rode to her girlhood home in a motor vehicle, and found her girlhood home in near ruins.

In those days, said Mrs. Boyd, it was called "Punkintown" but I don't know what they call it now. There were several houses, possibly eight or ten in the little group that formed the village. It was quite a little distance in those days from the center of the town.

Stresemann Will Sign Treaty For German Republic

Foreign Minister Stresemann To Go To Paris To Sign War Outlaw Treaty

(International News Service)

BERLIN, Aug. 13.—Foreign secretary Gustav Etresemann will go to Paris in person to sign the American anti-war treaty on behalf of Germany, it was learned today. Formal announcement to this effect is expected within the next few days.

France has invited Germany to participate in the conference on August 27 when the pact will be signed and the German foreign office will send its acceptance before the end of the week.

It is felt here that Dr. Stresemann will have an opportunity to discuss reparations with the American secretary of state, Frank B. Kellogg and Foreign Minister Briand, of France, even if the conversations are only informal.

There is a disposition to believe that Secretary Kellogg will be sounded out upon the suggestion that an international conference be called next year to take up both reparations and war debts. While the United States may discuss reparations it is believed doubtful that the American government will consent to a discussion of war debts.

ering in force and traveling towards the Florida coast.

Many Are Rescued

Coast guards all along the coast from Maryland to Long Island were kept busy rescuing nearly 100 persons who had been caught in small boats. In Delaware Bay several boats were sunk and the persons on board had narrow escapes from death.

A motor boat which put out from Toms River, N. J., with five persons on board, is missing.

The steamer Innoko, bound for Philadelphia from Rotterdam, picked up a man off the coast who was clinging to the wreckage of a schooner.

Heavy damage was done to beach resorts along the Long Island Coast. At Long Beach one of the most fashionable winter resorts on the Long Island coast, huge waves ripped away portions of the board walk.

A four ton whale was washed ashore at Mantoloking, N. J., it was believed to have been killed by the propeller of a ship. It was cast upon the beach amid the storm wreckage.

Reports from the south state that the floods which followed the earlier storms in that district are receding.

MANY SEE CORN BORER EXHIBIT AT THE NEWS

Plant Industry of the Department of Agriculture were present during the demonstration and answered the many questions that were put to them. The three, R. P. Wolslayer, Joseph Ryburn and Fred Bonnell have been engaged in inspection of Lawrence county.

In Wilmington township, 8 fields were found with corn borer and 11 without. In Pulaski township, 25 were found with it and 6 without. In Neshannock township, 9 were found with it and 6 without. In Union township 9 were found with it and 2 without. In Shenango township 3 were found with it and 14 without. In North Beaver township 9 were found with it and 14 without. From their inspection it seems that the corn borer is working southward and farmers of the county must exert themselves or the pest will increase.

Many stalks of corn were in the lobby, all of them showing the various stages of the corn borer, and a number of specimens were shown in bottles. Much interest was shown in the demonstration and it is probable that similar demonstrations will be conducted in various counties.

from these three Democratic leaders in mapping out his coming campaign. It is known that Smith has a high regard for the political sagacity of Senator Walsh and that he will be guided to a large extent in the campaign by any advice which the Montana senator may offer.

In inviting George and Daniels to confer with him the governor is understood to have told his advisers that he feels they are especially qualified to picture to him the political situation below the Mason-Dixon line.

Undecided On South.

Whether Smith will make one or two campaign speeches in the south will depend largely upon the information given him by the two southern leaders. Several national Democratic leaders are said to have recently written Smith, suggesting that he include some of the southern states in his campaign itinerary.

Leading the farm chiefs to the conference today will be George N. Peek of Moline, Ill., who claims to be the spokesman for a million farmers of the middle west Peek, normally a Republican, announced recently that he would support Governor Smith.

The conference between Smith and the farm leaders was arranged by Peek and is looked upon as his first move to deliver the farm vote of the middle west to the Democratic ticket.

Farm leaders who are expected to come to Albany with Peek include the following: Earl C. Smith, president of the Illinois Agricultural association; Frank W. RETURNS TO NEW CASTLE AFTER 52 YEARS' ABSENCE

Amazed at City.

She was amazed on her visit to behold a city with factories smoking, railroads and street cars along with the large territory that New Castle covers. She has driven about the city and marvels at the beautiful buildings that stand where there were only cow pastures when she left for the west.

In those days, New Castle was small. There were only a few railroad tracks winding up through the valley and there were no street cars. The streets were not paved and travelling through town in the wet weather was somewhat like the traffic on the worst of the smaller country roads during the winter and spring months.

Washington street was just the average dull street of any small town during the seventies. Horses and buggies were tied to hitching posts and an automobile was not even imagined or heard of. The steam locomotive was the sight to look at those days, said Mrs. Boyd.

There were only two dry goods stores on Washington street at the time that Mrs. Boyd left the city. Of course they handled other miscellanies but they were called dry goods stores. There were a few other little stores, liveries and of course the old time saloon which littered every city and town in those days.

Mrs. Boyd says that even though she knew nothing would be the same and that every modern invention would be here, her memories of the old town were still with her and she had hoped for a few of the old sights. Thinking of the old sights had not made her realize it as the modern city that she had heard it was.

We hear of New Castle often in Chicago, said Mrs. Boyd but even that does not stop my amazement of the growth of the city in the past 52 years.

Mrs. Boyd and her husband are visiting here for a few days with Mr. and Mrs. J. Lee Cooper of East Long avenue.

Republican nominee does not look upon the Volstead act as "perfect". He feels there should be an impartial investigation of prohibition, its problems and abuses, methods of enforcement and means of correcting abuses. When the "facts" are learned, he is ready to have a new enforcement act placed on the statute books which will carry out the purpose of the 18th amendment—namely, the prohibition of the sale, manufacture or transportation of intoxicating liquors.

Should Investigate

Hoover's position can be summarized in these words: "If the Volstead act is not workable, we should have an investigation to learn how we can make it a success."

Hoover, in his speech Saturday, believed he cleared up all misunderstanding about his position on prohibition. He was said to feel there is no need of further discussion of the question by him. If he does speak on the subject again during the campaign, it will be only because the public has become confused about it and in that event Hoover will declare himself so dry as to leave no doubt in any man's mind.

There was considerable turmoil here over the week-end about Hoover's prohibition stand, due to the action of one of his advisers in giving out an unauthorized "wet" interpretation of his speech. This self-appointed "spokesman" said Hoover really stood for liberalization of the Volstead act, much like Governor Smith, and had tried to so assert himself in the speech. When Hoover learned of this interpretation word was passed out from his headquarters that the "spokesman" had been permanently silenced.

Hoover's Attitude

Hoover's attitude toward prohibition can be understood if his career is studied. He was raised a Quaker and as a child was taught in that faith's rigid creed that drinking was a physical blight and a moral sin. As a youth, in mining camps, he saw the vicious side of drunkenness and the saloon evil. He lost some of his moral scruples against intoxicating liquors traveling about the world, but he welcomed the 18th amendment.

He termed it a "noble" social experiment. Since its adoption he carefully avoided homes where liquor was served at the table in defiance of the law. His closest social friends in Washington are known as "teetotalers". He is a passionate defender of the constitution and as such has no respect for men who defy any portion of it.

Thus far, Hoover is unprepared to say whether or not prohibition is a success. He believes it is still an experiment, and as such should have a fairer and longer test. At heart he opposes prohibitory legislation of all kinds, due to his Quaker training. He believes in social correction by persuasion and not by compulsion, but wants a better test of the dry law before he commits himself on the question of its success as a "great social and economic experiment".

The nominee received hundreds of congratulatory telegrams over the week-end, most of which specifically praised his stand on prohibition.

Hoover will rest here until Thursday night, when he begins his return trip to Washington. He will spend Friday in Los Angeles, Monday in Topeka, visiting Senator Curtis, three days in Iowa and reach Washington about August 26.

Ex-Senator Owen Denies Opposition On Religious Ground

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—Ex-Senator Owen of Oklahoma, who recently threw over the Democratic party to support Herbert Hoover, today denied his opposition to Governor Al Smith for president was based on religious grounds.

"I have never criticized 'Tammany—the Catholic,'" he said in a statement replying to Senator Edwards (D) of New Jersey. "I am notoriously tolerant but I do not approve the senator's unfair political appeal to American Catholics on the ground Tammany is Catholic and belongs to that church and that no one dare criticize Tammany without being charged with criticizing the chuch itself and charged with intolerance and religious bigotry.

"It seems to me to be the depth of political depravity for machine politicians to hide behind the altars of Christ and steal the robes of his self-sacrificing ministers with which to snitch the votes of the innocent and faithful children of the church.

"Thoughtful Catholics might well object to such improper use of their sacred, spiritual relationships."

HOOVER LAUNCHES CAMPAIGN

WITH the notification ceremony on Saturday afternoon, and his notable address accepting the Republican party nomination for the presidency of the United States, Hebert Hoover, successfully inaugurates his campaign for the highest office in the world.

While the candidate had many subjects that he desired to discuss on the eve of the memorable campaign that is now under way, he was of necessity compelled to touch upon only part of them. Others are to be handled later in the campaign.

But what was said by the candidate in the speech of acceptance dealt in no uncertain terms with several of the leading issues that are before the American people today, farm relief, the tariff, and the eighteenth amendent. In each there was a clear cut and concise presentation of where the candidate stands.

Mr. Hoover made it very plain that he does not favor the Eighteenth amendment, and stands for the efficient enforcement of the laws that are enacted thereunder. He pronounces to be nullification, a modification of the enforcement laws which would permit that which the Constitution forbids. He concedes the right of any one to seek to amend the Constitution, but it must be done in the straightforward manner provided by the Constitution itself. What he denies is the right to destroy the purposes of the Constitution by indirection.

On the matter of farm relief, practical workable suggestions are embodied, and there is no man in the country so well prepared to handle the agricultural problem as Mr. Hoover, we believe.

On the tariff, he is for protection, of course. And he is for that protection which will insure continued employment of the American workingman. The tariff is a vital issue to the workingman, the farmer and all other wage earners in America today. Continuance of the Republican principle of the protective tariff is necessary in the coming years if employment is to be given to the millions of workingmen and women of the nation. That's the long and short of the tariff problem.

Mr. Hoover emphasized that in the past seven years America has been in the reconstruction era after the war. Now the time has come to enter the construction era. And there are millions of Americans who believe that Mr. Hoover is the man best fitted to carry on as the head of this great nation during this vital period. His progressive ideas, his commanding ability, his vast experience with great problems, and his wonderful grasp of public affairs, are all exemplified in his address of acceptance, and give assurance that no mistake will be made in electing Herbert Hoover as the next president of the United States.

In his address he placed his campaign on a distinctly high level. It is a thoughtful message, one full of practical common sense and adds immeasurably to our idea that no American citizen at the present time is as splendidly fitted for the presidency of the United States, as Herbert Hoover, the Republican party candidate.

NO MERCY FOR ARMED THUGS

THE trustees of the Indiana state prison have taken a practical method of discouraging crimes of violence in that state. Embezzlers, thieves, forgers and even burglars will still be paroled when their cases warrant it, but the criminal who uses violence or carries a gun may expect to serve in full the sentence imposed upon him.

Henceforth the trustees will not recommend for pardon or parole any individual serving a sentence under a first degree charge. Furthermore, they will reject all applications for relief for prisoners who used or carried weapons when committing bank or payroll robberies, holdup or burglaries. For all crimes of violence the board's policy will be to carry out the sentence of the court.

That the board means business is indicated from its wholesale refusals of parole applications. Since the policy has been in effect it has been carried out to the letter.

This method of attacking the criminal problem holds much promise. The hope of an early parole certainly encourages crimes for big stakes.

The armed criminal is a desperate menace. Possession of a weapon gives him an overwhelming advantage over his victim and for that reason false courage. He loses this in face of danger to himself and does not hesitate, as a rule, to shoot his way out. More and more, public opinion is demanding that the criminal be treated as roughly as he treats his victims.

Statistics show 25,000;000 cases of illness annually because more are not prevented.

DAILY HAUNTS

An old southern planter was discussing the hereafter with one of the colored servants. "Sam," he said, "if you die first, I want you to come back and tell me what it's all like over there. If I die first, I'll come back and tell you what it's like."

"Dat suits me, massa," replied the old negro, "but if you dies first, Ah wants you to promise me dat you'll come back in de daytime."

What would you know about the roads in this vicinity if it were not for the local automobile club? Not a detour or bridge out is not reported and this information is valuable to all motorists. And still you do not belong to make the club more influential by a big membership.

Taking the Central Fire station from East street right next to the police department is going to make it sort of lonesome for the firemen down on South Jefferson street in a district that is about he quietest in the city. The police department will also have less excitement now that the fire department is gone.

It is claimed that Mr. Heeney in his recent fisticuff with Mr. Tunney was more or less incapicated for a real fistic struggle on account of his having licked up too many scuttles of suds before the fight. In the old days being filled up with suds made the holder of it even fight more. Mr. Heeney will know better next time.

TODAY'S STORYETTE.

"Officer! A man just stole my car! Did you see which way he went?"

"Wat it a Bloole Sedan?"

"No a Junkett sport roadster."

"Oh, a Junkett! Let's see now, yellow with white spots?"

"Yes, yes."

"With a coupel of extra tires?"

"Yes, and it had the top down?"

"And it had a motormeter on the radiator cap?"

"That's it! Which way did he go?"

"Did it have a spotlight in the windshield?"

"Yes, how long ago did you see it?"

"I didn't see it at all but it must have been a beauty."

Now that woman claims to be man's equal, she soon will be saying "The female of the species is more heady than the male."

If we had a grievance against a utility we would go to the office of that particular company and lay our complaint before the management of it and would not run to the city council, the newspaper or a civic club before first asking the company to make good on our request. The places some people go for relief is the place where it can be most easily secured.

The mistaken are always to be pitied but none so much as those who mistake energy for ability.

On Saturday evening at Palo Alto, Cal., a hundred thousand people gathered in what they call the bowl there and listened to Mr. Hoover being told he was IT for President of the United States. After several men told him how good he was and that he was nominated, Mr. Hoover said right off the bat, "I ACCEPT", and everybody yelled. Some thought he wouldn't take it. Instead of waiting until he said all the nice things about what he would do when elected, he said right the very first thing that he would do the right thing by everybody. The Democrats did not laugh his stuff off, and that makes us think they were worried about what he said.

The people who own the best and most jewelry never make vulgar display of it.

When we go into many states in this country and see the rough stuff and unnecessary work pulled off on Sundays we come back to good old Pennsylvania and thank God we live in a state where the blue laws prevent the desecration of the Lord's Day—and we are not claiming very much for ourselves at that.

A young man in Wisconsin is going to leave a growing insurance business to go on the trip with Byrd to the Anarctic. This may be classed perhaps as a case of pleasure before business—or something. Surely nothing of value is coming from a trip to the South pole. They will not even be able to bring a piece of it or a picture of it back. There is more genuine substance in an ordinary bean pole than there is in the North and South poles combined.

Tomorrow the Reynoldstown school reunion takes place at the Aiken school on Pearson street. Every year a great crowd of the old boys and girls meet there and tell yarns of the long ago and often there are tears of joy when some meet who have not seen each other for often as long as fifty years. It's a great day for a lot of folks. If you attended that school prior to 1890 they will be looking for you along about one o'clock in the afternoon when the school bell rings.

All the candidates for president and vice president except Gov. Smith are great fishermen. President Coolidge also being one that would sooner fish than eat. No doubt Gov. Smith likes to eat fish.

The things that most people want most are the things they can not get. We can all get lots of things we don't want without any effort.

The left hind foot of an Alabama "grave yard rabbit" is a good luck charm sent to Gov. Smith, with two inscriptions on it, as follows! "Alabama will go 100 per cent Democratic," and "Good luck to Governor Al. Smith." Now if that came from some Northern state it would cause some uneasiness among us Republicans. That rabbit foot stuff is the bunk also.

Well, Mr. Hoover has been told that he is a candidate for president of the United States and he will, no doubt, govern himself accordingly from now on. Hoover is about the best that has ever been told that good news.

In quite a few cities in this country night parking of cars after certain unearthly hours is prohibited. There must be something wrong with that custom because so many cities are against it.

HOW TRIVIAL A MOSQUITO BITE SEEMS WHEN YOU REMEMBER THE TIME A SNAKE JUST MISSED YOU.

Do you know why so many women begin to grow plump soon after they marry?

Do yon know why men begin to wear larger belts at the age of 40 or thereabouts?

Well, do you know why idiots usually are the picture of health and why insane people usually live long?

The women feel safe; they are free of anxiety for the morrow. The men have established themselves and feel secure. The idiots and the mad can't worry.

It is a demonstratable fact that anxiety affects not only the mind but the heart, stomach, liver and kidneys. It does more than any other single factor to rob mankind of abundant health and happiness.

That being true it is difficult to understand why an age devoted to the elimination of disease and the promotion of health should make so little effort to overcome the folly of worry.

For worry is folly and the most costly of follies. It is a vice also and like other vices it feeds on itself. As it reduces health and efficiency and earning capacity it finds more and more reason to justify itself.

How to overcome it? Well, to overcome a disease first isolate the germ. Find the cause.

The cause of worry is a temporary or chronic confusion of values.

Missionaries in China worried about the lack of money to carry on their work. The war wrecked all their plans and endangered their lives and money seemed a very trivial thing.

Mothers worried because their boys stayed out late at night. Then war took the boys to France and at once late hours seemed to afford no reason for anxiety.

A man worries about the loss of money and forgets it when the doctor tells him he has but a little while to live.

A woman worries about her social problems and forgets them when her child falls ill.

The people of the state worry about taxes but mounting taxes seem a trivial danger when the corn borer or boll weevil arrives.

A woman worries about freckles and fat but forgets both of them when her husband loses his job.

To overcome worry make comparisons. Since the cause of worry is the confusion of values eliminate the confusion. Make a list of the misfortunes really worth worrying about. The chances are ten to one your present cause of anxiety won't be in it. If it isn't any further attempt to worry will make you feel absurd and then you're cured.

The churches of England will make it a day of prayer on August 27, when the Kellogg anti-war pact is signed. A little prayer of thank by all the people of the world would be very appropriate on that occasion we think. Wars have cost to much.

Big Brains Better.
Big Business Better.
Life Held Lightly.

By ARTHUR G. BRISBANE
(Copyright, 1928, by N. Y. American, Inc.)

Mount Rokatinda, on the Island of Paloweh, Dutch East Indies, blew up in a volcanic eruption. Half the island, six villages were destroyed, a thousand killed.

News also came that three more villages were wiped out by a tidal wave caused by a submarine earthquake.

We pay little attention to these deaths far away, a thousand or fifty thousand, little difference.

But we ought to observe with gratitude how many things might happen to us that do not happen.

Raditch, Croatian statesman, murdered leader of peasants, is found to have a brain of abnormal weight, 1,459 grammes.

The average for 11,000 human brains was 1,361 grammes. All things being equal, a heavier brain is better than a lighter brain.

But one of the heaviest brains ever weighed, that of Cuvier, the great naturalist, was lighter than that of a man who died in a British poorhouse.

Possibly the man in the poorhouse was also a genius, but never had a chance.

New York has another combination. Gas companies combining in a one billion dollar merger make a few shudder and groan perfunctorily. But the old agony is missing.

A billion isn't much. Several private corporations represent four billions each, and nobody worries. It is the day of big business, the bigger the better.

If the people haven't brains enough to watch a billion-dollar gas company, they wouldn't have enough to watch two $500,000,000 concerns.

George B. Cortelyou, who will head the new concern, is intelligent as well as energetic. He knows that modern corporations find it profitable to consider public welfare.

Murderers lose their own lives lightly. In the gloomy death room at Sing Sing prison three men went out via the electric chair. One, "Handsome Dan" Graham, was a young policeman, executed for murdering a man whom he was supposed to protect on his way to the bank. He took from him $4,700 and spent it all "in one night's racket."

Another, Kalanowski, murdered a keeper in his prison. A third, George Appel, killed a police lieutenant. All went to the chair smiling. Appel remarked as he sat down, "I'll be a baked Appel soon."

Pierre S. DuPont resigns temporarily, as chairman of General Motors. Following Mr. Raskob, and like him, Mr. DuPont comes out for Gov. Smith "to end dry abuses,the illegalities and immorality of the enforcement law."

Gov. Smith is fortunate, not in the great wealth of the men that support him, which makes little difference, but in their ability as managers and organizers. They are two of the ablest business men in the United States.

Dr. Dodd, of the University of Chicago, tells the Institute of Public Affairs that the South is "at the turn of the road" and is turned toward even greater prosperity.

"New England mills have moved to North Carolina and Georgia. There are vast industrial districts from Norfolk to Richmond and from Greensboro to Atlanta. Skyscrapers rise from southern plains."

Dr. Dodd says same of the newly prosperous in the South have "voted Democratic tickets while praying for Republican success," presumably because they think the Republican party is the "big money" party.

Somebody is making money. General Motors announces for the first half of 1928, increased sales of $129,000,000 with increased net profits of $30,000,000, or $9 a share on the stock for six months, at the rate of $18 a year.

Suicides usually leave the world because they find it uninteresting. Make life interesting and they stay. When newspapers were discussing "Is suicide a crime?" the number of suicides fell off 50 per cent. They wanted to read the discussion.

Mr. M. Meletious Golden asked Police Lieut. Krinn, "why should I not commit suicide?"

The wise policeman said, "Wait until I find the book, and I will give you five good reasons."

He pretended to look for the book, asking Golden about his troubles. Presently the latter was in the ambulance on his way to safety.

QUEER PEOPLE

Usually you get along better when you conform.

No matter how radical your ideas it is less trouble for the most part to act as other people do.

Nobody wants carved on his tombstone the epitaph, "Here lies a man who dared to go to the Grand Opera in his shirt sleeves."

There are times, however, when we must assert our individuality. This is true particularly in our intellectual and moral life. Whoever will not dare to do right and to adhere to what he believes the truth no matter what other people think or do, is not much of a man.

I have always had a liking for queer people.

You can never tell what they are going to do. They may soar or flop, sprout wings or horns, write a masterpiece or go crazy.

If statistics could be gathered, I suppose they would show that nine out of ten queer people are queer and nothing more.

But you never know when you have hold of a world beater, so when you see those whom their neighbors think queer, you always have an element of the uncertain.

It is like watching for a fire cracker to go off. Many are fizzes, but once in a while there is a real explosion.

Washington, D. C., never knew how to take Lincoln until after he died. He was always considered a little absurd to the last.

Then there was the poet Wordsworth, whose country neighbors thought he acted so strangely as he walked abroad composing his poems that they had the government send down detectives to watch him. It

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

STORY IN FIGURES

It is said that the present 1928 crop of wheat is very large, so large in fact that it is expected to be selling for a dollar a bushel before January 1st, 1929.

If the crop is as large as it is represented, no doubt the price of wheat will fall for the average farmer will not or cannot store his crop. If he has foresight enough to finance the storing of his wheat against the day of a good market, he would make a lot of money. Many great wheat farmers do this.

The story of the 1927 crop is interesting in this particular. Stocks of wheat of the 1927 crop in interior mills and elevators of the United States on July 1, 1928, were reported by the Department of Agriculture to be 18,856,000 bushels. This compares with stocks of July 1, 1927, of 21,776,000 bushels.

The Department stated that stocks in the States east of the Mississippi River were 4,565,000 bushels, as compared with 7,910,000 bushels for 1927. In the states lying between the Mississippi River and the Rocky Mountains stocks this year were 10,466,000 bushels as compared with 11,451,000 bushels a year ago. Stocks of old wheat west of the Rocky Mountains were 3,625,000 bushels, as compared with 2,415,000 bushels a year ago.

The figures tell their own story Some farmers made a lot of money out of their 1927 wheat.

THE RED GERANIUM

There is a red geranium
Full blossomed in a pot,
No silver profits from it come,
To ease its owner's lot.

This touch of beauty pays no bills,
It neither sells nor buys.
No useful purpose here it fills
That banks would recognize.

The red geranium lacks the sense
To add, subtract, divide.
Friendship with it is an expense
For care must be supplied.

A man more practical than he
Who calls this fragrance sweet
Would say that better it would be
To grow a fruit to eat.

And yet because that flower is there
This splendid fact is told;
Here dwells a man with time to spare
For something more than gold.

TUNNEY, RETIRED MILLIONAIRE

Gene Tunney, as a millionaire retiring from the prize ring to wed a society girl and begin a new career, attracts probably more attention than he did as an active champion heavyweight pugilist. His future interests the American public to a marked extent, and there is much speculation as to the field to which he will ultimately give his attention.

"He has everything—fame, fortune, a superb physique, a stout heart, a keen mind, good habits, a determination to excel, seemingly a great intellectual curiosity," in the judgment of the CINCINNATI TIMES-STAR, whose belief is that "what he makes of them all will be worth watching." The NASHVILLE BANNER thinks it is "safe to wager that he will go into something worth the while and make good at it," while the verdict of the KANSAS CITY POST is that "whether or not he will be able to live the rest of his life with equal success, no one knows, but, whatever he does, it is certain to be interesting."

"He has impressed us as being a man possessed of fine qualities. Withdrawal from the ring will bring him still higher in our estimation," says the SCHENECTADY GAZETTE, and the DULUTH HERALD observes: "Anyway, Tunney has beaten the game, and if he shows as much sense in handling his money as he does in quitting while the quitting is good, he ought to lead a useful and happy life."

The HARTFORD COURANT pays this tribute to the retiring champion's effect on the ring: "A few more years with Tunney as heavyweight champion, plus a few more years of strict boxing commissions and aboveboard promoting, and boxing might attain the irreproachable status of tennis or golf."

"He has fine qualities," according to the PHILADELPHIA RECORD, which have kept him from wanting the wild applause and the unreserved admiration of those fight fans who prefer the brutal bruiser to the skilled and gallant boxer, but his place is secure in ring history; his niche is the highest in that hall of fame." The SPRINGFIELD SUN records that he "has been a gentleman throughout his ring career" and "has shown that a fighter can be a business man also, by the way he has handled his ring earnings." The ANNISTON STAR ranks him as "different from almost every other professional fighter of the past or present."

His farewell to the ring is approved by the ANN ARBOR DAILY NEWS, with the statement: "He has a right to quit while the quitting is good. Indeed, he shows good judgment. He has been a good fighter, a square fighter—a gentleman of the ring." The SANTA BARBARA DAILY NEWS states: "The former marine will now devote his attention to study. Possibly he will find an enjoyment in his new occupation that the prize ring failed to give. He is probably the only champion who has not found retirement either in a cafe or on the stage."

"Forthright, sporting writers have hinted," remarks the ATLANTA JOURNAL, "that the present champion is not the sort of popular idol to attract large crowds, and this is a handicap the most persevering promoter would find troublesome, if his champion, being literary, fails to excite red-blooded fans, the only course left Mr. Rickard is to open a lecture circuit." The MINNEAPOLIS TRIBUNE makes the further suggestion: "As Gene likes both philosophy and fiction, both these goals ought to appeal to him; and, after all, when he looks the field over and sees the men he has to beat, how easy would the cature of either title be!"

THE MILWAUKEE JOURNAL feels that it is possible his retirement from fighting will lead "perhaps to a life of studious ease, perhaps to some other championship—in business, in a profession, in research."

"A world without competition," thinks the ST. LOUIS TIMES, "may send everybody scurrying around to find new occupations," for "it might conceivably be a dismal bore to do even the biggest business if there were no competitors to prevent one from doing it." But the SEATTLE DAILY TIMES suspects a return to the arena, explaining: "It is no far cry from the classroom to the arena. Above the droning of their lessons men have heard the call of professional sport ere this, and so might Gene if he kept his ear cocked to windward. Mr. Rickard is a persuader of eloquent tongue in these matters."

"The public will be his implacable nemesis," avers the FORT WORTH RECORD-TELEGRAM, "until he goes into the ring, finally, and loses his title by being beaten in a 'fight of the century.' It is a law. Public opinion has beaten them all—except Gene Tunney." The MONTGOMERY ADVERTISER is impressed by the fact that "the boxing world is bewildered, chagrined, flabbergasted," as it comes in contact with a champion who was "boxing to make a fortune so that he could retire and indulge his finer tastes. He made the fortune, and

Girl Beauty Winner Will Aid Her Mother In Regaining Health

(International News Service)

POINT MARION, Pa., Aug. 13.—Balancing her mother's grim fight for health against a two-weeks trip in comfort and luxury to Atlantic City as Carmichael's beauty contest winner, 15-year-old Marguerite Halfin has decided to trade her trip for money to buy back her mother's health.

With an infectuous smile, Marguerite captivated the judges in Carmichael's fair beauty contest who awarded her first place which meant two weeks of carefree happiness—all expenses paid—at America's famous playland.

It was with a determined smile however, that pretty Margeurite marched to the officials of the Fair association and asked that she be allowed to trade the trip for cash so that her mother could undergo an operation.

For four years Marguerite's mother has been battling to stave off death and to educate her two daughters.

She has been seriously ill with a throat affliction and has sacrificed the money for an operation for her daughter's education.

Now she is to be repaid by Marguerite who cheerfully claims she is going after more laurels and that maybe yet she will be able to go to Atlantic City. She plans to enter the Gallatin Gordon beauty contest at Uniontown.

Treasurers In 54 Counties Of State Get Supply Of New Special Permits

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Aug. 13.—Treasurers of 54 counties today were given permission by the State Game commission to again issue licenses to hunters. The issuance was stopped when the commission was informed by the attorney general's office that a special license would be necessary to shoot doe during the open season next November.

The commission has authorized the issuance of 114,992 special doe licenses in the entire state. Allotments by counties were made public here last night. The number of doe which may be killed in each county will be eight times that of the legal bucks reported killed in the season last year.

The special doe licenses will be issued only to those who already have obtained a regular hunter's license. Each will cost $2.00 and the doe license will be good only in the county in which it is issued. County treasurers have been instructed to accept applications for doe licenses and to issue them when available in the order in which the requests are received. The special plates showing permission to kill a doe will not be available until late this month.

Notifies Police.

Then Mr. Edmondson ran to the corner of Washington and Mercer streets, where with Officers M. J. Young, Hanna and Thompson in a police car they gave chase as far as New Bedford without seeing the Ohio car. It is thought at the police station that the car the robbers used was probably stolen.

Early Sunday morning Mr. Norman, one of the owners, checked the loss and placed it at $650 or more. The loot included three lavelliers, five leather wallets and key containers, five watches, one compact, nine cigar lighters, ten rings, six metal watch bands and one string of pearl beads.

Sunday afternoon Mr. Edmundson called the police department and said that the machine first cruised past the jewelry store and made a right hand turn onto Washington street. Then the car turned up Apple way. All this time a rather tall man stood on the corner of Washington and Mill streets, employed, as the police think, as a look-out. Mr. Edmondson then walked as far as the intersection of Apple way and East Washington street. He heard a crash of breaking glass and ran back to the corner of Mill and Washington streets. There he saw a man with a long top coat and a cap running to jump into the machine. Then it was that Mr. Edmonson ran to inform Officer Allgier.

Sunday afternoon Captain of Police Ed Elder, together with Officer Longstreth and Mr. Norman, went as far as Warren, O., looking for the men who did the robbery, but their search was fruitless. This morning police detectives were working on several other clues beside the license plate of the Ohio car.

"It is too bad, but the men hit the wrong window," was the statement made this morning by Mr. Norman. "The other one contained merchandise almost twice as valuable as the one which they broke. And, in their hurry, they overlooked one diamond laveller, three expensive Elgin watches a fine wrist watch and an exceptional diamond ring."

Police believe that three men were employed to do the job. One drove the machine, one broke the window and got the loot, and one was employed as a look-out on the corner of Mill and Washingotn streets.

Enjoyable Events Feature Of Life At Y. W. C. A. Camp

Next Week Is Last Week Of Summer Camp Season At Camp East Brook

This is the seventh week of the camp season at the Y. W. C. A. summer camp at East Brook. Next week is the eighth week and last week of the camp season. Camp is filled to capacity for this week, but there still remain a few vacancies for next week. Persons desiring to go to camp next week should call the Y. W. at once and register.

The girls in camp each week are having most enjoyable times, with all kinds of outdoor sports. As part of the fun of last week a masquerade party was an event of Thursday evening.

Besides the usual pirates, dominoes, ballet dancers, old-fashioned ladies and gypsies, there were some very original costumes. A Turkish bride was dressed in Turkish towels and Turkish slippers. A farmer and his girl friend, the farmer attired in a checked suit, a perennial red tie, green shirt and purple socks; the girl friend dressed in a purple bodice with green skirt, red stockings and blue shoes. The prize of the evening was awarded to a lady and her daughter, who each weighed three hundred pounds, with the stoutness made of pillows. The mother was dressed in a house dress and dust cap, the daughter in a bathing suit with Miss America across the front. They introduced themselves as Mrs. Aspirin Tablet and the daughter as Sal Hepatica. Dancing and refreshments brought the evening's fun to a climax.

Former Residents Here From West

James E. Casey And George Kennelly Visitors From California

After an absence of 18 years from this city, Mr. and Mrs. James E. Casey of Oakland, Cal., are visiting here, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Louis B. McAneny and other relatives and friends.

For a number of years Mr. Casey was employed here by the Baltimore & Ohio railroad as car distributor. Leaving here he went to California where in San Francisco he has charge of the Western Union Telegraph company's lines.

Over the week-end he was visited by his brother, M. J. Casey of Buffalo, N. Y., who is city passenger agent for the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh Railway there. Mr. and Mrs. Casey will stay here this week in order to attend the Old Timers' picnic in Cascade park on Wednesday and will then go to Buffalo to visit his brother.

By a coincidence, George Kennelly of Los Angeles, Cal., is vlisting here also at the present time. Mr. Kennelly was employed by the Baltimore & Ohio railroad at the same time as Mr. Casey, Mr. Kennelly being stenographer to the superintendent H. H. Temple, at the same time Mr. Casey was car distributor.

Mr. Kennelly is now the chief stenographer of the courts of Los Angeles, and in his duties there handled the famous Aimee Semple McPherson trial and the trial of Hickman, the child slayer. Mr. Kennelly is visiting his mother on Pine street.

result of severe injuries and lacerations of the head; Mrs. Bessie Dase, aged 19, of East Pittsburgh, who is in the Shenango Valley hospital suffering from lacerations of the head and left arm, and Rudolph Hammermeinster, aged 40, of East Pittsburgh, who is also in the Shenango Valley hospital with severe lacerations of the head and left arm.

Fails to Take Curve.

As far as can be learned, the wrecked car was driven by Mr. Hammermeinster, and a second car, in which Mr. Dase and other relatives were riding, were enroute along the road early Sunday morning and in some manner Mr. Hammermeinster failed to notice the curve and his machine went straight into a telephone pole. Mr. Hammermeinster was accompanied by his niece and her little daughter and all were injured and rushed to hospitals in this city by persons who happened along at the time of the accident. The second car, driven by Mr. Dase, was behind the other car and did not participate in the accident.

At the hospitals this morning Mr. Hammermeinster and Mrs. Dase were reported to be showing a decidedly improved condition, while the little child is still in a very critical condition as a result of its injuries. One of its injuries is a severe laceration and bruise on the back of the head, which it was feared for a time might indicate a fracture of the skull. An X-ray picture of the injury failed to show any fracture and some hopes of the recovery of the little girl are now entertained.

Doctor Ready To Operate On Siamese Twins

Siamese Twins Ready To Barter Lives For Love In Doubtful Operation

SKILLED SURGEONS APPEAR SKEPTICAL

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Ready if need be to barter their lives for love, Mary and Margaret Gibb, seventeen, Holyoke, Mass., Siamese twins, were to be cut apart today or tomorrow at Park West hospital.

Decision to operate to severe the twins, joined at the base of the spine, was announced by Dr. Francis P. Weston following a conference with several other distinguished surgeons.

Dr. Weston in deciding to make the operation is setting the heavy stake of his professional reputation in the scales, for other surgeons, pointing to the fact that no such operation has ever been completely successful, say it cannot be done.

One twin, perhaps both, may die, or one or both may be crippled for life as a result of the operation, it is said by skeptics.

Dr. Weston himself only gives them a fifty-fifty chance.

But the twins, it is said, are determined to go through with the operation for Margaret is in love and wishes to be separated from her sister so that she may be married. Mary is willing to take the risk.

No comment could be obtained today from the hospital on the scheduled operation. "The matter is entirely in Dr. Weston's hands" it was said.

Pay Final Tribute To Former Mascot

Funeral Services Are Conducted At Church In Philadelphia Today

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 13.—Hundreds of persons from all walks of life united in paying tribute to little Hughie McLoon, former mascot of the Athletics, at the funeral services conducted at St. Monica's church today. About 15,000 filed by his casket last night at his mother's home.

Among the floral tributes piled high in the little parlor of his home were those from Connie Mack, manager of the Athletics, one from the team, John Shibe, owner of the A's, and Ted Lewis and Edna Leedom, stage celebrities whose orders were cabled from Europe. Texas Guinan, New York night club hostess, also sent a floral wreath.

McLoon was shot to death by gunmen Wednesday night as he stood talking to Joseph Fries and William Meister. The others were wounded. Police believe the little hunchback was the innocent victim of a gang war as Fries was known to have been marked for death by an underworld gang.

And good old Samuel Johnson, who touched every post as he went down the street, who always desired to come out of a door with the same foot forward and who would go back up the steps to come out again if he missed the first time. As queer a fish as ever lived. But the great man of his time in English literature.

Socrates was ridiculed and laughed at for his odd ways by the wits of Athens; Joan of Arc her neighbors held a little cracked when she told them of the voices; Saint Francis of Assisi was not taken seriously when he talked of "his little sisters, the larks."

Edison was a queer young man, getting fired for rigging up a device for electrocuting cockroaches and thus bringing undesirable publicity to his office, and for similar outlandish pranks; the noted electrician Steinmetz was a singular little man who wanted to live in a house without a square inch of lawn.

The list is long. You never know when the person you think queer may prove to be a genius.

Jean Jacques Rousseau said of himself: "I don't know whether I am better than my fellows, but I know I am different."

Those who can truthfully say that of themselves bear watching, for it is such different people that usually do things. The queer people are the ones who make history for the ordinary ones.

MOTOR BUSES MUST OBEY RULES OF MOTOR CODE

HARRISBURG, Pa., Aug. 13.— The menace of the speeding motor bus on the highway of Pennsylvania was hit in a statement issued today by S. Edward Gable, of Lancaster, president of the Pennsylvania Motor Federation. "Speed in travel is essential in these busy days", said Mr. Gable, "but highway safety is pre-eminent. The bus has its place on the road, but it must hold to that place and not overstep the limitations of the law in speed, nor in any other phase of operation. The men in charge of operation of these bus lines and the man behind the wheel of every bus must see to it that the provisions of the traffic laws are held to strictly at all times, and under all circumstances.

"The motor bus has taken a place along side the railway train and the trolley car as a means of overland transportation. In the past year throughout the nation busses representing several billion dollars in invested capital carried nearly three billion passengers. In Pennsylvania, as in other states, the bus has found wide public favor. But with the widespread utilization of the bus as a means of travel comes the problem of highway safety, a problem that is giving the State authorities considerable concern, for all over the state there have arisen protests that busses are, in many instances, disregarding the speed laws as set forth in the motor code, and are otherwise violating the commonwealth's motor vehicle regulations.

"If the bus, as does the railway train and trolley car, moved along a private right of way, there would be no difficulty. But as it is the bus must take its place with the pleasure car, the truck and the motorcycle on the main arteries of travel. Its speed is governed by the same motor code that regulates the pleasure car and the truck. It must stop when the traffic signal is against it and move when the 'go' sign flashes. It must abide by the regulations of the road in whatever state and whatever municipality it is operating. It has no special road privileges. Yet, with it all, the bus must hold to, as closely as possible, a fixed schedule, otherwise it cannot serve the public well.

"Time must be made on the road, else the bus loses much of its utility as a common carrier. But the general safety of all other users of the highway, as well as that of the bus passengers, must at all times be taken into consideration and excessive speed and reckless operation of busses in order to hold to schedule will not be tolerated in Pennsylvania. Captain William C. Price, head of the State Motor Patrol, served notice of this recently when he ordered his men to investigate the many complaints that had come to him regarding alleged violations by many bus drivers of the State motor vehicle laws.

"The Pennsylvania Motor Federation is firmly in back of this campaign to rid the highway of the menace of the speeding bus. I realize that traffic snarls, wet highways, and, in winter, ice and snow, frequently make it difficult for motor busses to hold within a fixed rate of speed and, at the same time, cover their ground any ways near to schedule. But that is a problem the bus men must solve. Public safety demands it.

"The bus as a means of overland transportation, as well as for urban and interurban use, is comfortable, convenient and reasonable in price. It is here to stay, as its rapidly growing usage throughout the nation indicates, but it must hold to the laws governing its operation, just as do other public utility companies.

"The people of Pennsylvania will not tolerate the menace of giant busses traveling at an excessive rate of speed over the highways of the commonwealth, jeopardizing the safety of all other users of the road. The bus line operators are taking precautions to safeguard their passengers, but they must look to the safety of all on the arteries of travel.

"The state's highways are public, not private property, and all users of these roads must be safeguarded. The State Motor Patrol is to be congratulated in its efforts to put a stop to all law violations by these giants of the highway."

Oh, for the campaign of four years ago when they were doing something about keeping cool.—The Saginaw Sunday News.

"The bullets," said the Old Soldier, searching for a suitable simile, "were flying as thick and fast as the golf balls on the public links."—The Detroit News.

SUGGESTIONS FOR SOLVING CROSS-WORD PUZZLES

Start out by filling in the words of which you feel reasonably sure. These will give you a clue to other words crossing them, and they in turn to still others. A letter belongs in each white space, words starting at the numbered squares and running either horizontally or vertically or both.

A Cool Kitchen — with Electric Cookery

IN summer, when the heat seems almost unbearable, your kitchen is just as comfortable as any other room in the house as you cook on your Electric Range.

There's no need for makeshift dinners in warm weather. Electric ovens are completely insulated. The heat is kept inside where it is needed---the current may be turned off before the food is done---the stored heat completes the baking, or roasting, or braising thoroughly and "to a turn," as grandmother said.

And It Releases Your Time

Cool cooking is just one advantage of the Electric Range. Exact temperature control, just the right heat at all times, without watching or worrying, releases your time from the kitchen for other household duties—gives you time to spend with the children, to market, to be with your guests.

See an Automatic Electric Range at your Dealers or Phone 1820 and we see that you get full details without placing you under the least obligation.

PETER'S ADVENTURES in ANIMAL LAND

BY MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

THE NIGHT WATCHMAN

"What did Turnstone mean by the night watchman?" asked Sonny-Bunny, pricking up his inquisitive little pink ears. Bobolink winked at him.

"That is exactly what we wanted to know, Sonny-Bunny," chirped he. "But before we could ask him, off Turnstone flew.

"We didn't dare follow the feathered turner of stones for he had been very particular to tell us that there was no room for us on the ledge and we had no notion to bring upon ourselves the same treatment that the Gull had received. Perhaps Mrs. Turnstone might think we were enemies if we approached her nest. So we Bobolinks just had to trust to luck to have our curiosity satisfied. And it was, but not before we had a dreadful fright."

"How? What? Who frightened you?" cried Sonny-Bunny, excitedly, and Peter guessed at once by the expression on Bobolink's face that this story was going to be interesting.

"The answers to those questions come way in the middle of my tale and I want to begin at the beginning," chuckled Bobolink.

"As you may guess wife and I were pretty much tuckered out after our day's experiences and although we could have flown over the sea by the light of the moon we really did need a rest and I was mighty glad that Mrs. Bobolink had decided we did. So after Turnstone left us we set about looking for a comfortable bed.

WE WERE GLAD TO HAVE A WARM BED INTO WHICH TO CREEP

"We were not the kind of birds who could be comfortable on the sand or in the tree tops and so we searched the shore until we found exactly what we wanted—a bunch of seaweed that had been tossed upon the sand by the waves and had lain in the sunlight so long that it was quite dry and as warm as the thickest cluster of clover. And let me tell you now, we were glad to have a warm bed into which to creep—the breeze that blew from the ocean didn't care a thing about our feathers, it cut right through them to our very marrow.

"'Brrr!' chattered wife as I cuddled down beside her. 'I never was so cold in my life. Don't you think we had better fly about a bit? I don't believe I shall ever get to sleep, my toes are almost numb!'

"'Oh, you will warm up in a moment,' said I. 'There, that's right—snuggle up closer! See the Red Ball has almost dropped into the water. There it goes now. Soon it will be quite dark. Sleepy-time for birds like you and I has come. Good night, wife dear!'"

"'Goodnight!' chirped Mrs. Bobolink, drowsily. In the twinkling of a star, we were off to Dreamland!"

Why Coal Is Black

By S. S. MYERS

A friend writing us wants to know why coal is black. This is a geological problem and somewhat difficult to explain clearly in a short article, but we will do the best we can.

Geologists tell us that while the Earth was passing through its cooling off period it was surrounded by a dense envelop of vapor, steam and clouds, just as Jupiter is today. All the elements of oxygen, nitrogen and hydrogen were forced outward from the heated surface of the globe. Coming in contact with cold space the clouds condensed into rain and poured down upon the hot surface only to be again expanded into steam. This cooling off process continued until the crust of the Earth became sufficiently cool to permit some of the water to remain on the surface—it was not all expanded into steam and clouds.

It was then that the Creator said: "Let there be a firmament in the midst of the waters to divide the waters from the waters." That which was in the form of vapor and clouds remained above, the tremendous downpour of rain gradually ceased and the water that remained on the surface sought the lower levels forming the oceans, lakes and rivers. Thus the dry land appeared and began to germinate and bring forth vegetation.

But the vegetation of that period was not such as we know today. The Earth was still enwrapped in a dark mantle of clouds through which not a ray of sunlight penetrated. Professor Lowell tells us that this was the great wood-making period. The Earth was a vast hot-house. The dense envelop of clouds kept the Sun's light and heat out and kept the Earth's heat in. It was an age of perpetual trophical summer without seasons although the Earth's axial tilt, which causes the seasons, was the same then as now. The seasons came only with the clearing of the skies and the entrance of the Sun upon the scene.

During this period, which is known as the Carboniferous Age, vegetation grew luxuriously and rank, but as there was no sunlight it was devoid of color. The Earth was enshrouded in twilight and vegetation absorbed none of the rays of light, consequently it was black or very dark. This vegetable growth consisted of what appeared like immense ferns and gigantic palmlike forests and was eventually laid waste by storms, upheavals and inundations and gradually decomposed and turned into mineral. On top of this other vegetation grew which, in turn, met the same fate. Thus were formed the coal measures, past, lignite and other mineral deposits.

In the meantime the warm waters of the oceans germinated moving life which developed into fishes, great whales and other monsters of the deep, some of which became flying fowl. Gradually the water life emerged and began to occupy the land, developing into huge animals and lizard-like monsters. The remains of many of these huge creatures became embedded in wet sandy marshes which eventually turned into solid rock where they are found today and preserved in museums of natural history in America and Europe.

How long the Age of Reptiles lasted no one knows for certain, but they all disappeared from the Earth thousands of years ago. As the Earth approached what is known as the fourth great stage of development the dense mantle of clouds began to thin, evaporate and roll away and, for the first time she looked out upon a clearing sky. The Sun now became the dominating factor on the Earth and with it came the seasons and new varieties of vegetation. With the sunlight came color and a higher order of Mammals and the world, as we know it, was beginning to be. As Professor Howe says, "We are living in the colored supplement of the world's history.

Our coal measures are the remains of those vast forests that flourished in the carboniferous age when the Earth was wrapped in a perpetual dim twilight and there was no color. The impressions of leaves, branches and even trunks of trees found in coal taken from the mines today enables us to reconstruct in imagination the great coal forests of that long past age.

City Swelters As Mercury Hits 91

Average Temperature Of Last Week Is Highest Yet Reported

With an average high temperature of 91 degrees, the week of August 5 to 11 was the hottest yet reported in Lawrence county, according to a report of the weather conditions released today from the weather bureau at the New Castle Water Company pump station.

Friday, Aug. 10, is the hottest day on record for the week, with the thermometer at 93 degrees. Only once did the high temperature go below 90 degrees, and that was on Tuesday, Aug. 7, when 87 degrees were recorded.

Nights were unusually cool, the average being 65 degrees. During the week slightly more than one inch of rain fell. Two days were clear and the rest were cloudy or partly cloudy.

Becomes most popular girl in her set

—after learning why people were unfriendly to her

FLOCKS of eager young men seek Betty—"now the most popular girl in her set."

And this is the girl who used to be so lonely, so friendless.

How did she do it? A lucky accident. She chanced to overhear a whispered conversation and found out that she, too, was guilty of "B. O."

Betty knew what that meant—Body Odor! And then she found an easy way to overcome it, too. She's never lonesome now. She's a favorite with everyone.

Easy to end "B.O."

It's hard for anyone with body odor to win popularity.

Of course, we all must perspire to live. Even on a cool day, our pores give off as much as quart of odor-causing perspiration. We don't detect this odor, our sense of smell is so used to it. But others do!

Why take chances? To keep safe just wash and bathe often with this delightful purifying toilet soap—Lifebuoy. Its bland and abundant antiseptic lather purifies pores—giving freedom from body odor.

Healthier complexions, too

This same mild, antiseptic Lifebuoy lather also purifies face pores—keeping complexions smooth, clear and glowingly fresh. Guards health, too—by removing germs. You'll learn to love Lifebuoy's pleasant clean scent, which tells you it purifies, and which vanishes as you rinse. Get some today.

Flood Control Being Studied

Army Engineers Making Study Of Allegheny And Monongahela River Basins

WILL BE SUBMITTED TO MAJOR JADWIN

By GEORGE H. MANNING.
(Washington Correspondent of The News.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 13.—A comprehensive survey with a view to controlling floods in the Allegheny and Monongahela river basins in Western Pensylvania is being made by army engineers and Major J. J. Bain district engineer of Pittsburgh, is preparing a report on the survey which will be submitted to Major General Edgar Jadwin, chief of army engineers when completed.

Major General Jadwin has just returned to Washington from a trip through the Western Pensylvania distrisct and expressed satisfaction with the progress of the study. During his trip he visited some of the proposed sites for reservoirs which are to be utilized as a means of flood control on the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers.

The flood control studies which are being made under authority of an act of congress have considered the use of the proposed reservoirs as an aid to local flood control as well as their effect on the waters of the Mississippi. Incidential power that would be developed has also been considered.

General Jadwin said he was impressed with the improvements that he found in some of the reservoir sites. The surveys will consider costs and benefits and will show the money value of benefits balanced against the values to be destroyed by the reservoirs under consideration.

Twelve reservoir projects have been under detailed study in the Allegheny and Monogahela basins and in each instance hydraulic and economic features have been worked out. The principal projects studies are the French Creek, Upper Allegheny, Tionesta Creek, Clarion River, Red Bank Creek, Mahoning Creek, Loyalhanna-Conemaugh, Youghiogheny, Cheat River, Tygart River and West Fork River.

Consideration also is being given to the advisability of turning the water of the upper Allegheny into Lake Erie instead of letting it flow down the Ohio river.

Because of the great value of property in the flood areas of the Western Pennsylvania streams the army engineers are going thoroughly into the control features of the plan. The study will give an exhaustive analysis of floods and rains that have occurred in the Allegheny and Monongahela basins during the last 768 years. These will compare with similar phenomena in France and Italy for thousands of years. Records of Rome, Italy, back to 1,000 B. C. are to be studied with a view of deducing a proper probability for Pittsburgh and vicinity.

Public Schools To Open For Fall On September 5; Two New Buildings Ready

Wednesday, Sept. 5, will be the opening day for the public schools throughout the city, according to the statement of City Superintendent Dr. C. C. Green this morning.

Many changes have been brought about in the city school system during the past year and the opening of the coming term has been looked forward to for some time by citizens.

Two New Buildings

Two new buildings will be used by the city system. The new George Washington junior high school on Euclid avenue will be open and ready for school purposes on the opening day. Previous to the start of the term the new administration building which is the result of the remodelling of the old building on East street at the rear of the North street building will be moved into; the latter part of this month and the organization will function from this headquarters.

A professional library, a long-felt need of the school system, will be located in this building. The office of the superintendent, the board of directors and other administrative offices will be located here.

Abandon Martin Gantz

The North street building will be used this year as an elementary building, as the Martin Gantz school has been abandoned. Workmen are remodelling this building at the present to suit it better for elementary needs and desk and chair furniture has been moved from the old Martin Gantz building and installed here.

At the senior high school better accommodations are afforded this year for the many students by the new addition which consists of 24 rooms, including the laboratories and special rooms.

Throughout the entire city work has been in progress all summer painting, remodelling and repairing. Painting has been done at practically all of the schools to some degree, and many of the portables have been made much more attractive by the decorating.

The Woods building in the seventh ward has been remodelled to suit domestic science and home economics purposes. At the Lawrence school an abutment has been built to stay the water from the buildings and the grounds during the rains.

Teachers to Meet

On Tuesday, Sept. 4, the day prior to the opening of school, a general teachers' meeting will be held at nine o'clock, standard time, at the senior high school, according to Superintendent Green. All teachers are expected to attend this first general meeting. At this time instructions and plans of the organization will be stated by Dr. Green.

Dr. G. C. L. Riemer, head of the Clarion State Teachers College, will address the teachers of the city at this meeting.

At the conclusion of this meeting there will be a meeting of the principals of the various city schools. They will meet with their respective teachers according to a schedule which will be announced.

No Increase in Teaching Force

According to Dr. Green, there are approximately 380 teachers employed throughout the city in the schools. The new George Washington junior high school has caused no increase in the need for teachers, as many believe, stated Dr. Green, on account of the junior high at North street having been discontinued.

As there is no registration of any sort, no exact estimate of the number of pupils that will be enrolled for the coming year is known. Dr. Green is of the opinion that there will be an increase in the number of elementary children on account of the closing of the St. Vitus parochial school.

According to estimates gleaned from promotions and other available data, approximately 1,700 pupils are expected at the Ben Franklin junior high school, 1,100 at George Washington and 1,800 at the senior high school.

Tunney Eludes Bold Reporters

Gene Tunney Leaves Lauder Country Home Wearing Disguise And Boards Train

FAILS TO ARRIVE IN NEW YORK CITY

(International News Service)

SOUTH BRISTOL, Me., Aug. 13.—Eluding a squad of newspapermen by a series of strategems including the "cornering" of the local boat market by the mother of his wealthy fiancee, Gene Tunney left Johns Island late evening for New York on the Bar Harbor Express—but failed to arrive on the train today.

Wearing a disguise which included spectacles, the retired heavyweight champion boarded the train at New Castle a few minutes before the baffled reporters arrived at the station following a wild automobile ride of 14 miles.

Tunney had been in seclusion at the summer home of his fiancee Miss Josephine Lauder on Johns Island. He was scheduled to leave for New York late today but last evening reporters learned that an earlier departure had been decided upon. Attempting to hire a boat to reach the island they discovered that Mrs. Lauder had paid all the boatmen a small fortune to tie up their boats indefinitely, thus enabling Tunney to get to the mainland without fear of detection by the newspaper men.

Not On Train.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—The Bar Harbor express which bore Gene Tunney in heavy disguise away from his retreat on the island of his fiancee, Polly Lauder, arrived here today—without the champion.

Train atendants said the $50,000,000 groom-to-be kept to himself after boarding the train at New Castle, Me., and retired early. None would say where he left the train.

Have Conference On Golf Project

Option On Site Next To City Property Will Expire On Wednesday

Council and a municipal golf course committee conferred today relative to the establishment of the 18-hole course and the point at issue is the problem of council finding money enough to commence development of the course.

James Smith, Rubert Tully and William J. Offutt, representing the golf enthusiasts, appeared before council, which met at the City building, and pointed out that the option on the 30 acres owned by Conrad Emerick expires Wednesday.

The committee said that it would agree to raise the option price of $1,000 should the council find between $6,000 and $8,000 necessary for development of the 18-hole course. The development must be started this fall so play can start next May.

Robert Tully said that the city should have something of the kind for the citizens and said the mill men favor the project. There are hundreds of persons who have promised to contribute subscriptions for memberships which would help pay for the course and make it self-sustaining.

Council said they would meet with the committee today and try to find some way of raising the money, as the city favors the creation of such a course.

Incidentally, council in formal session reported favorably from committee ordinances converting the municipal farm into a golf course and providing for its acquisition—but it will be necessary to secure the money before the ordinance can be passed, which calls for the purchase of the Conrad Emerick land.

Seven Doctors Failed: Konjola Brought Relief

Two Years Of Stomach Misery Terminated By Powerful New Medicine.

MR. JOHN B. HUNTER

Like life-giving rain after a long drouth; like sunshine after the storm, Konjola, the new medicine, is proving a boon and a blessing to scores of sufferers, in New Castle and vicinity. Daily the Konjola Man is telling eager questioners about this wonderful remedy for troubles for the victims of the dreaded rheumatism and neuritis. Those who suffer are invited—urged—to see the Konjola Man at the Love & Megown Drug Store, 204 Washington Street, New Castle. Tell him your symptoms; he will show you what Konjola has done for hundreds who once suffered as you do, and who are now well. Read, for instance the statement Mr. John B. Hunter, 1116 Dewey Avenue, this city, made to the Konjola Man.

"You can imagine", said Mr. Hunter, beaming with new health and new interest in life," what I think of Konjola when I tell you that it restored me to health after seven doctors failed to do me the least bit of good. For two years I suffered from stomach trouble. Every bit of food I ate laid like a rock in the pit of my stomach, causing terrible pains. Constipation developed, and the strongest of laxatives were necessary. Finally even these failed partially, and I was in a serious condition.

"An acquaintance told me about Konjola, and though I was about disgusted with two years of failure, I thought I might as well take one more chance. Well, two bottles of this new medicine removed all my troubles. Think of that—after doctoring for two years without result except expense. I am better and stronger already than I was before my stomach trouble started, and you can use my name to anyone who suffers as I did. I'm certainly strong for Konjola".

Reports of quick permanent and surprising recoveries like this are old stories to the Konjola Man; he hears them every day, for the delighted users of Konjola are always so grateful for quick and, in many cases, unexpected relief, that they come back to tell what Konjola has meant to their health and happiness. It is only reasonable to presume that what Konjola has done for countless thousands of others it will do for you. All Konjola asks is the privilege of making you well.

The Konjola Man is at the Love & Megown Drug Store, 204 East Washington Street, New Castle, where he is daily meeting the public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy.

Forfeits Of $140 Left With Police

Ike Simon of East Long avenue, forfeited $50 when he failed to appear at police court Sunday morning to answer a charge of being the proprietor of an establishment in which gambling was conducted. Nine visitors forfeited $10 each.

The raid on the crap game was made Saturday afternoon by Detective John Young and Officers Letera and Lockhard. They drove the police car to the rear of the pool room, and there heard bets being made and money being placed on a table. After a little difficulty, the officers got into the room, and placed the participants under arrest. Later they were released when they posted forfeits.

Start Annual Observance Of Feast Of Assumption

REV. PATRICK DiRANNA

Tonight the second annual observance of the Feast of the Assumption of the St. Vitus church and school which is being held this year under the direction of Father Patrick DiRanna will start with a parade through the principal streets of the city at 8 o'clock.

Throughout the entire week a program will be observed. The entire section of Maitland street from Mercer street to Jefferson has been granted by the city so that the crowds will not be endangered by traffic and the entire street has been decorated and lighted by electric lights.

The celebration is the result of the untiring work of the pastor of the St. Vitus church, Reverend Father Patrick DiRanna who has been working for the past two months to get things in readiness for the affair. Father DiRanna, is now in charge of the church in the absence of Father N. DeMita.

The object of Father DiRanna is to obtain funds which will enable the church to build a young men's lyceum which will give the young men somewhere other than the city streets for recreation and that will provide facilities for athletics and dramatic development.

A part of the fund will go toward the church proper with a view in mind of some day in the future of building a new and larger church in a new location.

It is also the aim of Father DiRanna to stage a celebration that will long be remembered by the Italian people of this district as the best and most complete observance of the Feast of Assumption and to surprise Father DeMita who is now touring Europe, on his return home at the growth and new work of the church's advancement.

The week's program will start on Maitland street immediately after the finish of the parade this evening. Every evening during the entire week there will be fire works and special prizes given away, states Father DiRanna.

Tomorrow and Wednesday will be the principal days of the week's celebration. There will be special band concert and fireworks.

There will also be another parade through the city. Wednesday is the day of the feast of the Assumption. Visitors will be taken through the city and shown the principle points of interest.

The peak of the week's festivities will be reached Saturday evening when a special fireworks display, acts and band concert will climax the progrom. At this time a sport roadster will be given away. A parlor suite, bed and radio are also on the list of the evening's prizes. These prizes have been donated to the church by merchants of New Castle. Thousands are expected at this time, states Father DiRanna on account of the wonderful prizes.

Each evening the vaudeville acts will hold the undivided attention of the throngs for some time.

The spaghetti supper which will be given each evening is the result of the untiring efforts of Mrs. Adeline Marcerillo who has obtained all the stuffs necessary for the suppers which will be given each evening.

Those who have helped Father DiRanna in the organization of the plans and who will aid in the carrying out of the week's program follow:

Feast committee: Gaetano Grecco, Joseph Pardonaro, Luigi Bosco, Samuel Costa and Harry Colucci.

Dining committee: Adeline Macierillo, Peppina Mele, Mary Chill, Minnie Ciazzo, Mary George, Laura Conti, Minnie Micco, Rosa Masso, Earnestina Conti, Josephine Gianni, Rosa Cestrone, Christina Catalano, Josephine Mastrangelo, Rose Fazzone, Amelia Armando, Fannie Gabeis, Clothilda Ross, Mrs. Casacchia, and Amelia Gebbia.

Filtering Plant Receives Cleaning

Grove City Water Supply Is Not Interrupted During Process

GROVE CITY, Pa., Aug. 13.—For the first time since its installation, the Grove City filtering plant was flushed and cleaned Friday. The cleaning of the sedimentary basins was scheduled for a week ago, but failure of the arrival of the material necessary to complete the work in one day made the postponement necessary.

No interruption of the service was necessary, as the clear wells and standpipes contained enough water to supply the demand until the cleaning was completed.

Barber Business Beauty Culture

(International News Service)

ERIE, Pa., Aug 13.—It's no longer called a barber business; it's strictly "beauty culture".

With the passing of the "gaboon" and barber shop loafers which came about when the women stormed and crashed the gates of this masculine retreat, went even its familiar title. The barbers who were, are not tonsorial artists.

A local barber was asked recently how the "barber business" was getting along. Insulted and peeved, the tonsorial artist shot back, "Don't call it 'barber business'. It's, a-ah, it's beauty culture."

Severe Sentence Imposed By Mayor

One hundred dollars or thirty days in jail, was the sentence imposed upon Ed Collingwood of 1116 Federal street, charged with being the keeper of a disorderly house, by Mayor William H. Gillespie at police court Sunday morning. This, according to Chief of Police C. C. Horner, is Collingwood's third appearance in as many weeks.

The arrest was made by Lieutenant Hillers, Detective John Young, and Officers Lockhard and Letera. There they report they found the man and his wife selling beer to a visitor. The wife was discharged by the mayor, while the visitor was fined $10.

COMING—EMIL JANNING in "THE LAST LAUGH"

Success Of Italian Engineers In Raising Submarine Revives Question In Congress

By GEORGE H. MANNING
(Washington Correspondent of The News.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 13.—The problem of equipping American submarines with adequate safety devices will be threshed out finally during the short session of congress which convenes in December.

This prediction was made here by members of the naval affairs committees of the senate and house whose interest in the problem has been stirred has been stirred by the feat of the Italians in raising the F-14 from 131 feet of water in 34 hours.

"I am thoroughly convinced that the S-4 was sunk and 40 precious lives lost through the gross neglect and stupidity of those directing our naval strategy," Senator Edward I. Edwards of New Jersey, member of the senate naval affairs committee, declared.

"I believe that the navy was lacking in progressiveness in not having the same means that the Italian government has to quickly raise submarines that go to the bottom.

"It is the duty of the senate committee on naval affairs to take up this subject at the coming session, to require every safeguard for the men that go out in the submarines, and I believe that committee will go into the whole subject at the December session."

Senator Robert B. Howell of Nebraska, also a member of the senate naval affairs committee, was not willing to make a comparison between the raising of the S-4 and the F-14, but predicted that congress will do whatever is necessary to provide for emergencies. The navy department and congress are keenly alive to the possibilities and dangers and some action should be taken during the coming session, he said.

Before leaving Washington for Berlin to attend the interparliamentary conference, Representative Fred A. Britten of Illinois, chairman of the naval affairs committee, declared that congress should act promptly in seeing that our submarines are adequately safeguarded.

"I feel," he said, "that congress and the navy department should do everything possible for the protection of the men aboard the submarines. I have been thinking of accidents such as befell the unfortunate S-4. If there had been some sort of approved device so that those men left alive might have been pushed out into the water and have come to the surface, those in the compartment not jammed might have been saved.

"I realize," Mr. Britten said, "that in order to employ some of the types of safety devices that have been presented to me for my information we would have to have a very large submarine to carry them in addition to the other equipment.

The essential elements of safety in submarines was stressed by Representative Anthony J. Griffin of New York. He outlined these elements as follows:

"(1) A double hull.

"(2) Dividing of the interior into compartments.

"(3) A drop keel, a releasable false keel.

"(4) The telephone and signal buoy to indicate location of a submarine that has met with disaster.

"(5) Grappling rings or eye-bolts to facilitate the raising of the vessel.

"(6) Salvage vessels equipped with driving apparatus, cranes, and suitable paraphernalia to render quick assistance."

Mr. Griffin says practically all submarines are constructed on the level-keel principle, with double hulls and fitted with compartments. He says "no invention of any moment has ever evolved out of the bureaucratic mind. In ships, ordnance and aviation, the new ideas have come from without."

Post Cards From Europe

PARIS, Aug. 13.—Raymond Poincare, 68 years old, works 12 hours a day seven days a week, and appears to thrive on it.

He gets up at six every morning, snatches a light breakfast, and then spends two hours at his desk before leaving for the Finance ministry, where he arrives promptly at nine o'clock. In those two hours of "homework" he writes in longhand a dozen personal letters, and maps out his programme of official business for the day.

At his office, he spends the first hour studying the morning mail and the reports of his bureau-chiefs. He takes in with a rapid glance the minutest details of every document that passes under his eye. His memory is prodigious, and months afterward he can quote almost verbatim from texts seen but once. This faculty has earned him many a triumph on the rostrum of the Chamber of Deputies.

From ten o'clock until lunch-time he receives his collaborators in rapid succession, discussing with them the problems of every department and giving the necessary orders. After a meager lunch he is back at his desk, writing, dictating and conferring until nearly eight o'clock, when he goes home to another frugal meal and to bed. This daily schedule is altered only by such cases of "force majeure" as official banquets, receptions, cabinet-meetings, and the like.

He does not smoke or drink—not even wine—nor does he play golf, or take any form of systematic exercise. He cares nothing for hunting, fishing, hinking, and unlike Clemenceau, prefers train-travel to motoring. His "leisure" is filled chiefly with reading and writing, but occasionally, in his native village, he enjoys a chat with old friends.

His only domestic pets are a Siamese cat and a sheep-dog.

He makes many public speeches, but never extemporizes. Every speech is written in advance, and although he memorizes as rapidly as he writes, he always keeps the manuscript before him when delivering an address. He dreads departing fro.. the carefully prepared text by as much as a word.

About 5000 Attend Picnic Of Grangers

Members Of 25 Mercer Granges Attend Affair Held At Grove City

MERCER, Pa., Aug. 13.—Held at Memorial Park in Grove City Friday was the picnic of the farmers of Mercer county. The event was attended by members of the 25 Granges of the county with their families. It is estimated that 5,000 were present during the day.

For the first time since its inception a decade ago, the picnic was held without a literary or speaking program. The only activity of the day was a program of athletic events for children and adults. Prizes of candy were offered for the winners among the children.

LADY UNDERWENT A GREAT CHANGE FOR THE BETTER

Uses Ten Herbs With Far-Reaching Results; Tells Interesting Story.

"Ten Herbs was just what I needed, as it seems to have cleansed, purified and invigorated my entire system, and thus gave Nature a chance to create better digestion, improve the blood, restore restful sleep, and give real nerve vigor and bodily strength" was the statement of Miss Rose Newland, 1025 Ross Avenue, Wilkinsburg, Pa., (near Pittsburgh), according to the Ten Herbs Man, who is at Eckerd's of New Castle, Inc., 30 East Washington Street, New Castle, where he is daily demonstrating this great natural medicine.

"Following a street car accident, about four years ago, my system became in a very weakened, run-down condition," Miss Newland continued. "I was just about a nervous wreck. I finally had to spend four months in a hospital, and got so bad that I was told that I had only a short time to live. Food did not digest properly, and my bowels were irregular. Any little noise bothered me, and I could not sleep at night. I was so weak I could not walk a block without getting out of breath. There were rheumatic pains in my shoulders, and my whole system seemed poisoned and clogged up.

"I read about Ten Herbs in the papers, and saw that it contained roots, herbs and barks. I started using your medicine, and it is doing all that you claimed for it. I have a better appetite, and food gives me more nourishment. My bowels are regular, and my nerves are quiet. The rheumatic pains have left my shoulders. I have gained so much in strength that I can spend the day shopping and come home without feeling exhausted. I can honestly say that Ten Herbs has given me a different future to look forward to. I gladly add my name to the already long list of persons who have publicly endorsed your medicine."

The Ten Herbs Man is at Eckerd's of New Castle, Inc., 30 East Washington Street, New Castle, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this medicine.

Chicago Chatter
BY IONE QUINBY

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to New Castle News

Chicago, Aug. 13.—Middle aged and elderly men who act as guards for sumptuous apartment buildings, hotels and banks are not the uniformed nonentities some persons thinks. The majority of them, and this is not mere guess, have led a decidedly more exciting and adventurous life in their day than the hundreds of men and women who daily pass through the portals they now decorate.

Guards in banks standing idly in their blue uniforms and passing out information to patrons, or directing them politely to the various departments, are for the most part retired policemen—men who have passed at least two thirds of their lives in some of Chicago's most dangerous byways. They are guards in banks because they have lived long enough to be automatically retired on pensions, and they aren't content to sit around and twiddle their thumbs.

Two guards I know in downtown banks have stars for capturing desperate murderers in one of the most vicious murders in the city's history. Hundreds pass them every day, feeling twinges of pity, no doubt, because their lives are so uneventful. Four other guards, once crack policemen, shot it out in a gun battle that made a considerable noise throughout the country. The majority of them have packed more thrills and adventures into their lives in a week than most of us experience in an entire lifetime.

Ex-policemen are preferred as guards for banks, for they are versed in human nature, and can detect a crook at sight. Most of them know the features of every crook in Chicago and could spot one immediately if he entered a bank. They have a system of wiggle-wagging their forefingers or of making mysterious motions that let other employes of the bank know something's wrong.

The most notable guard of an apartment building is one who ornaments the doorway of one of the swankiest places in town. A few weeks during every summer he is absent on his annual vacation up in Labrador. He formerly was an Arctic explorer and has seen more sealskin walking around on flippers up in the land of the Midnight Sun than he has ever seen on the millionaire ladies who lives in his building. Sir Thomas Lipton always gives him a ring when he comes to town and if convenient they meet somewhere—in evening clothes—and exchange adventure stories.

"Big Bill"Thompson told me one day why he never wears a silk topper, but always a Buffalo Bill hat, even to the affairs that are the cat's Russian boots for swankiness. His aversion to toppers has been almost as much of a mystery as "why" he started his anti-British campaign, so I'm passing it along verbatim. I queried him about it at one of those welcoming receptions where even "Bathhouse John" and the other city councilmen all effect full morning regalia.

Here's what he said: "I can't wear one of those stiff headdresses, because I always ride in an open car, summer and winter, and the draft has a way of getting too chummy with a silk hat. Besides, a silk hat always reminds me of the Beef Trust cartoons." (Maybe some day he'll spill the beans about his reason for being anti-British, and perhaps it'll sound just as reasonable!)

NEW YORK, August 13.—The place to go when nothing else will give you a laugh, is one of the departments in the big stores where hats are "made on the head," in the Paris manner. No patron is ever anything but grotesque in her half-made lid and burning self-consciousness.

The only funnier thing would be a man getting a "made on the head" top-piece, a man in a half-baked derby!

Broadway's strangest show is not on the stage but in front of it. "The Ladder," the play that has been running for two years at the expense of Edgar Davis, Texas oil man, is again charging admission, and sometimes the ushers outnumber the audience. Imagine the spectacle of a large company of actors playing to two or three persons who are carefully attended by six or eight ushers!!

For two years Broadwayites have been cracking quips at "The Ladder" and its strange "angel," and the funniest of them we think, is the invention of Walter Winchell. The ticket-taker at the theater where the play is housed has been, he says, arrested for vagrancy.

"The Ladder" has lost nearly a million dollars, but Davis believes eventually he'll get his money back. He has been playing hunches all his life, and the wildest of them have brought him in the most money, he says.

The most important of the new radio inventions being placed in stores here, it seems to me, is a small ear-plug which persons desiring to sleep may use to shut out the noise of a neighbor's receiving set.

One way students in art schools have of earning expenses is in airing the dogs of Riverside Drive and West End avenue wives. There is an agency which supplies exercisers to tired owners of Pomeranians, Pekes and such for 25 cents an hour.

A friends of mine, newly arrived in the city, wishes New York had banks like the old home town. In the o. h. t. he was permitted to have a checking-account with a balance that hovered between $100 and $300. When he tried to open an account at a bank near Fifth avenue he was told $2,500 was the lowest amount accepted, and the institution preferred $5,000. Few other banks in downtown New York permit less than $1,000 to be carried in a checking account.

Smaller depositors have to put their money in savings accounts or their sock.

One of the biggest thrills one living in New York can have is getting a letter addressed meresly with one's name and "New York City."

The bigger thrill, and one reserved for persons like President Coolidge, Colonel Lindbergh, Will Rogers, Babe Ruth and Mary Pickford, is to get mail addressed merely, "U. S. A.".

The Woolworth building's supremacy in altitude among the world's buildings is passing, after 15 years. The new Reynolds building at Forty-third and Lexington, 67 stories, will be 808 feet high, or 15 feet taller than the house that dimes built. Three states will be visible from its tower.

New York is still the largest small town on earth. Central Park Zoo is able to sell all of the pigs raised there to dance hall proprietors, who grease them and turn them loose to be caught by patrons, male and female, who don overalls for the occasion.

"At least 50 per cent of the people are feeble-minded." That's right; you can tell by their unquestioned acceptance of statistics like this.

HOOVER DECLARES AGAINST DRY LAW REPEAL

Outlines Practical Plan For Relief Of Farmers In Acceptance Address

Republican Party Candidate Makes Clear His Position On Problems Of Day

ACCEPTS CHALLENGE OF WET ELEMENT

Adequate Tariff For Protection Of American Workingmen and Farmers Urged

STANFORD UNIVERSITY STADIUM, Calif., Aug. 12.—Herbert Hoover accepted the Republican nomination Saturday with a reiteration of his stand against repeal of the Prohibition Amendment or any modification of enforcement that would constitute nullification and with the exposition of a three-fold agricultural relief programme.

The nominee repeated that he stands for "the efficient enforcement" of the laws enacted under the Prohibition amendment and added that "whoever is chosen President has under his oath the solemn duty to pursue this course."

For relief of the farmer he outlined a program embracing tariff protection and increased and cheaper transportation supported by federal financial aid in building up farm-owned and controlled corporations to take care of crop surpluses.

In addition he declared vigorously for religious tolerance ;inveighed against corruption in public office; struck a note of idealism in the relation of government to the people and issued a call to the women and the youth of the country to contribute their enthusiasm to the success of the American experiment in democracy.

The text of his address follows:

You bring, Mr. Chairman, formal notice of my nomination by the Republican Party to the Presidency of the United States. I accept. It is a great honor to be chosen for leadership in that party which has so largely made the history of our country in these last 70 years.

Mr. Chairman, you and your associates have in four days travelled 3,000 miles across the continent to bring me this notice. I am reminded that in order to notify George Washington of his election, Charles Thompson, Secretary of the Congress, spent seven days on horseback to deliver that important intelligence 230 miles from New York to Mount Vernon.

In another way, too, this occasion illuminates the milestones of progress. By the magic of the radio this nomination was heard by millions of our fellow citizens, not seven days after its occurrence, nor one day, nor even one minute. They were to all intents and purposes, present in the hall, participants in the proceedings. Today these same millions have heard your voice and now are hearing mine. We stand in their unseen presence. It is fitting, however, that the forms of our national life, hallowed by generations of usage, should be jealously preserved, and for that reason you have come to me, as similar delegations have come to other condidates through the years.

Those invisible millions have already heard from Kansas City the reading of our party principles. They would wish to hear from me not a discourse upon the platform—in which I fully concur—but something of the spirit and ideals with which it is proposed to carry it into administration.

Our problems of the past seven years have been problems of reconstruction; our problems of the future are problems of construction. They are problems of progress. New and gigantic forces have come into our national life. The World War released ideas of government in conflict with our principles. We have grown to financial and physical power which compels us into a new setting among nations. Science has given us new tools and a thousand inventions. Through them have come to each of us wider relationship, more neighbors, more leisure, broader vision, higher ambitions, greater problems. To insure that these tools shall not be used to limit liberty has brought a vast array of questions in government.

The points of contract between the Government and the people are constantly multiplying. Every year wise government policies become more vital in ordinary life. As our problems grow so do our temptations grow to venture away from those principles upon which our republic was founded and upon which it has grown to greatness. Moreover we must direct economic progress in support of moral and spiritual progress.

Our party platform deals mainly with economic problems, but our nation is not an agglomeration of railroads, of ships, of factories, of dynamos, or statistics. It is a nation of homes, a nation of men, of women, of children. Every man has a right to ask of us whether the United States is a better place for him, his wife and his children to live in, because the Republican Party has conducted the government for nearly eight years. Every woman has a right to ask whether her life, her home, her man's job, her hopes, her happiness, will be better assured by the continuance of the Republican Party in power. I propose to discuss the questions before me in that light.

With this occasion we inaugurate the campaign. It shall be an honest campaign; every penny will be publicly accounted for. It shall be a true campaign. We shall use words to convey our meaning, not to hide it.

The Republican Party came into authority nearly eight years ago. It is necessary to remind ourselves of the critical conditions of that time. We were confronted with an incompleted peace and involved in violent and dangerous disputes both at home and abroad. The Federal Government was spending at the rate of five and one-half billions per year; our national debt stood at the staggering total of twenty-four billions. The foreign debts were unsettled. The country was in a panic from over expansion due to the war and the continued inflation of credit and currency after the Armistice, followed by a precipitant nation-wide deflation which in half a year crashed the prices of commodities of nearly one-half. Agriculture was prostrated; land was unsaleable; commerce and industry were stagnated; our foreign trade ebbed away; five millions of unemployed walked the streets. Discontent and agitation against our democracy were rampant. Fear for the future haunted every heart.

No party ever accepted a more difficult task of reconstruction than did the Republican Party in 1921. The record of these seven and one-half years constitutes a period of rare courage in leadership and constructive action. Never has a political party been able to look back upon a similar period with more satisfaction. Never could it look forward with more confidence that its record would be approved by the electorate.

Peace has been made. The healing processes of good will have extinguished the fires of hate. Year by year in our relations with other nations we have advanced the ideals of law and of peace, in substitution for force. By rigerous economy federal expenses have been reduced by two billions per annum. The national debt has been reduced by six and a half billions. The foreign debts have been settled in large part and on terms which have regard for our debtors and for our taxpayers. Taxes have been reduced four successive times. These reductions have been made in the particular interest of the smaller taxpayers. For this purpose taxes upon articles of consumption and popular service have been removed. The income tax rolls today show a reduction of 80 per cent in the total revenue collected on income under $10,000 per year, while they show a reduction of only 25 per cent in revenues from incomes above that amount. Each successive reduction in taxes has brought a reduction in the cost of living to all our people.

Commerce and industry have revived. Although the agricultural, coal and textile industries still lag in their recovery and still require our solicitude and assistance, yet they have made substantial progress. While other countries engaged in the war are only now regaining their prewar level in foreign trade, our exports, even if we allow for the depreciated dollar, are 58 per cent greater than before the war. Constructive leadership and cooperation by the government have released and stimulated the energies of our people. Faith in the future has been restored. Confidence in our form of government has never been greater.

But it is not through the recitation of wise policies in government alone that we demonstrate our progress under Republican guidance. To me the test is the security, comfort and opportunity that has been brought to the average American family. During this less than eight years our population has increased by 8 per cent. Yet our national income has increased by over thirty billions of dollars per year of more than 45 per cent. Our production—ond therefore our consumption—of goods has increased be over 25 per cent. It is easily demonstrated that these increases have been widely spread among our whole people. Home ownership has grown. While during this period the number of families has increased by about 2,300,000 we have built more than 3,500,000 new and better homes. In this short time we have equipped nearly nine million more homes with electricity, and through it drudgery has been lifted from the lives of women. The barriers of time and distance have been swept away and life made freer and larger by the installation of six million more telephones, seven million radio sets, and the service of an additional 14 million automobiles. Our cities are growing magnificent with beautiful buildings, parks, and playgrounds. Our countryside has been knit together with splendid roads.

We have doubled the use of electrical power and with it we have taken sweat from the backs of men. The purchasing power of wages has steadily increased. The hours of labor have decreased. The 12-hour day has been abolished. Great progress has been made in stabilization of commerce and industry. The job of every man has thus been made more secure. Unemployment in the sense of distress is widely disappearing.

Most of all, I like to remember what this progress has meant to America's children. The portal of their opportunity has been ever widening. While our population has grown but 8 per cent we have increased by 11 per cent the number of children in our grade schools, by 66 per cent the number in our high schools, and by 75 per cent the number in our institutions of higher learning.

With all our spending we have doubled savings in our banks and building and loan associations. We have nearly doubled our life insurance. Nor have our people been selfish. They have met with a full hand the most sacred obligation of man—charity. The gifts of America to churches, to hospitals, and institutions for the care of the afflicted, and to relief from great disasters, have surpassed by hundreds of millions any totals for any similar period in all human record.

One of the oldest and perhaps the noblest of human aspirations has been the abolition of poverty. By poverty I mean the grinding by undernourishment, cold, and ignorance and fear of old age of those who have the will to work. We in America today are nearer to the final triumph over poverty than ever before in the history of any land. The poorhouse is vanishing from among us. We have not yet reached the goal but given a chance to go forward with the policies of the last eight years, and we shall soon with the help of God be in sight of the day when poverty will be banished from this nation. There is no guarantee against poverty equal to a job for every man. This is the primary purpose of the economic policies we advocate.

I especially rejoice in the effect of our increased national efficiency upon the improvement of the American home. That is the sanctuary of our lofiest ideals, the source of the spiritual energy of our people. The bettered home surroundings, the expanded schools and playgrounds, and the enlarged leisure which have come with our economic progress have brought to the average family a fuller life, a wider outlook, a stirred imagination, and a lift in aspirations.

Economic advancement is not an end in itself. Successful democracy rests wholly upon the moral and spiritual quality of its people. Our growth in spiritual achievements must keep pace with our growth in physical accomplishments. Material prosperity and moral progress must march together if we would make the United States that commonwealth so grandly conceived by its founders. Our government, to match the expectations of our people, must have constant regard for those human values that give dignity and nobility to life. Generosity of impulse, cultivation of mind, willingness to sacrifice, spaciousness of spirit—those are the qualities whereby America, growing bigger and richer and more powerful, may become America great and noble. A people or government to which these values are not real, because they are not tangible, is in peril. Size, wealth, and power alone cannot fulfill the promise of America's opportunity.

The most urgent economic problem in our nation today is in agriculture. It must be solved if we are to bring prosperity and contentment to one-third of our people directly and to all of our people indirectly. We have pledged ourselves to find a solution.

In my mind most agricultural discussions go wrong because of two false promises. The first is that agriculture is one industry. It is a dozen distinct industries incapable of the same organization. The second false premise is that rehabilitation will be complete when it has reached a point comparable with pre-war. Agriculture was not upon a satisfactory basis before the war. The abandoned farms of the northeast bear their own testimony. Generally there was but little profit in midwest agriculture for many years except that derived from the slow increases in farm land values. Even of more importance is the great advance in standards of living of all occupations since the war. Some branches of agriculture have greatly recovered, but taken as a whole it is not keeping pace with the onward march in other industries.

There are many causes for failure of agriculture to win its full share of national prosperity. The after-war deflation of prices not only brought great direct losses to the farmer but he was often left indebted in inflated dollars to be paid in deflated dollars. Prices are often demoralized through gluts in our markets during the harvest season. Local taxes have been increased to provide the improved roads and schools. The tariff on some products is proving inadequate to protect him from imports from abroad. The increases in transportation rates since the war has greatly affected the price which he receives for his products. Over six million farmers in times of surplus engage in destructive competition with one another in the sale of their product, often depressing prices below those levels that could be maintained.

The whole tendency of our civilization during the last 50 years has been toward an increase in the size of the units of production in order to secure lower costs and a more orderly adjustment of the flow of commodities to the demand. But the organization of agriculture into larger units must not be by enlarged farms. The farmer has shown he can increase the skill of his industry without large operations. He is today producing 20 per cent more than eight years ago with about the same acreage, and personnel. Farming is and must continue to be an individualistic business of small units and independent ownership. The farm is more than a business; it is a state of living. We do not wish it converted into a mass production machine. Therefore, if the farmers' position is to be improved by larger operations it must be done not on the farm but in the field of distribution. Agriculture has partially advanced in this direction through co-operatives and pools. But the traditional co-operative is often not a complete solution.

Differences of opinion as to both causes and remedy have retarded the completion of a constructive program of relief. It is our plain duty to search out the common ground on which we may mobilize the sound forces of agricultural reconstruction. Our platform lays a solid basis upon which we can build. It offers an affirmative program.

An adequate tariff is the foundation of farm relief. Our consumers increase faster than our producers. The domestic market must be protected. Foreign products raised under lower standards of living are today competing in our home markets. I would use my office and influence to give the farmer full benefit of our historic tariff policy.

A large portion of the spread between what the farmer receives for his products and what the ultimate consumer pays is due to increased transportation charges. Increase in railway rates has been one of the penalties of the war. These increases have been added to the cost to the farmer of reaching seaboard and foreign markets and result therefore in reduction of his prices. The farmers of foreign countries have thus been indirectly aided in their competition with the American farmer. Nature has endowed us with a great system of inland waterways. Their modernization will comprise a most substantial contribution to midwest farm relief and to the development of twenty or our interior states. This modernization includes not only the great Mississippi system, with its joining of the Great Lakes and of the heart of midwest agriculture to the Gulf, but also a shipway from the Great Lakes to the Atlantic. These improvements would mean so large an increment in farmers' prices as to warrant their construction many times over. There is no more vital method of farm relief.

But we must not stop here.

An outstanding proposal of the Party program is the whole-hearted pledge to undertake the reorganization of the marketing system upon sounder and more economical lines. We have already contributed greatly to this purpose by the acts supporting farm co-operatives, the establishment of intermediate credit banks, the regulation of stockyards, public exchanges and the expansion of the Department of Agriculture. The platform proposes to go much farther. It pledges the creation of a Federal Farm Board of representative farmers to be clothed with authority and resources with which not only to still further aid farmers' co-operatives and pools and to assist generally in solution of farm problems but especially to build up with federal finance, farmer-owned and farmer-controlled stabilization corporations which will protect the farmer from the depressions and demoralization of seasonal gluts and periodical surpluses.

Objection has been made that this program, as laid down by the Party Platform, may require that several hundred millions of dollars of capital be advanced by the Federal Government without obligation upon the individual farmer. With that object I have little patience. A nation which is spending ninety billions a year can well afford an expenditure of a few hundred millions for a workable program that will give to one-third of its population their fair share of the nation's prosperity. Nor does this proposal put the government into business except so far as it is called upon to furnish initial capital with which to build up the farmer to the control of his own destinies.

This program adapts itself to the variable problems of agriculture not only today but which will arise in the future. I do not believe that any single human being or any group of human beings can determine in advance all questions that will arise in so vast and complicated an industry over a term of years. The first step is to create an effective agency directly for these purposes and to give it authority and resources. These are solemn pledges and they will be fulfilled by the Republican Party. It is a definite plan of relief. It needs only the detailed elaboration of legislation and appropriations to put it into force.

During my term as Secretary of Commerce I have steadily endeavored to build up a system of co-operation between the government and business. Under these co-operative actions all elements interested in the problem of a particular industry such as manufacturer, distributor, worker, and consumer have been called into council together, not for a single occasion but for continuous work. These efforts have been successful beyond any expectation. They have been accomplished without interference or regulation by the government. They have secured progress in the industries, remedy for abuses, elimination of waste, reduction of cost in production and distribution, lower prices to the consumer, and more stable employment and profit. While the problem varies with every different commodity and with every different part of our great country, I should wish to apply the same method to agriculture so that the leaders of every phase of each group can advise and organize on policies and constructive measures. I am convinced that this form of action, as it has done in other industries, can greatly benefit farmer, distributor and consumer.

The working out of agricultural relief constitutes the most important obligation of the next Administration. I stand pledged to these proposals. The object of our policies is to establish for our farmers an income equal to those of other occupations; for the farmer's wife the same comforts in her home as women in other groups; for the farm boys and girls the same opportunities in life as other boys and girls. So far as my own abilities may be of service, I dedicate them to help secure prosperity and contentment in that industry where I and my forefathers were born and nearly all my family still obtain their livelihood.

The Republican Party has ever been the exponent of protection to all our people from competition with lower standards of living abroad. We have always fought for tariffs designed to establish this protection from imported goods. We also have enacted restriction upon immigration for the protection of labor from the inflow of workers faster than we can absorb them without breaking down our wage levels.

The Republican principle of an effective control of imported goods and of immigration has contributed greatly to the prosperity of our country. There is no selfishness in this defense of our standards of living. Other countries gain nothing if the high standards of America are sunk and if we are prevented from building a civilization which sets the level of hope for the entire world. A general reduction in the tariff would admit a flood of goods from abroad. It would injure every home. It would fill our streets with idle workers. It would destroy the returns of our dairymen, our fruit, flax, and livestock growers, and our other farmers.

No man will say that any immigration or tariff law is perfect. We welcome our new immigrant citizens and their great contribution to our nation; we seek only to protect them equally with those already here. We shall amend the immigration laws to relieve unnecessary hardships upon families. As a member of the commission whose duty it is to determine the quota basis under the national origins law I have found it is impossible to do so accurately and without hardship. The basis now in effect carries out the essential principle of the law and I favor repeal of that part of the act calling for a new basis of quotas.

We have pledged ourselves to make revisions in the tariff laws as may be necessary to provide real protection against the shiftings of economic tides in our various industries. I am sure the American people would rather entrust the perfection of the tariff to the consistent friend of the tariff than to our opponents, who have always reduced our tariffs, who voted against our present protection to the worker and the farmer, and whose whole economic theory over generations has been the destruction of the protective principle.

Having earned my living with my own hands I cannot have other than the greatest sympathy with the aspirations of those who toil. It has been my good fortune during the past 12 years to have received the cooperation of labor in many directions, and in promotion of many public purposes.

The trade union movement in our country has maintained two departures from such movements in all other countries. They have been staunch supporters of American individualism and American institutions. They have steadfastly opposed subversive doctrines from abroad. Our freedom from foreign social and economic disease is in large degree due to this desistance by our own labor. Our trade unions, with few exceptions, have welcomed all basic improvement in industrial methods. This largeness of mind has contributed to the advancing standards of living of the whole of our people. They properly have sought to participate—by additions to wages—in the result of improvements and savings which they have helped to make.

During the past year we have grown greatly in the mutual understanding between employer and employee. We have seen a growing realization by the employer that the highest practicable wage is the road to increased consumption and prosperity and we have seen a growing realization by labor that the maximum use of machines, of effort and of skill is the road to lower production costs and in the end to higher real wages. Under these impulses and the Republican protective system our industrial output has increased as never before and our wages have grown steadily in buying power. Our workers with their average weekly wages can today buy two and often three times more bread and butter than any wage earner of Europe. At one time we demanded for our workers a "full dinner pail." We have now gone far beyond that conception. Today we demand larger comfort and greater participation in life and leisure.

The Republican platform gives the pledge of the Party to the support of labor. It endorses the principle of collective bargaining and freedom in labor negotiations. We stand also pledged to the curtailment of excessive use of the injunction in labor disputes.

The war and the necessary curtailment of expenditure during the reconstruction years have suspended the construction of many needed public works. Moreover, the time has arrived when we must undertake a larger visioned development of our water resources. Every drop which runs to the sea without yielding its full economic service is a waste.

Nearly all of our greater drainages contain within themselves possibilities of cheapened transportation, irregation, reclamation, domestic water supply, hydo-electric power and frequently the necessities of flood control. But this development of our waters requires more definite national policies in the systematic co-ordination of those different works upon each drainage area. We have wasted scores of millions by projects undertaken not as part of a whole but as the consequence of purely local demands. We cannot develop modernized water transportation by isolated projects. We must develop it as a definite and positive interconnected system of transportation. We must adjust reclamation and irrigation to our needs for more land. Where they lie together we must coordinate transportation with flood control, the development of hydro-electric power and of irrigation, else we shall as in the past commit errors that will take years and millions to remedy. The Congress has authorized and has in process of legislation great programs of public works. In addition to the works in development of water resources, we have in progress large undertakings in public roads and the construction of public buildings.

All these projects will probably require an expenditure of upwards of one billion dollars within the next four years. It comprises the largest engineering construction ever undertaken by any government. It involves three times the expenditure laid out upon the Panama Canal. It is justified by the growth, need, and wealth of our country. The organization and administration of this construction is a responsibility of the first order. For it we must secure the utmost economy, honesty, and skill. These works which will provide jobs for an army of men should so far as practicable be adjusted to take up the slack of unemployment elsewhere.

I rejoice in the completion of legislation providing adequate flood control of the Mississippi. It marks not alone the undertaking of a great national task but it constitutes a contribution to the development of the South. In encouragement of their economic growth lies one of the great national opportunities of the future.

I recently stated my position upon the 18th Amendment which I again repeat:

"I do not favor the repeal of the 18th Amendment. I stand for the efficient enforcement of the laws enacted thereunder. Whoever is chosen President has under his oath the solemn duty to pursue this course.

"Our country has deliberately undertaken a great social and economic experiment, noble in motive and far-reaching in purpose. It must be worked out constructively."

Common sense compels us to realize that grave abuses have occured—abuses which must be remedied. An organized searching investigation of fact and causes can alone determine the wise method of correcting them. Crime and disobedience of law cannot be permitted to break down the Constitution and laws of the United States.

Modification of the enforcement laws which would permit that which the Constitution forbids is nullification. This the American people will not countenance. Change in the Constitution can and must be brought about only by the srightforward methods provided in the Constitution itself. There are those who do not believe in the purpose of several provisions of the Constitution. No one denies their right to seek to amend it. They are not subject to criticism for asserting that right. But the Republican Party does deny the right of anyone to seek to destroy the purposes of the Constitution by indirection.

Whoever is elected President takes an oath not only to faithfully execute the office of the President, but that oath provides still further that he will, to the best of his ability, preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States. I should be untrue to my oath of office, were I to declare otherwise.

With impressive proof on all sides of magnificent progress, no one can rightly deny the fundamental correctness of our economic system. Nothing, however, is perfect but it works for progress. Our pre-eminent advance over nations in the last eight years has been due to distinctively American accomplishments. We do not owe these accomplishments to our vast natural resources. These we have always had. They have not increased. What has changed is our ability to utilize these resources more effectively. It is our human resources that have changed. Man for man and woman for woman, we are today more capable whether in the work of farm, factory, or business than ever before. It lies in our magnificent educational system, in the hard working character of our people in the capacity for far-sighted leadership in industry, the ingenuity, the daring of the pioneers of new inventions, in the abolition of the saloon, and the wisdom of our national policies.

With the growth and increasing complexity of our economic life the relations of government and business are multiplying daily. They are yearly more dependent upon each other. Where it is helpful and necessary, this relation should be encouraged. Beyond this it should not go. It is the duty of government to avoid regulation as long as equal opportunity to all citizens is not invaded and public rights violated. Government should not engage in business in competition with its citizens. Such action extinguish the enterprise and initiative which has been the glory of America and which has been the root of its pre-eminence among the nations of the earth. On the other hand, it is the duty of business to conduct itself so that government regulation or government completion is unnecessary.

Business is practical, but it is founded upon faith—faith among our people in the integrity of business men, and faith that it will receive fair play from the government. It is the duty of government to maintain that faith. Our whole business system would break down in a day if there was not a high sense of moral responsibility in our business world. The whole practice and ethics of business has made great strides of improvement in the last quarter of a century, largely due to the effort of business and the professions themselves. One of the most helpful signs of recent years is the stronger growth of associations of workers, farmers, business men and professional men with a desire to cure their own abuses and a purpose to serve public interests. Many problems can be solved through co-operation between government and these self-governing associations to improve methods and practices. When business cures its own abuses it is true self-government which comprises more than political institutions.

One of the greatest difficulties of business with government is the multitude of unnecessary contacts with government bureaus, the uncertainty and inconsistency of government policies, and the duplication of governmental activities. A large part of this is due to the scattering of functions and the great confusion of responsibility in our federal organization. We have, for instance, 14 different bureaus or agencies engaged in public works and construction, located in nine different departments of the government. It brings about competition between government agencies, inadequacy of control and a total lack of co-ordinated policies in public works. We have eight different bureaus and agencies charged with conservation of our natural resources, located in five different departments of the government. These conditions exist in many other directions. Divided responsibility, with the absence of centralized authority, prevents construction and consistent development of broad national policies.

Our Republican presidents have repeatedly recommended by Congress that it would not only greatly reduce expenses of business in their contacts with government but that a great reduction could be made in governmental expenditure and more consistent and continued national policies could be developed if we could secure the grouping of these agencies devoted to one major purpose under single responsibility and authority. I have had the good fortune to be able to carry out such reorganization in respect to the Department of Commerce. The results have amply justified its expansion to other departments and I should consider it an obligation to enlist the support of Congress to effect it.

The government can be of invaluable aid in the promotion of business. The ideal state of business is freedom from those fluctuations from boom to slump which bring on one hand the periods of unemployment and bankruptcy and on the other, speculation and waste. Both are destructive to progress and fraught with great hardship to every home. By economy in expenditures, wise taxation, and sound fiscal finance it can relieve the burdens upon sound business and promote financial stability. By sound tariff policies it can protect our workmen, our farmers, and our manufacturers from lower standards of living abroad. By scientific research it can promote invention and improvement in methods. By economic research and statistical service it can promote the elimination of waste and contribute to stability in production and distribution. By promotion of foreign trade it can expand the markets for our manufacturers and farmers and thereby contribute greatly to stability and employment.

Our people know that the production and distribution of goods on a large scale is not wrong. Many of the most important comforts of our people are only possible by mass production and distribution. Both small and big business have their full place. The test of business is not its size—the test is whether there is honest competition, whether there is freedom from domination, whether there is integrity and usefulness of purpose. As Secretary of Commerce I have been greatly impressed by the fact that the foundation of America business is the independent business man. The Department by encouragement of his associations and by provision of special services has endeavored to place him in a position of equality in information and skill with larger operations. Alike with our farmers his is the stronghold of American individuality. It is here that our local communities receive their leadership. It is here that we refresh our leadership for larger enterprise. We must maintain his opportunity and his individual service. He and the public must be protected from any domination or from predatory business.

I have said that the problems before us are more than economic, that in a much greater degree they are moral and spiritual. I hold that there rests upon government many responsibilities which affect the moral and spiritual welfare of our people. The participation of women in politics means a keener realization of the importance of these questions. It means higher political standards.

One-half of our citizens fail to exercise the responsibilities of the ballot box. I would wish that the women of our country could embrace this problem in citizenship as peculiarly their own. If they could apply their higher sense of service and responsibility, their freshness of enthusiasm, their capacity for organization to this problem, it would become, as it should become, an issue of profound patriotism. The whole plane of political life would be lifted, the foundations of democracy made more secure.

In this land, dedicated to tolerance, we still find outbreaks of intolerance. I come of Quaker stock. My ancestors were persecuted for their beliefs. Here they sought and found religious freedom. By blood and conviction I stand for religious tolerance both in act and in spirit. The glory of our American ideals is the right of every man to worship God according to the dictates of his own conscience.

In the past years there has been corruption participated in by individual officials and members of both political parties in national, state and municipal affairs. Too often this corruption has been viewed with indifference by a great number of our people. It would seem unnecessary to state the elemental requirement that government must inspire confidence not only in its ability but in its integrity. Dishonesty in government, whether national, state, or municipal is a double wrong. It is treason to the state. It is destructive of self-government. Government in the United States rests not only upon the consent of the governed but upon the conscience of the nation. Government weakens the moment that its integrity is even doubted. Moral incompetency by those entrusted with government is a blighting wind upon private integrity. There must be no place for cynicism in the creed of America.

Our Civil Service has proved a great national boon. Appointive office, both North, South, East, and West, must be based solely on merit, character, and reputation in the community in which the appointee is to serve; as it is essential for the proper performance of their duties that officials shall enjoy the confidence and respect of the people with whom they serve.

For many years I have been associated with efforts to save life and health for our children. These experiences with millions of children both at home and abroad have left an indelible impression—that the greatness of any nation, its freedom from poverty and crime, its aspirations and ideals—are the direct quotient of the care of its children. Racial progress marches upon the feet of healthy and instructed children. There should be no child in America that is not born and does not live under sound conditions of health; that does not have full opportunity of education from the beginning to the end of our institutions; that is not free from injurious labor; that does not have every stimulation to accomplish the fullest of its capacities. Nothing in development of child life will ever replace the solicitude of parents and the surroundings of home, but in many aspects both parents and children are dependent upon the vigilance of government, national, state and local.

I especially value the contribution that the youth of the country can make to the success of our American experiment in democracy. Theirs is the precious gift of enthusiasm, without which no great deeds can be accomplished. A government that does not constantly seek to live up to the ideals of its young men and women falls short of what the American people have a right to expect and demand from it. To interpret the spirit of the youth into the spirit of our goverment; to bring the warmth of their enthusiasm and the flame of their idealism into the affairs of the nation—is to make of American government a positive and living force, a factor for greatness and nobility in the life of the nation.

I think I may say that I have witnessed as much of the horror and suffering of war as any other American. From it I have derived a deep passion for peace. Our foreign policy has one primary object, and that is peace. We have no hates; we wish no further possessions; we harbor no military threats. The unspeakable experiences of the Great War, the narrow margin by which civilization survived from its exhaustion, is still vivid in men's minds. There is no nation in the world today that does not earnestly wish for peace—that is not striving for peace.

There are two co-operative factors in the maintenance of peace—the building of good-will by wise and sympathetic handling of international relations, and the adequate preparedness for defense. We must not only be just; we must be respected. The experiences of the war afforded final proof that we cannot isolate ourselves from the world, that the safeguarding of peace cannot be attained by negative action. Our offer of treaties open to the signature of all, renouncing war as an instrument of national policy, proves that we have every desire to co-operate with other nations for peace. But our people have determined that we can give the greatest real help—both in times of tranquility and in times of strain—if we maintain our independence from the political exigencies of the old world. In pursuance of this, our country has refused membership in the League of Nations, but we are glad to co-operate with the League in its endeavors to further scientific, economic and social welfare and to secure limitation of armament.

We believe that the foundations of peace can be strengthened by the creation of methods and agencies by which a multitude of incidents may be transferred from the realm of prejudice and force to arbitration and the determination of right and wrong based upon international law.

We have been and we are particularly desirous of furthering the limitation of armaments. But in the meantime we know that in an armed world there is only one certain guarantee of freedom—and that is preparedness for defense. It is solely to defend ourselves, for the protection of our citizens that we maintain armament. No clearer evidence of this can exist than the unique fact that we have fewer men in army uniform today than we have in police uniforms, and that we maintain a standing invitation to the world that we are always ready to limit our naval armament in proportion as the other naval nations will do likewise. We earnestly wish that the burdens and dangers of armament upon every home in the world might be lessened. But we must and shall maintain our naval defense and our merchant marine in the strength and efficiency which will yield to us at all times the primary assurance of liberty, that is, of national safety.

There is one of the ideals of America upon which I wish at this time to lay especial emphasis. For we should constantly test our economic, social and governmental system by certain ideals which must control them. The founders of our republic propounded the revolutionary doctrine that all men are created equal and all should have equality before the law. This was the emancipation of the individual. And since these beginnings, slowly, surely and almost imperceptibility, this nation has added a third ideal almost unique to America—the ideal of equal opportunity. This is the safeguard of the individual. The simple life of early days in our republic found but few limitations upon equal opportunity. But the crowding of our people and the intensity and complexity of their activities it takes today a new importance.

Equality of opportunity is the right of every American—rich or poor, foreign or native-born, irrespective of faith or color. It isthe right of every individual to attain that position in life to which his ability and character entitle him. By its maintenance we will alone hold open the door of opportunity to every new generation, to every boy and girl. It tolerates no privileged classes or castes or groups who would hold opportunity as their prerogative. Only from confidence that this right will be upheld can flow that unbounded courage and hope which stimulates each individual man and woman to endeavor and to achievement. The sum of their achievement is the gigantic harvest of nation progress.

This ideal of individualism based upon equal opportunity to every citizen is the negation of socialism. It is the negation of anarchy. It is the negation of despotism. It is as if we set a race. We, through free and universal education, provide the training of the runners; we give to them an equal start; we provide in the government the umpire of fairness in the race. The winner is he who shows the most conscientious training, the greatest ability, and the greatest character. Socialism bids all to end the race equally. It holds back the speedy to the pace of the slowest. Anarchy would provide neither training nor umpire. Despotism picks those who should win.

Conservatice, progressive and liberal thought and action have their only real test in whether they contribute to equal opportunity, whether they hold open the door of opportunity. If they do not they are false in their premise no matter what their name may be.

It was Abraham Lincoln who firmly enunciated this ideal as the equal chance. The Sherman Law was enacted in endeavor to hold open the door of equal opportunity in business. The commissions for regulation of public utilities were created to prevent discrimination in service and prevent extortion in rates—and thereby the destruction of equal opportunity. Equality of opportunity is a fundamental principle of our nation. With it we must test all our policies. The success or failure of this principle is the test of our government.

Mr. Chairman, I regret that time does not permit the compass of many important questions. I hope at a latter time to discuss the development of waterways, highways, aviation, irrigable lands, foreign trade and merchant marine, the promotion of education, more effective administration of our criminal laws, the relation of our government to public utilities and railways, the primary necessity of conservation of natural resources, measures for further economy in government and reduction of taxes—all of which afford problems of the first order.

I would violate my conscience and the gratitude I feel, did I not upon this occasion express appreciation of the great President who leads our Party today. President Coolidge has not only given a memorable administration, he has left an imprint of recitude and statesmanship upon the history of our country. He has been the burden of reconstruction of our country from the destruction of war. He has dignified economy to a principle of government. He has charted the course of our nation and our party over many years to come. It is not only a duty but it is the part of statesmanship that we adhere to this course.

No man who stands before the mighty forces which ramify American life has the right to promise solutions at his hand alone. All that an honest man can say is that within the extent of his abilities and his authority and in co-operation with the Congress and with leaders of every element in our people, these problems shall be courageously met and solution will be courageously attempted.

Our purpose is to biuld in this nation a human society, not an economic system. We wish to increase the efficiency and productivity of our country but its final purpose is happier homes. We shall succeed through the faith, the loyalty, the self-sacrifice, the devotion to eternal ideals which live today in every American.

The matters which I have discussed directly and deeply affected the moral and spiritual welfare of our country. No one believes these aspirations and hopes can be realized in a day. Progress or remedy lies often enough at the hand of state and local government. But the awakening of the national conscience and the stimulation of every remedial agency is indeed a function of the national government. I want to see our government great both as an instrument and a symbol of the nation's greatness.

The presidency is more than an administrative office. It must be the symbol of American ideals. The high and the lowly must be seen with the same eyes, met in the same spirit. It must be the instrument by which national conscience is livened and it must under the guidance of the Almighty interpret and follow that conscience.

Prisoner Just Walks Out Of Jail At Smethport, Pa., And Goes Into Hiding

(International News Service)

BRADFORD, Pa., Aug. 13.—William Wesmiller, 20, of Bradford, who cooly and nonchalantly walked out of the county jail at Smethport Saturday afternoon during the absence of Sheriff Edgar Rhone, was still at liberty today while McKeen county police combed the county in an effort to locate him.

Wesmiller, who was being held pending trial at the next term of criminal court on charges of stealing an automobile, driving without a license, giving a bad check and nonpayment of a board bill, asked a prison attendant for permission to use the telephone.

His request granted, Wesmiller calmly walked by the jail guards out of the jail to freedom, according to Sheriff Rhone.

Gene Tunney Back In New York City

Trying Desperately To Return To Role Of Private Citizen; Rumor He's Hunting Job

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Gene Tunney, trying desperately to achieve the status of a "private citizen" since the announcement of his engagement to Polly Lauder $50,000,000 heiress was back in New York today from his fiancee's island home. The ex-heavyweight champion refused to be seen.

With his renunciation of the prize ring crown "Gentleman Gene" was striving to snap off the bright light of publicity that brought him from the ranks to the top of his chosen profession and command in full the title the fight fans had bestowed upon him.

And so like thousands of other men in New York today Mr. James J. Tunney "went downtown." He arrived early this morning from Bar Harbor. He announced briskly to his associates that he 'was going downtown," that he "wouldn't be back until late" and disappeared.

There were rumors that Tunney today was "looking for a job" and that this was the explanation of the trip downtown. No one connected with the former Tunney entourage could or would say.

No arrangements for a statement had been made today and Tunney seemingly wished to stick to his avowal on St. John's Island that he is through with statements to the press.

"He was very much put out by the actions of reporters and cameramen in Maine" it was said for Gene at the Biltmore.

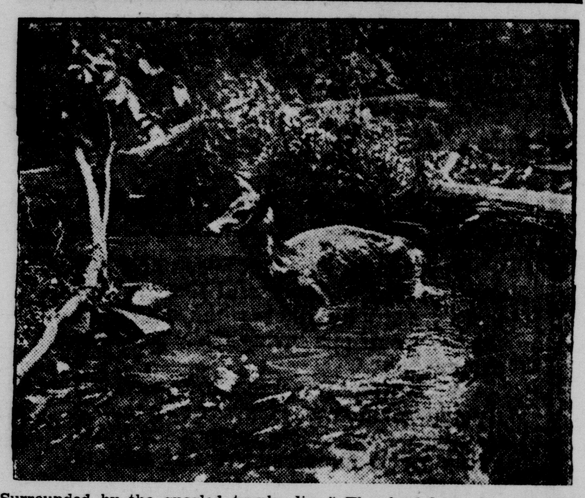
DEER ARE DYING FAST IN CENTRAL PENNSYLVANIA



Surrounded by the gnarled trunks of the dead and dying saplings upon which they have been feeding, hundreds of white-tailed deer are starving in Central Pennsylvania because they have eaten all the undergrowth and are unable to reach the leaves which grow on the higher branches of the forest. Young pine and hemlock, laurel, rhododendron—all of those plants which do not ordinarily furnish good deer food, have been wiped out, Feverish with undernourishment the dying animals seek the streams for a last cool drink.

The upper picture shows the "deer line." The dead lower branches have been browsed as high as the animals can reach. Young animals which compete with adults in seeking food, always die first.

The lower picture shows a doe sick from lack of food, standing in the water. Hundreds of animals in some sections of Pennsylvania are so weak they cannot run off when pursued Only the growth of grass in summer keeps them alive; when winter comes after the crop of acorns is exhausted scores of them will perish unless the deer herd will have been considerably reduced by the 1928 open season for female deer.

YES, TIMES HAVE CHANGED IN 28 YEARS SAYS HORNER

The way in which the merchants of New Castle are co-operating in the enforcement of an ordinance which forbids them to display goods on the sidewalks outside of their stores brings to the mind of Chief of Police C. C. Horner another time when a similar ordinance was passed ,an ordinance to which the merchants objected strongly.

That happened some 28 years ago when the police chief was a patrolman pacing a beat. Horses clogged Washington street. Something would have to be done about it, council thought.

An ordinance was passed forbidding horses to be hitched to telephone poles and hitching posts along Washington street.

Then it was that the howl Homeric was raised. Merchants objected, and objected strenuously. They said it would ruin business. But somehow it did not.

Now, Chief Horner compares the merchants of 28 years ago with those of today. Times have changed. Now the merchants are doing their best in helping the police to enforce the ordinance against displaying goods on the sidewalks.

Soil Testing Is Of Great Value Says McCulloch

Much of the guess work about liming can be eliminated by having definite information regarding the needs of the particular soil to be limed, states County Agent H. R. McCulloch. Farmers sometimes make expensive applications of lime where tests show that the soil is already too sweet. Such liming is largely a waste of money, he says.

Frequently fields of alfalfa and sweet clover are found which have failed, although limed and inoculated. Tests of the soil in many, if not the most, such cases show that the amount of lime was adequate and the soil still too sour for these crops to thrive.

"One of the most impressive proofs of the value of soil testing is the frequency of the cases where the alfalfa or clover is uneven in stand," says Mr. McCulloch. "Soil samples taken from the good spots are sweet while the poorer spots need more lime."

Any farmer can have samples of soil tested in the field he plans to lime by sending them to the county agent. A half pint of soil is sufficient for the test, states Agent McCulloch. Samples should be taken not over four inches deep in the ground and should be collected from the various points in the field and mixed thoroughly so that a fair representation of the field's soil can be determined.

Minister Stays Despite Warning

Defies Anonymous Letter Writer Who Gave Him Month To Leave

(International News Service)

SPENCER, Ind., Aug. 13.—Fortified with faith in God, loyal friends and a gun which he said he knew how to use if necessary, Rev. Frank Dewey McFadden, 29-year-old minister of the First Baptist church here, today notified the anonymous writer of a letter written Friday, July 13, who ordered him to leave Spencer by nightfall August 13.

The letter stated in part:

"We are giving you exactly one month to move. August 13th will be your unlucky day if the sun sets on you in Spencer. . . . "

With a grim smile the Rev. Mr. McFadden made his attitude plain today.

"This is supposed to be the fatal day when I am to sing my farewell song. I am going to sing a different sort of song. Neither man nor devil can make me lay down by Bible and leave my pastorate here."

The minister said that all last night two armed guards furnished by his congregation guarded the parsonage. He stated, however, that no guards will be on duty during the day.

A big praise service will be held at the church at 7:30 o'clock tonight—at the zero hour when the minister is supposed to be gone from Spencer.

"A large number of ministers and laymen, friends of mine, from all over Indiana and from Kentucky, are coming to hold a service at the church here tonight," Rev. Mr. McFadden said. "I will preach a praise sermon."

Plane's Wreckage Sighted At Sea

Believe Wreckage Of Plane One Of Numerous Lost Trans-Atlantic Expeditions

(International News Service)

ST. JOHNS, N. F., Aug. 13.—Wreckage of a large plane found in the sea early today led to belief in maritime circles here that the final chapter in some ill-fated trans-Atlantic flight had been disclosed.

The damaged body and one wing was sighted by the S. S. Seapool about 400 miles northeast of Cape Race. The rudder at the tail of the wrecked plane protruded five feet from the water.

The captain of the Seapool reported here that in the darkness he could not distinguish the colour of the plane and that it was impossible to see a number or other identifying marks on the fuselage.

The parts of the plane body appeared to be damaged by the action of the water and gave other evidence of having been long in the sea, Seapool reported.

B. And O. Man Rotary Speaker

Discusses "Transportation" At Noon Hour Meeting Of New Castle Club

H. J. Kruse, superintendent of the Akron division of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, provided the regular noon address at today's meeting of the New Castle Rotary club, held in the crystal ball room of The Castleton.

Mr. Kruse spoke on the subject of "Transportation," and delighted the Rotarians with his talk on many interesting phases of railroad work. Kruse paid tribute to the president of his organization, Daniel Willard, citing many portions of an address which the latter delivered recently before the officials of the company. He said that Mr. Willard urged all of his subordinates to act in all emergencies so that the railroad might come to be known as a good neighbor. Kruse related several instances where the company had done this.

In conclusion, the B. and O. official discussed the matter of railroad crossing accidents and stressed the fact that the time is coming when some plan must be carried out to prevent these.

During the business session preceding Mr. Kruse's address, the club made arrangements for the dedication of the Charles McConnell cabin at Camp Phillips, the Lawrence county boy scout camp, which the organization is sponsoring.

Other business relating to the number of boys the club is going to send to the camp also was considered.

Japan Seeks To Keep Manchuria Free From Chinese Domination

(International News Service)

LONDON, Aug. 13—That Japan has decided upon aggressive measures to prevent Manchuria from coming under domination of the Chinese Nationalists was indicated by advices from Shanghai and Tokio today.

Japan may bring the issue before the League of Nations meeting in September, but in the meantime there may be developments of a sensational nature.

While the old Peking government was represented in the League of Nations the league has not yet formally recognized the Nationalist government at Nanking. The Nationalists will send a delegation to Geneva in September to obtain such recognition.

A formal statement, issued by the Japanese foreign office and telegraphed here from Tokio, makes it plain that Japan intends to play a lone hand in China. The Manchurian government, represented by Gen. Chang Hsueh Liang, son of the late Marshal Chang Tso Lin, has already been warned by Japan not to enter into an alliance with the Chinese Nationalists.

The Chinese claim that Japan is extending her domination of Manchuria with the ultimate aim of making it Japanese territory. This is denied by Tokio. The Japanese claim their only interest is to prevent disorders in Manchuria and protect property.

State Organization Will Take Little Interest In Vote On Amendments

(From News Bureau State Capital)

HARRISBURG, Pa., Aug. 13.—The Republican State Organization is not expected to take any part at the November election either for or against any of the fourteen proposed constitutional amendments that will appear on the ballots. With the State Committee directing most of its attentions toward the election of a solid Republican delegation to Congress and rolling up a big vote for the Hoover-Curtis ticket the fate of the amendments probably will be determined on their own merits.

State Chairman Edward Martin is making a drive to elect thirty-six Republican Congressmen from Pennsylvania. In some of these districts hard battles will be fought and for that reason it is not considered likely that the organization will stake its chances on losing Congressmen to support or defeat any of the amendments.

Supporters for many of the subjects included in the proposed amendments are getting active. Five of the fourteen amendments are for bond issues amounting to $138,000,000. Boosters for three of these are on the job and have planned active campaigns in their behalf.

Local organizations have been set-up in many counties favoring the passage of the amendment approving a $50,000,000 bond issue for welfare institutions. Numerous groups have gone on record for that particular amendment. Similiar steps have been taken by conservationists advocating the approval of the $25,000,000 forestry loan. Alumni of the Pennsylvania State College are being urged to vote for the $8,000,000 bond issue for that school and use their influence for its passage.

At present there appears to be no activity on the part of motor organizations for the third $50,000,000 highway bond issue or the proposed $5,000,000 loan for armories. National Guard units throughout the State probably will get busy on the latter bond issue between now and the November election.

A strong effort will be made to have the amendment for the installation of voting machines adopted at the November election. Friends of this measure, however, would prefer a better place on the ballot for it will appear thirteenth.

The amendment for a Metropolitan Pittsburgh is not expected to attract much attention outside of Pittsburgh and Allegheny county. Amendments also are to be voted on fixing the borrowing capacities of Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Scranton. These also will attract only local interest.

Most of the other proposed amendments are of minor interest except the first which if passed would permit the State to do its own printing. At present all printing done for the Commonwealth is by contract.

Make Reports Of Minor Accidents

Traffic Mishaps Are Numerous On Saturday Night And Sunday Morning

Six traffic accidents were reported to the New Castle police department Saturday evening and Sunday morning.

F. W. Robinson of R. F. D. 3, while parked on North Jeffersons street Saturday evening, had his machine damaged by another car bearing Pennsylvania license 890-036.

To keep from hitting another machine at the tin mill gate Sunday morning, T. L. Covert of 315 Sycamore street, ran his machine into a fence on Hobart street, damaging both the machine and the fence, it is reported at the police station.

While he and his wife were crossing Mill street at Washington street Nick Spyrison of 429 Neshannock avenue was hit on the right knee by a machine bearing Pennsylvania license 34879. His injury was slight.

Nearly Million For Elimination Of Grade Crossings

State Commission Has Ordered Elimination Of Ten Grade Crossings In Year

(From News Bureau State Capital)

HARRISBURG, Aug. 13.—Grade crossing eliminations and the rebuilding of bridges on State highway routes ordered this year by the Public Service commission call for the expenditure of $973,187. The commission has directed the elimination of ten grade crossings and the reconstruction of seven bridges during the present year. Of the total estimated cost involved the commission has assessed $376,834 against the Highway department.

The most expensive project ordered by the commission was the elimination of a grade crossing on route 243 in Beaver county. The estimated cost of that operation is $245,000. On that project a grade crossing over tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad and the Steubenville, East Liverpool and Beaver Valley Traction company is to be abolished by the construction of a bridge.

Bids are expected to be opened late this mornth for the building of a bridge over Pennsylvania Railroad tracks and the Allegheny river on route 211, in Eldred, McKean county. The commission ordered the elimination of a grade crossing at that point. This work will cost about $150,000 and when finished an existing county bridge over the river is to be abandoned.

Another important highway improvement ordered by the commission was the rebuilding of an undergrade bridge on route 185 north of Tamaqua in Schuylkill county. That operation is estimated to cost $112,000. When finished the highway will be carried under the tracks of the Lehigh Valley Railroad and the existing undergrade which carries the highway below the railroad is to be abandoned.

Kiwanis Program Kept Under Cover

The Program—I Wonder (?)

That's the way the secretary of the New Castle Kiwanis club makes known the program for the meeting on Wednesday noon, August 15. It looks as if the program will be an exceptional one from the way he announces it. All Kiwanians are urged to attend, and remember it will take place at the Elks club on Wednesday, August 15 at 12:15 p. m.

At a recent meeting of the board of directors of the club Dr. C. C. Dickey and Louis A. Haug were appointed to represent the New Castle Kiwanians in the community chest.

South Siders Obey New Display Law

There has been no word of complaint, stated the officer further, and so far there has been no deviation from the rule.

ENCAMPMENT TO OPEN TUESDAY

Wesleyan Methodist Camp Meeting At Stoneboro Lasts Until August 23

Twenty-eighth annual encampment of the Stoneboro Wesleyan Methodist Camp Meeting Association along the banks of Stoneboro Lake will open Tuesday. Indications are that there will be several hundred people in attendance during the entire period of the encampment, which will be until August 23.

New Castle is well represented this year by both permanent and transient attendance. Practically all of the 136 rooms available on the grounds have been taken for the period of the encampment and it is expected that all of them as well as many tents will have been in use before the close of the encampment. Each of the rooms or tents will house an ordinary family for the ten day period of the encampment, indicating a possible attendance of more than five hundred.

An unusually fine corps of workers has been secured for the present encampment, including Jesse D. Whitecotton, of Lapel, Indiana, and Rolla D. Wise, of New Castle, Indiana, as speakers; Joseph B. Markey, of Penn Run, Pa., as song leader; Elder D. B. Hampe who will give Bible readings on "Christ the Key to the Scriptures", and Miss Mary E. McLeister, of this city, who will have supervision of Children's and Young People's Meetings.

Officers of the association are: P. B. Campbell, New Castle, Pa., president; Fleming Perrine, Sandy Lake, Pa., secreary and treasurer; vice presidents, W. H. Marvin, Sandy Lake, Pa., D. B. Hampe, Akron, O., Charles Ries, Akron, O., and A. D. Fero, Dixonville, Pa.

Clever Forger Baffles Police

Mysterious Forger In New York City Gets Total Of $104,000 In Month's Time

WEALTHY MAN IS FORGER VICTIM

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—A new series of forgeries, linked by police to the mysterious "scratcher," in which an unidentified prominent and wealthy man and the Manufacturers Trust Company wherein he is a large depositor were victimized of $104,000, is revealed today.

Seven checks bearing remarkably accurate forgeries of the wealthy depositor's signature were returned to him among his cancelled vouchers and led to discovery of the plot. The criminal is believed by police to be the same who with confederates has obtained more than $100,000 from other banks in the city since the first of the year.

The $104,000 loss is assumed by the United States Fidelity and Casualty Company, according to Nathan S. Jonas, president of the Manufacturers Trust Company, who revealed the forgeries and the method by which the "scratcher" worked.

The forger in some way obtained a signature of the wealthy depositor. With a check for $20,000 bearing an excellently forged signature he then opened a checking account in the Chelsea Exchange Bank. The next step of the master forger was to make a withdrawal against his newly established account, at the same time depositing another and smaller forged check to his credit. The process was repeated several times during the last two weeks of the July period until by the end of the month the forger had withdrawn a total of $104,000 against his bogus account.

Treasure Island Presented By Boys

(Special To The News)

ELLWOOD CITY, Pa., Aug. 13. — Treasure Island, a playlet taken from the story by Robert Louis Stevenson was successfully staged at the Dick Victor Camp for Boys near here on Sunday with approximately one thousand people in attendance.

The play opened at the Admiral Benbow Inn, then shifted to the Pirate ship and was finally brought to a close at the Island. The boys carried their parts splendidly and were given a big hand by an appreciative audience.

Arthur Young, Lakewood, O., in carrying the role of Jim Hawkins, and John Howder of McKeesport as Long John Silver performed nobly and won dramatic honors for themselves by their clever acting. The pirate chorus led by Harry Cohen, Jr., received considerable praise for their good showing.

The camp orchestra directed by Harry Cohen, Jr., a student at the Carnegie Institute of Technology, rendered several pleasing numbers. Dick Deverall and Joe Patterson of New Castle were members of the orchestra.

Charley Nolan of New Castle had a part in the play, acting in the role of a hunter.

Considerable credit for the success of the play is due to Karl Emerson Williams, Dramatics Director here, Arthur Sprenkle, Technical Director, and Edward Blistein, Assistant Technical Director.

A large number of New Castle folks attended the play, a large group from the Boy Scout Camp visiting the camp here in a body while friends and relatives of the boys in camp were present.

Less than two weeks remain at camp and it is the intention of the camp directors to push the remaining program over with a bang. Two day horse back trips were inaugurated today and on Saturday the annual Green and White contest will begin which will last until the close of camp on August 24.

Head Of District No. 5 Asks Operators To Meet In Wage Conference

FIRST FORMAL MOVE TO END LONG STRIKE

(BULLETIN)
(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 13.—Patrick T. Fagan, president of district No. 5, United Mine Workers of America, today issued invitations to thirty-one Western Pennsylvania coal companies to participate in a joint conference in an effort to agree upon a basic wage scale.

Fagan's action was the mine union's first formal move to put an end to the long bituminous strike since John L. Lewis, International president of the U. M. W. and the organization's policy committee voted in Indianapolis to abandon their demands for the Jacksonville scale.

The Pittsburgh Coal company and Pittsburgh Terminal Coal corporation, both of which have steadfastly refused to recognize the union since the strike went into effect April 1, 1927, were among those extended invitations to attend the wage parley. No date was suggested by Fagan.

"It is to be hoped in the interest of industrial tranquillity that your company will accept this invitation and join with the representatives of the United Mine Workers of America in an earnest effort to stabilize mining conditions in the Western Pennsylvania coal fields," Fagan's invitation read.

HIGH LIGHTS OF HISTORY

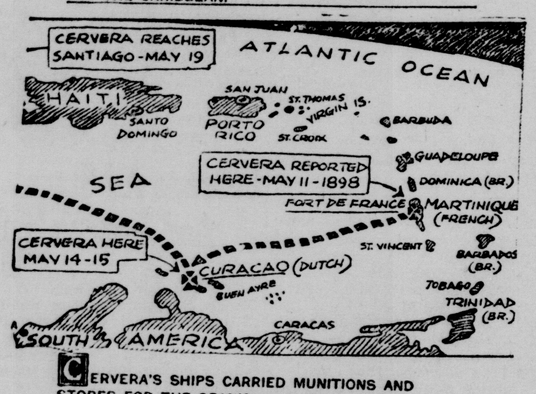
The Story Of Our War With Spain
Cervera Reaches Santiago de Cuba

REACHING FORT DE FRANCE, ISLAND OF MARTINIQUE, ON MAY 11, 1898, AFTER HIS DASH ACROSS THE ATLANTIC, THE SPANISH ADMIRAL CERVERA LEARNED THAT AN AMERICAN FLEET WAS IN CUBAN WATERS LOOKING FOR HIM. HE AGAIN PUT TO SEA, STEAMED TO THE SOUTHWEST, AND MAY 14 ARRIVED AT THE DUTCH ISLAND OF CURACAO IN THE CARIBBEAN.



CERVERA'S SHIPS CARRIED MUNITIONS AND STORES FOR THE SPANISH FORCES IN HAVANA, AND HE WISHED TO REACH THE PORT OF CIENFUEGOS ON THE SOUTHERN COAST OF CUBA, FROM WHENCE A RAILROAD RAN TO THE CAPITAL.

INTERNATIONAL LAW FORBADE HIM REMAINING MORE THAN TWENTY-FOUR HOURS IN A NEUTRAL PORT, AND THE NEXT DAY, WITH HIS COAL BUNKERS NEARLY EMPTY, CERVERA STARTED FOR CIENFUEGOS. AT THAT TIME SCHLEY'S SQUADRON HAD NOT YET ROUNDED THE WESTERN END OF CUBA, AND CERVERA COULD HAVE REACHED THE DESIRED POINT IN SAFETY.

BUT THE SPANISH ADMIRAL WAS UNAWARE OF THIS AND, FEARING THAT THE AMERICAN FLEET MIGHT HEAD HIM OFF BEFORE HE COULD REACH HIS DESTINATION, SUDDENLY CHANGED HIS COURSE AND RAN INTO THE HARBOR OF SANTIAGO ON THE EAST COAST OF CUBA, MAY 19TH.

TOMORROW—SCHLEY SEEKS CERVERA.

Tunney Says Sharkey Should Beat Dempsey If They Meet Again

Gene Tunney, Retired, Undefeated Champion, Favors Sharkey In Return Bout

Makes Prediction In Interview With Three Youngsters, Visiting Lauder Home

By FRANK REILLY

(Copyright 1928 International News Service)

SOUTH BRISTOL, Me., Aug. 13.—If Jack Sharkey and Jack Dempsey meet in the ring again, Sharkey will be the victor, Gene Tunney has predicted.

Stepping outside the cloak of his retirement and his new role of husband-to-be of a $50,000,000 heiress, the retired heavyweight champion of the world talked of prize fights, intellectual training and college education.

Tunney's prognostications and his fatherly advice were not given in any interview. They were part of a social visit which three local boys made to the Lauder estate on John's Island, upon invitation of the retired world's heavyweight champion.

The youths so honored were Louis Hatch, Jr., 14, his brother Phillip, 12, and Melvin Thompson, 13. The brothers are sons of the captain of a boat plying between the islands of this town. Thompson is the son of the [illegible] man.

Tunney At Breakfast

"Do you like boxing?" Gene asked.

"Sure," the three boys chorused.

"Well, who do you think would win if Dempsey and Sharkey fought again?"

This was a "sticker" for the local youths.

"Who do you think would win?" Louis Hatch countered.

"I think Sharkey would win," answered Tunney, "because Dempsey hasn't been in the ring for so long.

"Have you boys got boxing gloves?" he continued.

"Sure," said Louis, "we've all got them."

Detroit Promoter After Risko And Delancy Battle

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Promoter Dick Dunn of the Olympic boxing arena in Detroit is due here today on a mission that may keep Johnny Risko, Cleveland heavyweight, out of the preliminary bouts in the New York elimination tournament to determine the next champion. Dunn will attempt to sign Risko to box Jack Delaney of Bridgeport, Conn., for a fight in Detroit late in November. After Sept. 7, when he meets Bearcat Wright, Nebraska negro heavyweight, in a bout at Omaha, Risko plans to take a month's rest and does not intend to fight again until December with the possible exception of the Delaney go.

Risko is said to feel that he, and not Tom Heeney, should have been selected to fight Gene Tunney this year and that it is unfair to ask him to go through another elimination tourney.

The Clifton Flats team battling for the pennant in the American section of the Twilight league will journey to Wampum on Tuesday night for a postponed game with the Wampum team. The game will start at 6:30 o'clock Daylight Savings time.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS LAND

By ED. FRITZ

PITTSBURGH Pirates yesterday travelled into the ranks of the O. & P. League and defeated Akron 4 to 1 in the Rubber City. It was a typical exhibition game. The Pirates played hard to keep from scoring more than four runs and Akron struggled hard to keep from being shut out which was accomplished. Pete Blough, Wooster college star, commenced the game for Akron but gave way to Big Jim Vaughn who allowed two hits and one unearned run. Ufema and Tauscher occupied the Pirate's box.

WITHIN a short time the football candidates will be wending their way to training camps. The call has already gone out at Pitt that Captain Alex Fox will have three score in the camp when Coach Jock Sutherland starts work. Pitt lost 17 players by graduation last year and he must mould a new backfield. According to Jock, it's bad enough but not so bad, as he put it and he believes that the teams which play Pitt this fall will have real opposition.

JOHNNY FARRELL, national open champion and Gene Sarazen, defeated Jim Heaney and Dick Richardson, professionals at Charleston, W. Va., one up, in an exhibition match at Charleston yesterday. The match was decided when Heaney failed to hole a putt on the eighteenth green.

ELIMINATION of heavyweights, alleged and actual, will start in Brooklyn, this week when Johnny Risko and Robert Roberti, Italy, clash. Humbert Fugazy will promote the bouts. Otto Von Porat, Scandinavian, stole a march on the heavies when he eliminated Pierre Charles, the Belgian, at Chicago.

HERB PENNOCK scored his seventh pitching victory of the year when the New York Yankees blanked the Boston Red Sox, 8 to 0, Sunday. The Yankees now lead the American League by a margain of five games as the Athletics were idle. In the National, the Cards took another jolt, losing to the Cubs, 4 to 2, but lead the league by six games.

Exhibition Game

The Slovak A. C. and the Mahonings of the American section of the Lawrence County Twilight League will play an exhibition game at the Cedar street field at 6:15 o'clock tonight.

There is great rivalry between these two teams and a good game is expected.

O'Leary And Dunn In Feature Roles

Cavelli To Meet Tomaskey In Six-Round Semi-Final Bout

EXPECT BIG CROWD TO WITNESS BOUTS

By ED. FRITZ

MISTER Willyum Jolly, the man who made the Jolly Bowl possible and popular, and a Monday night "Where-to-Go", with several other thousand fans, will sit back in comfortable chairs and bleachers and watch 10 paid fighters render what should prove to be one of the most appeasing pugilistic menues that has been served to a fistic-hungry public in some time. On the menu he has for the main desert none other than Dick O'Leary (Jackie Britton) and Johnny Dunn, and as these 122-pounders have a ring feud to settle, a knockout is more than a possibility.

Hearing some time ago that O'Leary and Dunn had fought and staged a spectacular battle, the promoter ordered that the two sons of biff and bing be hired to perform at his wooden saucer. There were half a dozen other promoters in pursuit of the bout but as the foremost fistic promoter of western Pennsylvania and eastern Ohio held out a bait of 5,000 seats, O'Leary and Dunn accepted his offer and say "nay" to the other impressarios who wished to grab the fight.

Show Their "Onions"

So, tonight, fans, you should see two highly entertaining fighters—boys who know what it is all about; not a couple of palookas who lead with their chins and go down from sheer nervousness. O'Leary, under the name of Jackie Britton (which was a name he took when he first entered the ring) has fought all of the best bantamweights and boys up to 122 pounds. Dunn has done likewise and inasmuch as they fought each other evenly and are ring enemies, they both hope to win tonight.

O'Leary and Dunn got into town yesterday and appear to be in excellent condition. Both expressed confidence in their ability to win, but victory can only come after it has been garnered. O'Leary wore a grouch like a hermit whose flock of bees has taken flight, while Dunn displayed all the temperament that a man with the hives displays. To be precise, this is the way Promoter Jolly would have it, because a fighter who isn't nervous or grouchy before the bell is no more than a sluggish creature.

Cavelli vs. Tomaskey

But Dunn and O'Leary are not the only pebbles on the beach, as the small lad is wont to say; should say not, because our own Carl Cavelli, now a resident of Canton, tackles Andy Tomaskey of Midland in a six-round go. According to Tomaskey's record he is some bear. He has defeated Jose Allano twice, Al Brown, drew with Willie Davies, fought two no-decision bouts with Harry Blittman, won from Indian Russell, Harry Crisp, Mike Moran, Pinkie May, Dan Toomey and is bantam king of New Jersey.

Romeo Pacelli was scheduled to fight, but Saturday, as announced in The News, Romeo said he was ill and Young Corsey, a training mate of Cavelli, agreed to fill the bill. Cavelli says he is good. We have never seen him in action.

Local Boys to Box

Tom O'Leary, brother to Dick, will take this boy, Harry Lebo, who wants to fight anybody, and it looks as though he will have a warm session. As Tom Icone jumped out of tonight's fight with Roy Minteer, Jimmy Engle of Youngstown took his place on the card, which means that the fans will see some fast preliminaries.

The first bout will start at nine o'clock, fast time. Police will be present in the aisles to aid ushers. The police also will be seated in the bleachers, reserved sections, and in leaving the arena persons who operate automobiles are requested by the chief of police, Roy Horner, and Captain of Troffic Ed. Elder to use caution.

The Jinx Trails Him

By Feg Murray

Copyright, 1928, by Metropolitan Newspaper Service

When John K. Miljus, former Pittsburgh pitcher, made his first appearance for Cleveland last week against the Yankees, shrill and raucous laughter might have been heard in the distance, the same being Old Man Jinx howling with glee because he had once more got the better of Old Man Miljus.

Miljus is a native of Pittsburgh and did much to aid the Smoky City team to win its pennant last year. He was used twice in the world's series with the Yankees, each time in a relief role, and the big Armenian did the best work of any of the Pirate pitchers. Then the Jinx got busy. In the fourth and final game, with Combs on third, Miljus fanned Gehrig and Meusel, and then allowed Combs to score by a wild pitch that gave the series to New York.

That was tough luck to have to do down in history as the goat of the world's series, but Miljus, who had been battered and shuffled around from the majors to the minors and back again for years, determined to have a good season this year to make up for everything. But the Jinx was still at work. Miljus had a minor illness in the spring training season and had a hard time getting into shape. His disappointing showing was one of the reasons for the Pirates' lowly position, and, on July 10, he was sent from his home town team to Cleveland by the waiver route.

When the Indians learned that under baseball law they could be compelled to reimburse the Pirates to the extent of their purchase price of $16,500 for Miljus, they balked at their bargain. But Judge Landis ruled that they had to take him.

The first team he had to face in the American league was New York. Once more he was called upon as a relief hurler. And once more the Jinx got busy. Miljus unleashed another wild pitch, helping the Yankees to win, 12-9.

Twilight Teams To Play Benefit Game On Friday

Clifton Flats-Edenburg To Aid Dale Marshall Fund By Exhibition Game

SUGGESTS TEAMS TAKE UP MOVEMENT

Harry White, business manager of the Clifton Flats team of the Lawrence County Twilight league, comes forward today with an announcement that the Clifton Flats team will meet the Edenburg team on Friday night of this week in a benefit game for the Dale Marshall fund.

Dale Marshall is the youngster that is afflicted with blindness and his hearing gone. White suggests that all teams in the Twilight league arrange benefit games for the youngster. This is a very deserving cause and a good one.

Charles "Bugs" Walther,
Assistant Sports Editor,
New Castle News.
Dear Sir:—

While reading through The New Castle News I noticed the unfortunate condition of Dale Marshall, being afflicted with blindness and his hearing gone. We, the Clifton Flats baseball team of the Lawrence County Twilight league, would like to get behind this popular subscription fund and help out. The boy is deserving of support.

This week a thousand tickets selling for 25 cents each will be put on sale in a benefit game between the Clifton Flats team of the American section and Edenburg of the National section. The game is to be played on Friday night of this week and the choice of the field will be made known later.

I personally think that it would be a good thing if all of the teams in the Lawrence County Twilight league would play at least one benefit game for Dale Marshall. If any team desires the services of the Clifton Flats team for a benefit game, they can arrange the game by calling 5786 and asking for W. Stitt.

All umpires willing to donate their services for the benefit game on Friday night can call 5786.

Sincerely yours,
HARRY WHITE,
Business Manager of the Clifton Flats team; R. F. D. 1, City.

Cardinals Find Lead Decreasing

YANKEES START WINNING STREAK

By LES CONKLIN,
International News Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Reeling under savage attacks by three rival clubs the St. Louis Cardinals today are in a slump as bad as the one from which the New York Yankees have just emerged. With six defeats in their last eight starts the Cards lead the fast-stepping New York Giants by only 2 1-2 games. And they have lost one more game than the New Yorkers, who did not play yesterday.

The Cubs beat the Cards yesterday, winning 4 to 2. Home runs by Hack Wilson and Kiki Cuyler caused Flint Rhem to swallow his wad of chewing tobacco and wafted the big mountainer clear into the clubhouse. Wilson's homer was his 27th of the season but Sunny Jim Bottomley of the Cards kept pace with the Chicago cherub by walloping No. 25.

Pennock in Form.

Meanwhile Sir Herbert Pennock of the Yankees turned in a three-hit classic against the Boston Red Sox for his 17th victory of the season 8 to 0.

New York's four-star pitching staff—Pennock, Hoyt, Pipgras and Heimach—has turned in five straight wins and the Yanks are five full games ahead of the Athletics who were idle yesterday.

With old Ep Rixey on the mound, Cincinnati beat he Phillies 6 to 3. George Kelley starred at bat with four hits.

General Alvin Crowder of the Browns held Chicago to four hits, while his mates kayoed Young Ed Walsh and won 7 to 0.

The Detroit Tigers got only five hits off Miller and Hudlin of Cleveland but were leading 2 to 0 until the ninth when the Indians nicked Whitehill for three runs.

Jess Petty of the Dodgers held Boston to six hits and won a 3 to 1 decision over Johnny Cooney.

College Professor Scores A. A. U. Says New Coaches Needed

Professor Of National Collegiate Athletic Association Scores Olympic Methods

Suggests That Domination Of East Be Ditched For More Capable Handlers

By DAVIS J. WALSH
Sports Editor International News Service

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—In a few chosen words not exceeding 100,000, Brigadier General Palmer A. Pierce, professor of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, today sounded what he intended to be the valedictory of A. A. U. domination of amateur athletics, to be general, and American Olympic competition, to be specific. The rule of the favored few is about over, he intimated, and while he declined to lay the blame for American track failures directly at their door until he could learn the particulars, he somehow neglected to indicate that he felt these failures would injure his case.

"The time when a few men in the East can sit down in an office on lower Broadway and run the country's athletics by divine right is past long since," the general declared. "That was a condition that did very well in the old days when most of the competitors were in the East and, therefore, received direct attention and supervision. Times have changed greatly since then, but A. A. U. goes right on dominating under the old rules and regulations."

It was General Pierce's expressed thought that, the A. A.U. having had its chance and failed, the time was ripe for a supervisory revolution that would unseat the "archaic" form of government now in the saddle and install a few new faces with new and perhaps better ideas.

Colleges Lead

Bothe the men and their ideas would come from the colleges, the latter being almost nationally represented in Pierce's organization. The colleges supply 90 per cent of the athletes who comprise the American Olympic track and field team, yet have little or nothing to say about the activities of that team, he stated.

Among other things, he felt that the selection of the Olympic coaches should have been in the hands of a more widely representative coterie. In brief, he intimated that star chamber proceedings were in order when these nominations were acted upon.

"It is not my intention to offer criticisms of what happened in Amsterdam until the fact is established that criticism is deserved," he added. "However, I am well acquainted with what happened here before the team sailed. The colleges should have had something to say about the men who were placed in charge of their athletes. They had absolutely nothing to say about it, although we were much more adequately represented in the Olympic association this year than ever before.

Need Good Coaches

"I am not complaining about the men who were selected. They are good men, as their records prove. However, I think an old hand like Stagg's could have been used to advantage in Amsterdam. He is recognized everywhere as a great handler of men, and our Olympic teams need plenty of handling.

"The fact that the coaches were named without what we would term representative consideration is the source of our objection. One of our representatives in the Olympic association never attended a meeting because he never was notified to attend. He wired the first time to say he couldn't be there, and after that he was ignored. So were seven of the eight members of the team selection committee in one notable instance.

"No, the few men of the East had to rule, and now the end of that rule can't be far off. A few more failures and it might end automatically."

Cascade All-Stars And Imperials Split

The Cascade All-Stars and the Jewish Imperials split a double bill at the Cascade field on Saturday afternoon. The Cascade team won the first game 10 to 2 and the Imperials battled eleven innings to snatch the second game 3 to 2.

N. Ferry on the hill for the Cascade team in the first game held the Imperials to five hits and fanned thirteen men. Ferry had complete control of the game. Martin featured the game with a home run drive. Rogovin and H. Plant on the knoll for the Imperials were hit hard.

The second game was a pitchers battle between Martin and J. Lewis with the latter having the best of the argument. Lewis allowed five hits and fanned eleven men, while Martin permitted but five hits and had five strikeouts. The Imperials shoved over the winning run in the final half of the eleventh frame. H. Plant and Lenhart were the leading sluggers.

Homestead Grays Trim New Castle

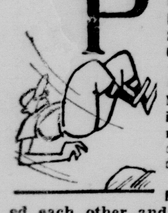
GARINER'S SINGLE SCORES CALDERON



PEOPLE who like to see good baseball had their fill Saturday at Centennial field when the Homestead Grays defeated New Castle 3 to 2, in what properly might be called a classic of local production.

Lefty Williams Earl Mosely opposed each other and while the Grays registered victory it can be said that Mosely had an edge on the colored pitcher.

The Grays chalked up two runs in the first when Gardner doubled to left. The ball took a bad hop and he went to third when Yoxcheimer let a ball get away.

DeHigo, the Cuban, fanned, but V. Harris doubled, scoring Gardner and a moment later the hearts of the Centennials appeared faint when Beckwith singled and V. Harris scored the Grays' second run.

New Castle went to bat and Hogan, who got to first on a free trip, scored when Calderson tried to catch Sankey McCullough, who had singled, going to second.

Score is Tied.

The score remained 2 to 1 until the sixth inning when Gibson drove a double to center and Sankey McCullough, who had partly engineered the first tally, romped home.

With DeHigo on third in the eighth inning Mosely purposely passed the good batter, Beckwith, with four pitched balls and then fanned Graham, which sent the Grays back to their positions in the field.

With the fans on edge in the ninth M. Harris went to bat and singled through the box Calderon went to first on Grimes' error which it might be said was a break against Mosely.

Game is Decided.

Britt sacrificed, Mosely to Shannon, and with the second and third bases occupied, Lefty Williams hit a hot one to Shannon, who made a great heave to Yoxcheimer.

Yoxcheimer got the ball and put M. Harris out as he slid into the home plate and the duo, Yoxcheimer and Shannon, drew forth a great ovation from the fans.

Gardner went to bat with Calderon on the path, two strikes were called. The next one sailed over the plate and Gardner nailed it for a single and Calderon scored the winning run. The box score:

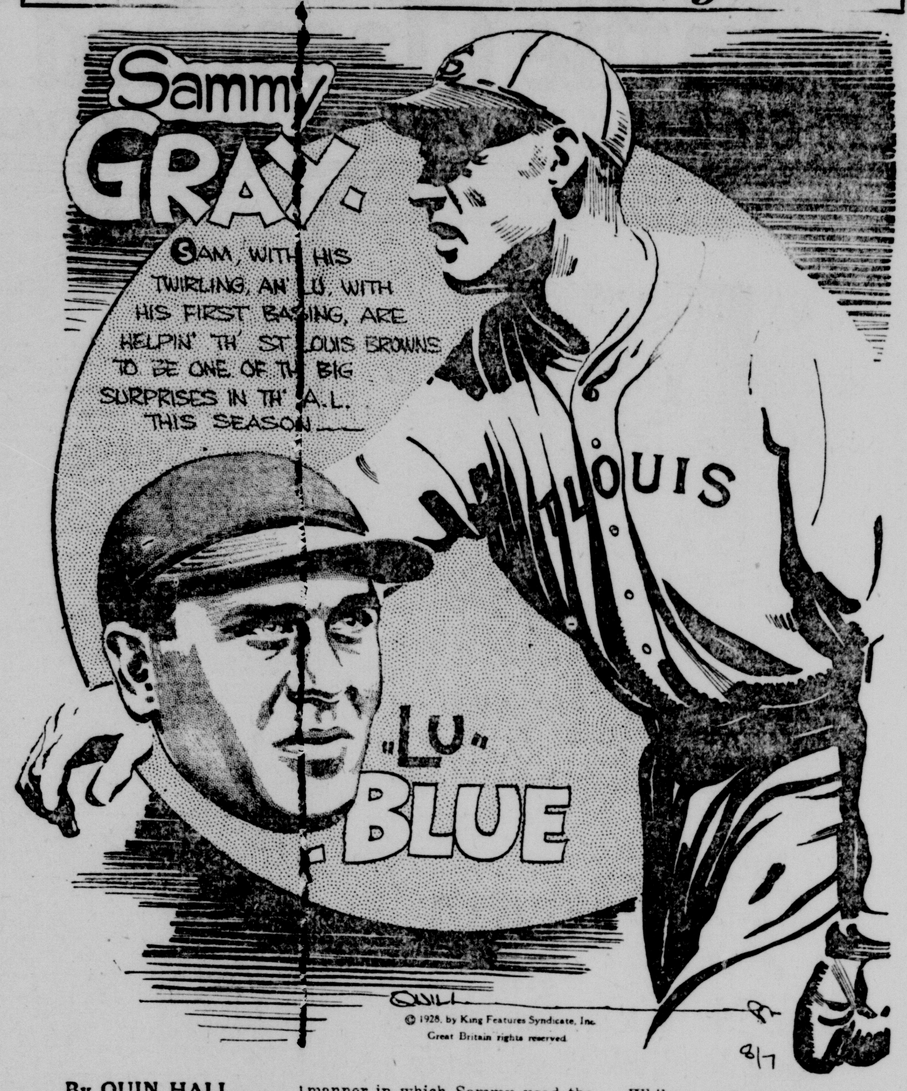
The Blue and the Gray Aces



By QUIN HALL.

DAN HOWLEY, the manager of the St. Louis Browns, seems to be right smart when it comes to mixing up well known combinations. Dan has taken a youthful lot of ball players and mixed them in proper proportions with a few well seasoned campaigners and is giving St. Louis one of the fightingest teams it ever had in the American League.

In addition Dan has whetted up the patriotic fervor and once again recalled the stirring Civil War days by bringing under the same tent the Blue and the Gray.

Sammy Gray, with his steady pitching, is responsible for a mess of St. Louis victories so far this season and is good for a lot more before the final standings are passed over to the hot stove league and Lou Blue is doing a first class job of initial sacking for the Browns.

The very thing that led to Connie Mack trading off Gray is proving Sammy's ace in the hole during the present campaign. Connie didn't like the persistent manner in which Sammy used the lob ball. Mack insisted that it was so slow that the opposing batters just got set and waited for it to arrive and then parked it in the four corners of the apple orchard.

Gray is using the same delivery this year, mixing it with his fast ones for a change of pace and is meeting with considerable success. Sammy, however, agrees that he's perfected the delivery so that it is much more deadly this year than last. He intimates that he needs lots of work and that on the big staff of the Athletics he didn't get a chance to pitch as often as he really should. He contends that his control improves with frequent work and he is of the opinion that he can twirl much better when he is allowed to take to the hill every fourth day.

Some of the fans were inclined to censure Mack when he traded Gray, who was acknowledged the outstanding young pitcher in 1925, to the Browns for Bing Miller. But Miller is helping out the Athletics with his heavy clouting, and Connie is in no manner angered over the trade or the fact that Sammy is making good in his new surroundings on the banks of the Mississippi River.

While never being an exceptional heavy handler of of the mace, Lou Blue has done his bit toward helping make the Browns what they are today. He covers the territory around the initial corner in an able manner, and he is a steadying influence to an infield which is very new in some spots and yet very capable.

The Browns present a pretty formidable front these days and they are proving that they can upset the bean basket for some of the so-called experting experts of the game—a few of whom gave the club no better a spot than the cellar for the end of the season.

The wise ones in the game are alloting a place in the first division to Dan Howley's crew, and if the Athletics should crack it wouldn't be at all surprising to see the Browns on the second rung of the ladder. And Howley has a few rather green timbers which are sure to show a world of improvement, and it looks as if they would come into next year's race highly respected by the other clubs in the circuit.

And probably again next year we will find the Blue and the Gray still nestling together under the wing of Dan Howley.

New Environment Is Cause Of Sisler's Fine Comeback

By NORMAN E. BROWN
Sports Writer for Central Press and New Castle News

Just what is the reason for George Sisler's remarkable comeback as a member of the Boston Braves?

The veteran first baseman, who stood a fair chance of rivaling Ty Cobb's career until sinus trouble shortened, and for a time threatened to end his baseball days, is going great guns for the National league club. This after being permitted to step out of the American league as a has-been.

He is hitting .350 or better, fielding in brilliant style and his whole attitude toward the game and life in general has changed.

Most baseball men will agree it was a mistake to saddle Sisler with the responsibilities of a manager. He is too conscientious—too thin skinned, if you will. His own sensitiveness and his appreciation of the presence of human frailties made him entirely unfitted for the whip-wielding duties of a pilot.

His belief that the average ball player would give his best without prodding and his quiet earnestness in carrying out his duties as pilot were misunderstood by players and fans as well.

His failure to deliver, with the material at hand and acquired for him, hurt Sisler worse than anyone else. It affected his playing. He became moody. But for the cheering presence of Jimmy Austin, veteran third baseman and "sidekick," Sisler might have quit the game when he failed to recover rapidly from the effects of the sinus trouble.

Apparently the strain of managing his club hindered Sisler in regaining his old form after the near tragedy. Worry probably retarded the recovery of his eyesight. This year, relieved of all outside duties and removed from the scene of his worries and managerial efforts, he has persued the even tenor of his ways. That is probably the answer to why he has played such great ball.

And it is in keeping with the misfortunes that have befallen Sisler that these efforts should be tossed on the desert air as the Braves, despite the presence of Hornsby as pilot, have failed to get any place.

Seven Injured When Elevated Trains In New York Collide

Empty Elevated Train Halts On Curve And Collision Occurs

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Seven persons were injured and traffic was delayed more than an hour today when an eastbound B. M. T. elevated train crashed into the rear of an empty string of cars.

The crash occurred on a sharp curve. The injured were in the front cars of the second train. All were taken to the Bradford street hospital.

The rear train motorman said the empty train stopped unexpectedly and that as he attempted to halt his train the brakes failed to hold. The motorman of the leading train said his motor had stalled on a curve and that the rear train crashed into the rear end of his train before he could get it under way again.

Fire broke out almost immediately in the empty train, necessitating a general alarm. The flames did not reach the loaded train, passengers of which scrambled off and walked along the trestling to a nearby station.

FINE OF $10.

Ten dollars or ten days was the sentence meted out to Roy Goodhart of East Madison avenue this morning in police court where he appeared on a charge of beating his wife.

New Castle Boy Sees Chum Killed

Auto Strikes Chum Of New Castle Lad Visiting In Cleveland, O.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 13.—A 9-year-old boy, Fred Heptley was killed instantly late yesterday afternoon at the corner of Bellaire Road and Columbia avenue S. W. where after alighting from a bus he stepped in the path of a passing automobile.

He and a chum, Frank Kulka 15, of New Castle, Pa., were returning from a ball game at Puritas Springs park. As they stepped off the bus, Heptley without pausing to look according to police reports darted into the street.

"Wait a minute!" Kulka called to him. "Wait until traffic clears."

Just as Kulka spoke a sedan going west on Columbia road struck the boy. The driver was not held by police but facts in the accident are to be presented to the prosecutor today.

Olympic Athletes Leave Amsterdam

Queen Wilhelmina Of Holland Awards Medals To Athletes In Closing Program

NEW OFFICIALS SADLY NEEDED

By FREDERICK K. ABBOTT
International News Service Staff Correspondent

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 13.—With most of the athletes who contested in the Olympic games on their way home this city settled down to normal life today. Most of the Americans had already departed, some having gone to London to take part in the dual meet with the British Olympic team. From London the Americans go to Stockholm on their barnstorming tour.

The Olympiad officially came to a close yesterday. Queen Wilhelmina attended the closing session and received a tremendous ovation.

The equestrian competitions were among the final events on the program, Holland and Poland being tied for first place.

The last event was obstacle jumping, Spain getting first. The American contestants in this event were eliminated after the first round.

Queen Awards Medals

Prize-winners of all nations lined up on the field at the end of the day's program to receive their honors. The American contingent consisted of 35 persons, 12 of them women. Queen Wilhelmina herself handed out the medals. The United States got 22 first prizes.

The majority of the national delegations were satisfied, since 31 nations were represented in the prize list. The United States carried away more first prizes than the next two nations combined. These nations were Germany, with 11 first, and Finland, with eight.

The biggest upset was the failure of the American track men to win as many events as they had hoped for. American boxers also failed to win a single championship.

Steps are being taken to insure better judging in future Olympic boxing contests. Otherwise several nations will probably refuse to enter boxing teams.

Need New Officials

The judging was so faulty that a story is going round that one judge admitted he had never seen a boxing match before. This story is generally credited.

It is believed that a movement is afoot to insure more efficient starters for future track events, even if they are so-called professionals.

There is belief in some quarters that a majority of the Olympic difficulties which bob up anew every four years could be eliminated if the Olympic games were given a permanent home somewhere in Europe.

It is probable, however, that this idea will fail to make much headway owing to the competition of various cities to get this premier sporting event.

N. Y. STOCKS

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Aug 13.—The active buying movement in U. S. Steel common which featured the closing sessions of last week was in evidence in the early trading today. Demand for the stock was seen in quarters which usually act for the insiders and powerful financial interests in Wall street and Pittsburgh. A block of 11,000 shares of the stock sold at 144, after which steel rose to 145 for a new 2 point gain. Chrysler Motor was also in great demand around 95, up 2½ from Saturday's close.

The 7½ per cent renewal call rate posted at 10:40 a. m. was a reminder of the tight money market situation. Call market supplies of funds from the outside were in slightly smaller volume. Trade and business reports were unchanged, but some disappointment was expressed over the apparent dwindling of steel orders since the turn of the month.

New York Central led a moderate advance in the railroad shares in the first period, but outside interest was lacking and the move did not carry very far. Chrysler was the feature of the motors, with Dodge and Packard firm. Trading in all sections of the market dwindled in the second hour.

Inspection Of Corn Fields Shows Corn Borer Is Still Menace In Lawrence County

Intensive survey of the corn fields of Lawrence county by R. P. Wolfslayer, Joseph Ryburn and Fred Bonnell, inspectors of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, at the direction of Dr. C. G. Jordan, secretary of Agriculture, to determine the extent of the ravages of the "corn borer" in this county this year, is not as reassuring as might have been hoped for.

A survey of 114 farms in various sections of the county by these men resulted in the corn borer being found on 63 of these farms. The fact that the corn borer is again on more than fifty percent of the farms examined, would indicate that probable necessity of again establishing a quarantine in this county because of the presence of the corn borer.

According to these inspectors, who have now been transferred to Washington county, Pa., the northern section of the county seems to have more of a tendency to have the corn borer, than the southern section, fewer infected corn fields being found, the farther south the inspectors went.

As nearly as possible, a corn field in every mile was inspected. Six townships were covered, with Pulaski township receiving the closest scrutiny by the inspectors.

The result of the inspection in the several townships was as follows:—Wilmington township: 8 farms with and 11 farms without corn borers; Pulaski township: 25 farms with and 6 farms without corn borers; Neshannock township: 9 farms with and six farms without corn borers; Union township: 9 farms with and two farms without corn borers; Shenango township: 3 farms with and 14 farms without corn borers; North Beaver township: 9 farms with and 14 farms without corn borers.

Indications are that the farmers of the county must continue their battle against the corn borer in as energetic a manner as in the past, if they hope to rid themselves of the pest.

Some News, Some Views, But Mostly Just Observations Of Interesting Things Around New Castle

Automobile racing is an interesting sport, on tracks such as they have at Indianapolis or Altoona, but on city streets there is more or less danger connected with it. Saw a race about midnight last night that would have done credit to a race track but certainly didn't add any to the safety of the streets.

The lead car was doing about 65 miles per hour and the one chasing it was doing about 64½. As they went by Falls street there was just a whir and they were gone. If they continued the pace they were going they were both due in Erie in about 90 minutes, if that's where they were going.

Of course one of them might have swerved just a bit, or a tire might have exploded, or a wheel might have cracked. Or some other car might have come out of a side street. I say this might have happened and someone might have gotten killed.

All of which would no doubt have brought out the testimony in court that neither of the cars was going more than 25 to 30 miles per hour.

North Jefferson street is hardly the place for automobile races unless the ordinary driver is ruled off.

Castalia, O., has been discovered. Hugh Horton is back from his vacation and says that Castalia is five miles south of Sandusky, O. The feature of Castalia is a pool of water known as the Blue Hole which has four outlets but no visible inlet. The depth of it has never been discovered, no fish live in it because of the lack of air and food, and the temperature is always 48 degrees winter and summer. Looking down into it is a treat, according to Hugh for it shows a veritable fairyland.

Hugh tried a vacation this year that most of us have always wanted to try. A motor trip through the country, camping out every night. Some of the camp sites he visited were beauties, among them that of the Toledo, O., police department. They have built a camp that rivals anything in the United States according to Mr. Horton is well worth a visit. But the big thing was to locate Castalia, O., and that's done.

Folks can rave all they wish about the Delaware Water Gap, but just between the two of us, this section of the state has a piece of scenery that rivals it in my estimation. On the road between East Brady and Clarion is a spot called The Narrows.

The road resembles a hog's back, running along a ridge that looks down on two valleys. In the one valley is the Allegheny River winding its tortuous way between the hills and after seeing the Delaware Water Gap, and The Norrows, the latter has some things that the Gap has not.

For an afternoon's ride, that loop trip from here to Butler, to East Brady, to Clarion, to Franklin and home is just right. One can leave after dinner, and be home in time for the evening meal. The length is just about 150 miles, all good road, and scenery that rivals the mountains. Made the trip Sunday afternoon and the only thing to mar it was a flat tire as we were getting back to New Castle.

There are picnics, and picnics, but the Old Timers picnic which will be on Wednesday has something that none of the others offer. Its an annual event that is enjoyed 12 months in the year.

CONTEST.

The spirit of contest never dies in human kind. Comes now a French barber who gives himself a good twice over shave in 27 seconds. He sets this out as the world's record. As far as the writer who never shaves himself is concerned it always be.

We have had contests in about everything we can think of. Flag pole sitting, a pleasant diversion for those who like it has faded out in popularity. In fact it was never taken up by any considerable number of folks most of whom prefer golf although flag pole sitting offers a much more inspiring view of the landscape and gives ampler time for reflection.

Speaking of contests, Chicago has a woman who claims to have the longest hair in the world. She is Mrs. Ethel Posetlethwoite and her hair braids seven inches longer than the hair of an Irish girl living in London, who thought she held the record. The Chicago woman has a daughter whose hair at birth, was long enongh at birth to put a ribbon on. Tie that.

LABOR.

Labor since man began to work, has passed through stages. First there was the individualist—every man for himself. Then there was specilization—groups doing one thing and groups doing other things. Then there was exploitation—large numbers working for one man or a small group of men without much regard for hours and wages and comfort. And now we have the stage of co-operation—both employees and employers recognizing the mutual advantage of helping each other. As an outstanding example of the age and stage of co-operation, we have the General Motors corporation taking out $400,000,000 worth of life insurance on 200,000 workers. The expense will be shared by the company and the men.

COST OF LIVING.

Chemistry is always creating new values. Market prices based on scarcity of production are destined to be upset by tremendous new production methods made possible by chemical engineers. Rapidly we are learning how to manufacture in vaster quantities and more cheaply. Steinmetz once said electricity might some day be generated so cheaply as to be almost devoid of price. Will the chemists some day do this for food?

Allege Colored Women Attack Man And Woman

Trio Accused Of Having Made Knife Attack On Mary Smith Of Howard Way

Charged with cutting Mary Smith of 1316 Howard way about the arms and hips with criminal intent, Bessy Perry, colored, the wife of Leslie Perry, together with Essie Epps and Susie Gray of Cleveland, was the information made by Leslie Perry, before Alderman Marshall this morning, following an interrogation at the New Castle police department, where the three women were incarcerated overnight on the charge of being suspicious characters.

Bessie Perry, the estranged wife of Leslie Perry, came to New Castle from Cleveland Sunday afternoon.

Immediately after church services Sunday evening, when Leslie Perry and Mary Smith were walking down Moravia street, the three women assaulted Mary Smith, cutting her badly on the left arm, left hip, right arm and right hip. Leslie Perry also received a severe cut on the right shoulder which it took several stitches to close, according to the police.

Then the three women climbed in an automobile and started back to Cleveland. Leslie Perry informed Motorcycle Officer Richards of the affair, and he gave chase, catching the car on the Youngstown hill. A knife, which is alleged to have been used in the cutting, was found on the floor of the car. Together with William Harris, Odell Sherman and Goldwine Rivers, colored, of Cleveland, who were in the car, the three women were locked up in the city jail pending a hearing. This morning they were still in the jail, pending trial in the alderman's court.

BOATING PARTY MISSING IN COAST STORM

Will Is Given Big Surprise As Hoover Accepts

(Special To The News)

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Aug. 13.—Well, the whole thing Saturday over the radio certainly was a surprise to me. I didn't think Hoover would accept. But he did.

He says every man has the right to ask the following questions: "Is the United States a better place for the average man to live in because the Republican party has conducted the government eight years?

If we are privileged to ask the question, I will be the first to bite. Is it?

In the first place, Herbert don't know all about human nature, or he wouldn't try to appeal to the average man. No man wants to admit that he is average.

Did you see the picture and specifications of that average man they located last year? That took all the joy out of wanting to be average.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

PA NEWC OBSERVES

Coupled with the unusual weather conditions of yesterday, when a cool wave struck the city, by way of a change, was the spectacular sunset of the evening. It has been a long time since the western sky was tinted with such hues as were noted as the sun went down, Sunday evening.

This is the week when the old timers get together again. On Tuesday the Reynoldstown reunion will be held, while on Wednesday, the annual Old Timers' Day will be observed at Cascade Park. Indications are for a big turnout on Wednesday.

Have you ever sat on the porch of the Almira home. If you haven't, you've missed something. The huge pillars on the porch make one believe he is on the veranda of a colonial mansion and the huge lawn stretching out to the street give it the air and seclusion of a country home.

Pa [illegible]d into the park floor again [illegible] evening and watched varnish [illegible] caricatures of flaming youth fa[illegible]goeing and double shuffling. No wonder the oldtimers ju[illegible] lean back and spread sagely grin[illegible] across their countenances when the younger set say that the old time dances were funny. Pa Newc saw one couple dancing that were giving a prize exhibition of rickets in the advanced stages and a shuffle that would make the saint vitus dance drop into a hovel ashamed.

Pa Newc dropped in unceremoniously on the Greek American Progressive Association picnic yesterday out some way from the Seventh ward at Shadyside park. They had a large delegation from all over the western section of the state. The music by a 36 piece band was fine and they treated Pa Newc royally even though he didn't give them the key to Niagara.

Have you noticed the flowers at the west end of the West Washington street bridge as you go down to the station? They are the coveted property of the railroad and are certainly beautiful to the observers eye as he passes for awhile through all sorts of scenery that include anything but flowers.

Out in the Mt. Jackson district they have gone two days without a robbery! Residents have been oiling up weapons of every sort since the recent deluge of thievery and house breaking.

Perspiration rolled down the faces of the "shock troops" at the police department Saturday evening. It was not a hot night. Telephones jangled, reporting this and that. And when the books were opened at police court Sunday morning, it was found that 49 cases had been docketed between the hours of four Saturday afternoon and four Sunday morning. There were charges of drunkeness, disorderly house proprietors and visitors, and some arrests for plain and fancy gambling. Two were for drunken driving and driving without a license.

Of all things, the talk turned to poetry in the lobby of The Castleton Sunday evening. In discussing this

Atlantic Coast Whipped By Mid-Summer Gale; Shipping Is Imperilled

SEVERAL RESCUED FROM DROWNING

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—A small motorboat containing three men and two women today was reported missing off the Jersey Coast after the roaring mid-summer gale which lashed the seaboard from Chesapeake Bay to Sandy Hook.

The party left Island Beach, near Toms River, shortly before the storm broke, about midnight Saturday. Nothing has been heard of the craft, though marine men at Island Beach expressed confidence that the party found shelter somewhere along shore.

The storm, striking inland in places but skirting New York, left one dead, and coast guardsmen reported approximately one hundred rescues.

George Hopman, Jersey City fireman, was killed by a blown-down electric wire as he was stepping into a cab in front of his home.

The gale was the tail end of the tropical hurricane which swept Florida earlier in the week. Along the Maryland coast the wind attained a velocity of 70 miles an hour.

The mid-Atlantic coast is threatened with a new-born hurricane today. It was reported from Little Cayman Island in the West Indies, gath-

BODYGUARDS WARN BLACKMER OF PLOT

(International News Service)

PARIS, Aug. 13.—A sensational report that an attempt was made to "kidnap" Henry M. Blackmer, rich American oil magnate and missing Teapot Dome witness, was circulated here today.

The foreign office at the present time has under consideration a request from Washington for the extradition of Blackmer, who is wanted to answer a charge of perjury in connection with his income tax statements in Colorado.

According to the report Blackmer was invited to dine on a yacht flying the United States flag. At the last moment while he was stepping into a launch to go to the yacht, one of his two bodyguards warned him that there might be a plot and prevented him from boarding the boat.

According to the newspaper Presse, the yacht was owned by enemies of Blackmer who intended to carry him to the United States once he was on board.

MANY SEE CORN BORER EXHIBIT AT THE NEWS

Marking an innovation in the State of Pennsylvania, in the work of fighting the European Corn Borer, a demonstration was held in the office of The New Castle News on Saturday afternoon and evening in which hundreds of interested citizens saw for themselves what havoc the borer can do, and the manner in which it works.

The demonstration was the result of co-operation between Dr. Charles G. Jordon, Secretary of Agriculture, and Fred L. Rentz, Vice President and head of the Agricultural department of the New Castle Chamber of Commerce.

That the idea was a popular one was proved by the fact that all afternoon and evening both city and country residents filled the lobby of The News, seeing for themselves the work of the corn borer.

Plan Conference With State Board On Bridge Project

City, County, Chamber Of Commerce And Citizens Will Be Represented

Matter Of Type Of Bridge Is Not Settled; Controversy Over Plan For Pier

Clyde Smith, Quincy McBride and Ira Ramsey chamber of commerce representatives today appeared before council in formal meeting and speaking in behalf of the chamber Smith requested that council send a representative to meet with the water resource power board at Harrisburg August 29 in an effort to hurry construction of the bridge across Neshannock river at North street and Neshannock avenue.

Council delegated Mayor Gillespie to attend the meeting.

Pier is Questioned.

According to Smith the engineer from the state expressed the personal opinion that the state would not approve plans of the bridge if the plans call for a pier. Smith said that he does not believe a pier which is called for in the plans would result in any damage. He said a bridge with an arch would not conform to the appearance or enhance the appearance of the residential section where the structure is to be located.

Smith said that the chamber of commerce and county commissioners had agreed to send representatives to meet with the board and the chamber of commerce would select a property owner residing along the river front or one interested in property Therefore Smith said it would be the correct move by council for a member to be delegated to represent the city.

Councilman Reeves presented a resolution which resolved that "whatever plans the county shall adopt and the state approve will be satisfactory to the city of New Castle." The resolution was amended to read that Mayor Gillespie represent council at the meeting. The resolution was adopted.

Governor Smith Plans Campaign

Dr. John R. Straton Bars Church As Place For Debate With Gov. Smith

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Dr. John Roach Straton in a statement on his proposed debate with Governor Al Smith over the statement by the pastor that Governor Smith was "the deadliest foe of moral progress and political wisdom in America today," bars the use of Calvary Baptist church, of which Dr. Straton is the pastor, as the place of meeting.

Previously Dr. Straton had accepted the challenge of the governor and said he would repeat the charge and allow the governor to answer him in the pulpit of Calvary church provided the debate could be repeated in St. Patrick's cathedral, at the same time he suggested that a larger auditorium, such as Madison Square Garden, be obtained for the discussion in order to accommodate the large crowd that would be attracted.

In Dr. Straton's latest statement he says that his former acceptance naming his own church and St. Patrick's cathedral, was made in a "jocular vein" and that under no circumstances could he permit his own church to be used for a purely political discussion.

Dr. Straton says he stands ready to meet Governor Smith at any other place and at any time except on the "Lord's day". It also is understood that the trustees of Calvary church have refused to permit the debate in the church.

THREE MEN TAKE PART IN ROBBERY

No arrests have been made as yet in connection with the robbery of the Norman Jewelry store on North Mill street, which took place at about 6 o'clock Sunday morning when three men threw a brick through one of the windows, and then removed merchandise valued at $650, it is stated at noon today at the New Castle police department.

The three men were in a large touring car, bearing Ohio license E65-002.

As James Edmondson, a night watchman at the Scottish Rite cathedral, was going home from work, he noticed this car cruise up to the store and park. STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., Aug. 13.—Herbert Hoover ,dry; Alfred E. Smith, wet!

For the first time since its adoption eight years ago, prohibition today became a major issue in a Presidential election with Herbert Hoover, the Republican nominee, definitely committed to the outlawry of intoxicating liquors. The issue will be joined 10 days hence when Governor Alfred E. Smith, the Democratic nominee, declares himself for liberalization of the Volstead act.

Opposes Repeal

Hoover today stood on record as opposed to repeal of the 18th amendment, as pledged to efficient enforcement of the Volstead act, as opposed to nullification of the 18th amendment through liberalization of the Volstead act, and as pledged to the correction of all abuses of the prohibition statutes.

In drafting this stand on prohibition for his acceptance speech, International News Service learned on the highest authority Hoover believed he was "burning all his bridges behind him" so far as prohibition is concerned. The Republican nominee believed he had definitely committed himself to the dry side of the prohibition question. This, at least, was his purpose, according to unimpeachable authority.

The nominee, however, did not and does not desire to battle out the campaign on the prohibition issue. He looks upon prohibition as a "great moral experiment", as he publicly stated, and feels it should be decided on a non-partisan basis and not as a part of any political campaign. The

Note Washed Ashore In Bottle At Rottum Island Is Taken For "Hoax"

(International News Service)

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 13.—A bottle was washed ashore today at Rottumeroog, Rottum Island, containing a message signed "Roald Amundsen," but it is believed to be a hoax.

The message in the bottle follows: "Latham one point seven point 28 degrees 23 minutes east, Roald Amundsen."

Belief that the message is false was based upon the fact that the writer failed to give both latitude and longitude. It is thought that Amundsen would have specified his position exactly if he had actually written the note.

The explorer was in a French Latham seaplane when he disappeared with five companions in June.

Though the summer still is with us, and hot weather has the call, all the clothing stores are showing tricky styles to wear this fall. Suits with stripes and suits of color, blues and browns and some in green, suits that make the viewer shudder, patterns that you've never seen. Prices, well they're not so dreadful, so the haberdahers say, just about the weather's level, it is seventy today. Toss away the palm beach clothing, hang the linens in the hall, style demands a brand new outfit, like they're showing for the fall.

Returns To New Castle After 52 Years' Absence; Is Amazed At Large City

Returning to New Castle after having been away for over 52 years is the experience of Mrs. James Boyd, who lived here when the city was a village with no street cars, and who has resided in Chicago, Ill., since 1876 where she moved when a little girl.

When the reporter asked Mrs. Boyd if New Castle had changed, she replied, "Oh my yes, it certainly has." Although Mrs. Boyd was but a small girl when her family moved from here to Chicago, she remembers vividly many things about the little old village of New Castle.

Mrs. Boyd's home was out along the old car tracks that went to Cascade Park by way of Hamilton street on the South Side. Since her visit here she has taken a ride out in an automobile, which by the way, was the first time she ever rode to her girlhood home in a motor vehicle, and found her girlhood home in near ruins.

In those days, said Mrs. Boyd, it was called "Punkintown" but I don't know what they call it now. There were several houses, possibly eight or ten in the little group that formed the village. It was quite a little distance in those days from the center of the town.

With regards to New Castle, her

Stresemann Will Sign Treaty For German Republic

(International News Service)

BERLIN, Aug. 13.—Foreign secretary Gustav Etresemann will go to Paris in person to sign the American anti-war treaty on behalf of Germany, it was learned today. Formal announcement to this effect is expected within the next few days.

France has invited Germany to participate in the conference on August 27 when the pact will be signed and the German foreign office will send its acceptance before the end of the week.

It is felt here that Dr. Stresemann will have an opportunity to discuss reparations with the American secretary of state, Frank B. Kellogg and Foreign Minister Briand, of France, even if the conversations are only informal.

There is a disposition to believe that Secretary Kellogg will be sounded out upon the suggestion that an international conference be called next year to take up both reparations and war debts. While the United States may discuss reparations it is believed doubtful that the American government will consent to a discussion of war debts.

Out the Wilmington road, the members of the Kegarise Air Transport company were tuning up their machine Sunday afternoon. Some cars were parked in front of the landing field, but only a few. Which only goes to prove, thinks Pa Newc, that the modern American is somewhat like the citizens of ancient Athens in that he is always seeking some new thing. Last spring, when airplanes were somewhat of a novelty in and about New Castle, one could not get through the traffic which had parked in front of the airport.

ering in force and traveling towards the Florida coast.

Many Are Rescued

Coast guards all along the coast from Maryland to Long Island were kept busy rescuing nearly 100 persons who had been caught in small boats. In Delaware Bay several boats were sunk and the persons on board had narrow escapes from death.

A motor boat which put out from Toms River, N. J., with five persons on board, is missing.

The steamer Innoko, bound for Philadelphia from Rotterdam, picked up a man off the coast who was clinging to the wreckage of a schooner.

Heavy damage was done to beach resorts along the Long Island Coast. At Long Beach one of the most fashionable winter resorts on the Long Island coast, huge waves ripped away portions of the board walk.

A four ton whale was washed ashore at Mantoloking, N. J., it was believed to have been killed by the propeller of a ship. It was cast upon the beach amid the storm wreckage.

Reports from the south state that the floods which followed the earlier storms in that district are receding.

MANY SEE CORN BORER EXHIBIT AT THE NEWS

Plant Industry of the Department of Agriculture were present during the demonstration and answered the many questions that were put to them. The three, R. P. Wolslayer, Joseph Ryburn and Fred Bonnell have been engaged in inspection of Lawrence county.

In Wilmington township, 8 fields were found with corn borer and 11 without. In Pulaski township, 25 were found with it and 6 without. In Neshannock township, 9 were found with it and 6 without. In Union township 9 were found with it and 2 without. In Shenango township 3 were found with it and 14 without. In North Beaver township 9 were found with it and 14 without. From their inspection it seems that the corn borer is working southward and farmers of the county must exert themselves or the pest will increase.

Many stalks of corn were in the lobby, all of them showing the various stages of the corn borer, and a number of specimens were shown in bottles. Much interest was shown in the demonstration and it is probable that similar demonstrations will be conducted in various counties.

from these three Democratic leaders in mapping out his coming campaign. It is known that Smith has a high regard for the political sagacity of Senator Walsh and that he will be guided to a large extent in the campaign by any advice which the Montana senator may offer.

In inviting George and Daniels to confer with him the governor is understood to have told his advisers that he feels they are especially qualified to picture to him the political situation below the Mason-Dixon line.

Undecided On South.

Whether Smith will make one or two campaign speeches in the south will depend largely upon the information given him by the two southern leaders. Several national Democratic leaders are said to have recently written Smith, suggesting that he include some of the southern states in his campaign itinerary.

Leading the farm chiefs to the conference today will be George N. Peek of Moline, Ill., who claims to be the spokesman for a million farmers of the middle west. Peek, normally a Republican, announced recently that he would support Governor Smith.

The conference between Smith and the farm leaders was arranged by Peek and is looked upon as his first move to deliver the farm vote of the middle west to the Democratic ticket.

Farm leaders who are expected to come to Albany with Peek include the following: Earl C. Smith, president of the Illinois Agricultural association; Frank W. Murphy of Wheaton, Minn.; William Hirth of Columbia, Mo.; X Caverno, Republican of Canalou, Mo.; W. H. Settle, president of the Indiana Farm Bureau federation; J. N. Kehoe of Nashville, Ky.; Dr. B. W. Kilgore, president of the American Cotton Growers' exchange of Raleigh, N. C. and Chester C. Davis, active in farm relief work in Chicago and Washington.

RETURNS TO NEW CASTLE AFTER 52 YEARS' ABSENCE

Amazed at City.

She was amazed on her visit to behold a city with factories smoking, railroads and street cars along with the large territory that New Castle covers. She has driven about the city and marvels at the beautiful buildings that stand where there were only cow pastures when she left for the west.

In those days, New Castle was small. There were only a few railroad tracks winding up through the valley and there were no street cars. The streets were not paved and travelling through town in the wet weather was somewhat like the traffic on the worst of the smaller country roads during the winter and spring months.

Washington street was just the average dull street of any small town during the seventies. Horses and buggies were tied to hitching posts and an automobile was not even imagined or heard of. The steam locomotive was the sight to look at those days, said Mrs. Boyd.

There were only two dry goods stores on Washington street at the time that Mrs. Boyd left the city. Of course they handled other miscellanies but they were called dry goods stores. There were a few other little stores, liveries and of course the old time saloon which littered every city and town in those days.

Mrs. Boyd says that even though she knew nothing would be the same and that every modern invention would be here, her memories of the old town were still with her and she had hoped for a few of the old sights. Thinking of the old sights had not made her realize it as the modern city that she had heard it was.

We hear of New Castle often in Chicago, said Mrs. Boyd but even that does not stop my amazement of the growth of the city in the past 52 years.

Mrs. Boyd and her husband are visiting here for a few days with Mr. and Mrs. J. Lee Cooper of East Long avenue.

Republican nominee does not look upon the Volstead act as "perfect". He feels there should be an impartial investigation of prohibition, its problems and abuses, methods of enforcement and means of correcting abuses. When the "facts" are learned, he is ready to have a new enforcement act placed on the statute books which will carry out the purpose of the 18th amendment—namely, the prohibition of the sale, manufacture or transportation of intoxicating liquors.

Should Investigate

Hoover's position can be summarized in these words: "If the Volstead act is not workable, we should have an investigation to learn how we can make it a success."

Hoover, in his speech Saturday, believed he cleared up all misunderstanding about his position on prohibition. He was said to feel there is no need of further discussion of the question by him. If he does speak on the subject again during the campaign, it will be only because the public has become confused about it and in that event Hoover will declare himself so dry as to leave no doubt in any man's mind.

There was considerable turmoil here over the week-end about Hoover's prohibition stand, due to the action of one of his advisers in giving out an unauthorized "wet" interpretation of his speech. This self-appointed "spokesman" said Hoover really stood for liberalization of the Volstead act, much like Governor Smith, and had tried to so assert himself in the speech. When Hoover learned of this interpretation word was passed out from his headquarters that the "spokesman" had been permanently silenced.

Hoover's Attitude

Hoover's attitude toward prohibition can be understood if his career is studied. He was raised a Quaker and as a child was taught in that faith's rigid creed that drinking was a physical blight and a moral sin. As a youth, in mining camps, he saw the vicious side of drunkenness and the saloon evil. He lost some of his moral scruples against intoxicating liquors traveling about the world, but he welcomed the 18th amendment.

He termed it a "noble" social experiment. Since its adoption he carefully avoided homes where liquor was served at the table in defiance of the law. His closest social friends in Washington are known as "teetotalers". He is a passionate defender of the constitution and as such has no respect for men who defy any portion of it.

Thus far, Hoover is unprepared to say whether or not prohibition is a success. He believes it is still an experiment, and as such should have a fairer and longer test. At heart he opposes prohibitory legislation of all kinds, due to his Quaker training. He believes in social correction by persuasion and not by compulsion, but wants a better test of the dry law before he commits himself on the question of its success as a "great social and economic experiment".

The nominee received hundreds of congratulatory telegrams over the week-end, most of which specifically praised his stand on prohibition.

Hoover will rest here until Thursday night, when he begins his return trip to Washington. He will spend Friday in Los Angeles, Monday in Topeka, visiting Senator Curtis, three days in Iowa and reach Washington about August 26.

Ex-Senator Owen Denies Opposition On Religious Ground

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—Ex-Senator Owen of Oklahoma, who recently threw over the Democratic party to support Herbert Hoover, today denied his opposition to Governor Al Smith for president was based on religious grounds.

"I have never criticized 'Tammany—the Catholic,'" he said in a statement replying to Senator Edwards (D) of New Jersey. "I am notoriously tolerant but I do not approve the senator's unfair political appeal to American Catholics on the ground Tammany is Catholic and belongs to that church and that no one dare criticize Tammany without being charged with criticizing the chuch itself and charged with intolerance and religious bigotry.

"It seems to me to be the depth of political depravity for machine politicians to hide behind the altars of Christ and steal the robes of his self-sacrificing ministers with which to snitch the votes of the innocent and faithful children of the church.

"Thoughtful Catholics might well object to such improper use of their sacred, spiritual relationships."

Beaver Falls Is Defeated

New Castle O.-P. League Leaders Take Game Thursday, 4-3

MOSELY PITCHES EXCELLENT GAME

New Castle, first half champs of the O. and P. league defeated the strong Beaver Falls Elks here last night by the score of four to three. The feature event of the game was the pitching of Earl Mosely. The former big league pitcher fanned nine and yielded but five hits.

The Harvey men scored three runs in the opening chapter when Kestner doubled and Fritz received a free ticket to first base. When Ollie Carnegie, Babe Ruth of the O. & P. came to bat Mosely decided to take a chance on him and the result was that he hit the ball over the right field fence scoring Kestner and Fritz in front of him.

The "Cents" deadlocked the score in the sixth frame when Leonard singled, McCullough doubled, and Shannon singled scoring Leonard and McCullough. Gibson walked advancing Shannon and a minute later Mosely singled tieing the score three all.

The locals scored the winning run in the seventh frame when Graham hit a single, Grimes sacrificed advancing Graham and "Red" Leonard singled scoring Graham.

For the Beaver Falls team the hitting of Carnegie and Fritz featured while Leonard and McCullough were the best for the locals.

Dewberrys Down First Christians

The Dewberry team defeated the First Christians of the Church League, 1 to 0 in a fine game played at the Scotland Lane field, on Thursday night. The game was a pitching duel between J. Campbell and Rech.

Rech on the rubber for the Dewberry's pitched a brilliant game, holding the Christians to two hits and fanning eight men. Campbell held the Dewberry's to four hits and had seven strikeouts.

The Dewberry's scored their winning run in the ninth frame when Hilyard tallied on a single by Chill that broke up a great mound battle. Hoskins was the feature hitter of the game. Both teams played good ball in the field and went errorless.

Tennis Alphabet—L

By Feg Murray

The two most famous tennis players whose names begin with the 12th letter of the alphabet are both French Jews, and one of them is a woman. One might go further and say that this woman is the most famous of all L-tennis players, just as Cecil Leitch of England is the best known of all the L-golfers. Suzanne Lenglen's name soon disappeared from the front page after her professional tour under the auspices of C. C. Pyle ended, but before then her remarkable court victories, her temperamental displays and her collapse during and her retirements from important tournaments kept her ever in the limelight.

Mlle. Lenglen was Wimbledon champion in singles in 1919, '20, '21, '22, '23, and helped to win the doubles title in 1920, '21, '22, '23 and '25. Her one visit to America as an amateur ended disastrously when she withdrew from her match with Molla Mallory with the latter leading, claiming that she was ill.

Jean Rene Lacoste, Wimbledon champion this year and in 1925, and United States titleholder in 1926 and '27, played an important part in France's ultimate victory in the Davis Cup challenge round by defeating both Tilden and Johnston at Philadelphia last year. The year before he had also beaten Tilden in Davis cup play.

The late William A. Larned won the United States singles title for seven years, one more than Tilden, and is one of two players to accomplish this feat. His victory years were 1901, '02, '07, '08, '09, '10 and '11, and he was ranked in the prized "first ten" for two decades. Larned played on the United States Davis Cup team in 1902, '03 and '05, and won the historic Longwood Bowel 12 times.

George M. Lott is a member of the present United States Davis Cup team and is the third ranking player in America. He is looked upon as a future national champion. R. D. Little was 10 times in the "first ten" (1900 to 1912), was on the U. S. Davis Cup team in 1906 and was national doubles champion in 1908 and '11. M. H. Long was an American cup player in 1909 and national clay court champion in 1910.

Foreign players well worthy of mention are H. F. Lawford and Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Lycett of England, Gordon Lum of China, Laurents and Landry of France and Dr. Landmann of Germany.

Probably several of the dressiest members of the women's Olympic track team wished they'd never heard of a permanent wave the first few days out on the President Roosevelt bound for Amsterdam.

Big Fights Painful To Fans, Finds Otey As He Nurses Bruises

By MARSHAL OTEY WALKER
Sports Writer for Central Press and New Castle News.

RINGSIDE, YANKEE STADIUM, New York, July 27.—Tunney won the fight—but I lost it and two front teeth.

I would have had a swell time if I hadn't sat so near the leading amateur fighter of the world. I don't know who he is except that he must be crazy about socking somebody in the nose and getting a bounce on the ear himself. He ought to get married.

Everything started out nice until the main go started. Just as Tunney started bouncing into Heeney some usher told this egg he was in the wrong seat. That was the last thing the usher remembered before he became unconscious.

I turned back to the ring and started to watch Heeney. Tom was standing in the middle of the ring trying to give away punches as fast as he could hand them out.

Crash! I turned around to see the bozo in back of me knocking the heads of two cops together while he sat on the chest of one of the professional bouncers.

After that I forgot all about the big fight. The one in back of me was far more interesting and a lot more dangerous.

The cops must have held a conference and decided that they ought to tackle the fighting fan in a body. Anyway, the next minute saw a lot of nightsticks bouncing off people's beans. One guy kicked out my bridge work while another raised a two-inch bump just above the right eyebrow.

After the fan had chased most of the cops away he returned to his seat only to find that somebody had taken it. Well, he just grabbed hold of me and threw me at that other person. I came to as they were trying to put me in one of the ambulances, and managed to get back to my seat near the ring.

But the championship fight was over.

I understand that there is to be another this summer. I suggest they put this fan in with the champ. Then spectators can see all the punches without feeling any of them.

Well, I hope to enjoy the next fight—over the radio.

Pirates Win From Giants

Burleigh Grimes Sustains Sixteenth Victory Of Season

NEW YORK, July 27.—Burleigh Grimes achieved his sixteenth pitching victory of the season yesterday when the Pirates defeated the Giants 7 to 5. All of the runs made during the game were made in the second inning when some wierd baseball was played and each overflowed its batting order. Floyd Scott met with a painful accident when he collided with the left field wall. His neck was wrenched and he was taken to a hospital. It is probable that he will be out of the game the rest of the season.

TWO GAMES IN CHURCH LEAGUE

Two games will be played tonight in the New Castle Church League. The games will start at 6:30 o'clock Daylight Savings time.

The First Baptists will meet the Central Presbyterians at the Lehigh Field with Bagshaw as the umpire.

The First Christians will play the First M. E. team at the Scotland Lane field, with Fahey assigned as umpire.

Girls Teams Will Battle Tonight

The Buckeye Girls baseball team will meet the Bootery Girls team tonight at 6 o'clock at the Buckeye Field. This is the first game of a series to determine the city girls' championship.

The two teams met twice previous and each claim a victory.

Both teams have been playing out of town teams and have met with good success. The Buckeyes made a hit at Monaca last week, and next week they will journey to Portersville for a game. The town promises to turn out for the game next week, as Aileen Neiper the star Buckeye pitcher is a resident of Portersville and they are going to honor her.

Yep, Youth Must Be Served, But Read On—

Sports Writer for Central Press and New Castle News

We will now state once more very emphatically that youth must be served. And proceeded to cite the brilliant playing of such stars as Kress and Brannon and Bettencourt of the Browns, Eddie Morgan of the Cleveland Indians, Jimmy Foxx of the Athletics, Chalmer Cissell of the White Sox, Ott of the Giants, Purdy of the Reds, George Grant of the Cleveland club, Eddie Morris of the Red Sox and half a dozen others.

Youngsters all, going great guns and crowding out the veterans by the very dash and fire of their play.

Yep. The old adage has been proved again.

Just take the case of five vets with the St. Louis Cardinals.

Rabbit Maranville, at 41, is playing the game of his life.

Clarence Mitchell, 38, it pitching the best ball he has in years, if not in his career.

Jess Haines, at the ripe old age of 35, is sharing pitching honors with Grover Alexander, 37 years old.

George Harper is adding his bit to the team's general success despite 37 years in this vale of tears.

Which simply proves again that we were saying—just like any argument for or against the Volstead act and the prohibition amendment proves whichever side you're on. It simply can't be proved.

Not unless you designate youth as the spirit to win, the earnestness to serve, as the main attributes of age or years of service.

Alexander served an ordinary lifetime with the Philly Nationals, and apparently spent his baseball Indian summer with the Chicago Cubs. Canned by Joe McCarthy for his failure to follow Joe's ideas of training routine, Alexander took a new lease on life. He was the outstanding figure of the 1926 campaign, in which the Cardinals won their first and only pennant. He kept his head up through the disappointing season of 1927, under Bob O'Farrell, and this year seems set to draw his share of another world's series melon.

Maranville had been passed up by all the major league clubs when the Cardinals grabbed him last spring. His reversal of form is attributed partly to his "reformation." His carefree spirit and desire for hail fellowship clouded the latter years of his career by affecting his playing condition.

George Harper was rated as a good outfielder with the Cinci Reds, Phillies and Giants, but it wasn't until he broke into the Cardinal lineup this season that he was accepted at his real value—given his head and told to play the game. The results speak for themselves.

Mitchell had been called "through" by the other clubs when the Phillies asked waivers on him this season. The Cinci Reds had had him back in 1916 and 1917. The Dodgers had paid his salary five in-an-out years, and the Phillies had paid it five more. But probably none of the three clubs tossed over his salary check with the pleasant smile that President Sam Breadon of the Cards flashes at payday.

Jess Haines is the only one in the quintet who has given his big league days to the Cardinals exclusively. After nine full season in the saddle he might be expected to weaken. But the symptoms aren't in evidence yet.
